MUSSOLINI ASSERTS ITALY MUST EXPAND LEST IT SUFFOCATE

Premier Declares Its Thirst for Power, Riches and Prosperity Must Be Satisfied.

SEES NO THREAT TO OTHERS

Under Fascismo, He Declares, Italy Alone Among European Powers Is Forging Ahead.

HE DENOUNCES LIBERALISM

Contrasts Italian Problems With Ours and Contends Two Nations Have Much In Common.

ROME, July 23 (AP).—Fascist Italy must expand or suffocate, Premier Mussolini asserted today, but her expansion in no way presents a threat to the peace of the world.

"We are thirsting for the power, for the riches and the prosperity so long denied us," the Fascist Premier told the correspondent for The Associated Press, "but our imperialism presents no threat to the world's peace. Surely the American people, whose commercial and economic empire stretches over the whole world, can understand and sympathize with young Italy's needs to expand culturally and economically beyond her borders."

Discussing the need for mutual understanding between Italy and the United States, the Premier said that the American Government resembled the Fascist State more than any of the liberal democratic Governments of Europe.

When Premier Mussolini was asked to state the precise meaning of his oft repeated phrase, "Italy's undeniable colonial rights," and to tell exactly how he intends to achieve the fruition of them, he declared:

"Our colonial aspirations do not constitute a menace for any one. Italy asks only what is indispensable to her and what it is just that she have. It is certain that she will obtain fulfillment of these desires by a policy of peace and friendly agreements, since no nation would want to assume the grave responsibility of obstructing the achievement of such legitimate and, in reality, such unexcessive aspirations."

Compares Italy and America.

The best way for Americans to understand Fascist Italy, the Premier said, is through a comparison with their own country. "Paradoxical as it may seem," he added, "there is a distinct resemblance between the development of Italy during the last decade and the United States during the second half of the nineteenth century. "Despite the tremendous differences in the historical traditions and temperaments of the two peoples, there is a clear parallel, for example, between your Civil War and our recent economic civil war. The doctrine of States rights, prevalent before your Civil War, carried to the extreme in the theory that the States had the right to secede from the Union, resembled the doctrine prevalent in Italy before the advent of Fascismo, of class, of self defense and regional autonomy.

"In the United States it was necessary to fight a frightfully destructive war to affirm the authority of the Federal Government, while we were able, with a comparatively bloodless struggle, to affirm the authority of the Central State organism.

"The American Government resembles the Fascist State more than any liberal democratic Government of Europe. Popular sovereignty is tempered by strong governmental authority. Universal suffrage elects the Government, but cannot interfere with its work, as is unfortunately the case in European democracies.

"Your pioneering period necessarily produced imperialism. So must ours. The difference in type between our imperialisms is explained by certain fundamental differences between the two nations and peoples. America had a tradition of freedom. Italy has one of enslavement to foreigners. America was protected by her isolation, was overflowing with natural riches, while Italy was poor in law and materials. America had a vast territory sufficient for all her people, while Italy's surplus man power must emigrate.

Sees Many Things in Common.

"Yet the two nations have much in common. Both are young, healthy and full of self-confidence and determination to possess strength and prosperity. Our soil is not rich, but whatever it contains we are determined to utilize, making science help the strength of our arms. Our cultural heritage is among the richest in the world; our racial vitality is tremendous; our thirst for riches and prosperity cannot be denied. We must expand or suffocate.

"Nationalism in America is no less strong than that in Italy. In both nations success, achievement and progress are sought with religious ardor. Our religion of nationalism is less material because we must depend upon spiritual resources as much as physical. Our imperialism—like yours—is not a threat to world peace. Americans should see the injustice of accusing us of militarism. You, safe across the Atlantic, keep your army, navy and air forces ready to resist attack and to resent any insult to your national honor. We, in the midst of centuries-old hatreds and having just won our independence after generations of slavery, surely cannot be criticized for protecting ourselves and keeping ourselves prepared.

"But there is such a tremendous gulf in type, tradition and history between

Says 250,000 Cars Are Stolen Each Year in United States

BOSTON, July 23 (AP).—Maximum sentences for automobile thieves are urged by the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company of Boston, which made public today statistics indicating that 250,000 cars, valued at $218,000,000, were stolen in the United States last year.

It was estimated that four out of five stolen cars were recovered, reducing the owners' loss to $35,000,000, or, taking into account stolen accessories, robes, &c., $50,000,000.

EQUITABLE BUILDING SOLD BY LABOR UNION

W. H. Vanderbilt, H. C. Cushing 3d and L. W. Baldwin Buy It From Locomotive Engineers.

VALUED AT $40,000,000

Brotherhood Owned It a Year and Saw Chance to Make a Good Profit.

William H. Vanderbilt, Harry C. Cushing 3d, who is related to the Vanderbilt family by marriage, and Leroy W. Baldwin, President of the Empire Trust Company, have acquired control of the Equitable Building at 120 Broadway, one of the largest office structures in the world and estimated to be worth $40,000,000.

Control was purchased from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which had acquired the building in March, 1925, in association with Mr. Baldwin and August Heckscher. The brotherhood also had been largely interested in the Empire Trust Company, which has quarters in the Equitable Building, but disposed of most of its stock holdings early this year.

Financial Policy Unchanged.

These changes, it was declared yesterday, did not represent alterations in the union's financial policy, but in each case an opportunity for a good profit presented itself and it was decided to take advantage of it. The executive heads of the brotherhood were said to be meeting in Cleveland yesterday in connection with the sale of their Equitable Building holdings.

The official announcement from Mr. Baldwin follows:

"Leroy W. Baldwin, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Equitable Office Building Corporation, who formed a syndicate last year to purchase the control of the Equitable Building, 120 Broadway, announced that new and important interests had become identified with him and his associates and had acquired a large holding of stock in the corporation.

"William H. Vanderbilt has been elected a director and member of the Executive Committee, and Harry C. Cushing 3d has been elected a director and Vice President of the corporation."

May Offer New Stock.

No amplification of the official statement could be obtained at the corporation's offices, but it was reported in Wall Street that the stock of the corporation would be increased and that part of the new stock would be offered to the public, probably next week. When control of the building changed hands last year an issue of $5,000,000 of 7 per cent. convertible stock was sold by Dillon, Read & Co. This stock was convertible into common stock, which is the voting stock, at the rate of two shares of common for one of preferred.

Out of an authorized issue of 225,000 shares of common stock, 100,000 shares were reserved for conversion purposes. The funded debt of the building consists of a $19,940,073 first mortgage, redeemable in 1974, and a $9,497,000 issue of debenture bonds, which are followed by the $5,000,000 of preferred stock and 125,000 shares of common.

The amount involved in the present transaction was not announced, but it is believed that the new interests control considerably more than 51 per cent. of the common stock. The last previous time the building changed hands the price was reported to represent $38,500,000, including the assumption of the funded debt.

Du Pont Gave Up Control.

When the building was purchased last year by the interests which included the Brotherhood of Locomo-

POLICE USE CLUBS IN A CLASH WITH SUBWAY STRIKERS

Several Men Injured in Battle Outside Their Hall as Meeting Breaks Up.

OTHER VIOLENCE REPORTED

Interborough Says That Sixteen Attempts Were Made to Pull Workers Off Trains.

COMPANY REBUFFS MEN

After Failing to Get Jobs Back as a Body, They Reform to Carry on Walkout.

The Interborough subway strikers opened the day yesterday by declaring the strike "on" again after failing in an attempt to return to work in a body, and closed it last night with their first clash with the police. In between these events the Interborough reported sixteen attempts by strikers to pull motormen from trains and three instances of bricks being hurled through train windows. It was the first day of violence since the strike began.

The fight between the strikers and twenty-five detectives of the Industrial Squad under Sergeant John Broderick took place about 11 o'clock last night outside the strikers' headquarters in the Manhattan Casino at Eighth Avenue and 155th Street. Only one of the strikers was arrested, but several of them nursed ugly wounds from blackjacks and fists.

The detectives in police cars drew up outside the Casino while the regular meeting of the strikers was in progress. Mrs. Alexander Barton of 1,117 Dean Avenue, Pelham, wife of a striking motorman, was standing there with her sister, Miss Helen Vousten.

Mrs. Barton said the detectives whispered together "mysteriously" and that she overheard one of them say to another, "Don't give them any time—do it right away."

Say Police Started Attack.

The strikers said the police did not wait, but wantonly attacked them as they stood chatting in groups on the corner before going home. The police said that as the strikers came out of the Casino they said: "Oh, here are the police; we'll give them all they want now."

Anthony Guggino, the one prisoner, was hauled away unconscious in a patrol wagon and taken to the West 135th Street Station, where he had to be attended by a physician from Harlem Hospital. He was charged with resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and using "foul language to an officer."

The prisoner had not been long in the station house before a delegation of fellow-strikers arrived, posted a $500 bond for him and took him back to the Casino. Lavin, Phelan and other strike leaders met him at the door and his comrades broke into cheers.

Both of Guggino's eyes were blackened and his face was cut, bruised and swollen.

"My spirit is not broken," he shouted. "I only wish all of the workers could see me and I know they'd all come out with us. I'm going to stick through."

Then he fainted.

Ambulance Surgeon Brennan of the Columbus Hospital Annex was called. He said he thought Guggino's skull might be fractured and he feared that several ribs were broken also. Guggino was taken to the hospital.

Bystanders said that Guggino after being struck by a detective walked into a group of strikers and complained that he had done nothing to provoke the blow. A detective overheard him and rushed over to him.

"So you were struck without reason, were you?" cried the plainclothes man. "Well, I'll give you some reason now."

With that the detective is reported to have knocked the striker unconscious and then with a companion to have picked him up and carried him to the curb to await the patrol wagon. On the way they let the unconscious man drop and his head struck the pavement.

There were a number of uniformed policemen present under Lieutenant Reynolds, but these are said to have taken no part in the clubbing and to have confined their efforts to getting several women and children in the

Philadelphia Judge Urges A Mussolini for America

PHILADELPHIA, July 23 (AP).—A dictator seems to be necessary to enforce the laws in the United States, Judge Edwin P. Lewis said in the Common Pleas Court today.

"The way to have respect for law in this country seems to be to have a dictator," he declared. "We are rapidly coming to the condition that exists in Europe. To have respect for the laws we should have a dictator, a Mussolini, here. I am serious about that.

"Something has got to be done to make people in this country obey the laws. If drunken and careless drivers and others won't obey the law, the minority will have to set up a dictatorship. They had it in France when the people refused to pay their taxes and in Italy when the people refused to work.

TWO CASHIERS HELD IN THEFT OF $109,000

Former North Hudson National Officials Said to Have Lost Funds in Wall Street.

BROKER'S EMPLOYE SUICIDE

Ex-Cashier Jailed in Default of $50,000 Bail—His Assistant May Aid Prosecution.

Edward R. Westerburg and George W. Brower Jr., formerly cashier and assistant cashier, respectively, of the National Bank of North Hudson in Union City, N. J., were arrested yesterday on Federal warrants charging embezzlement, misapplication of funds and conspiracy to defraud. Archibald M. Henry, President of the bank, said the shortage in depositors' accounts was about $109,000, the defalcations dating back over a period of two years.

When taken before Federal Commissioner Stanton in Hoboken, the two prisoners waived examination and were held in bail of $50,000 and $5,000, respectively, to await the Federal Grand Jury's action. Although Westerburg is one of the most prominent bankers in Northern New Jersey, he was unable to obtain the $50,000 bond and remained in the County Jail in Jersey City.

Brower Gets Bail.

Brower obtained his $5,000 bail, which was said to have been placed at the figure because of his promise to assist the Government in the case, and was released. He said that "developments will completely vindicate me of any suspicion of wrongdoing," and placed the blame on his former superior. Westerburg, who was also Vice President of the Labor National Bank of Jersey City and the National Bank of Jersey City, asserted that Brower caused the shortage and lost the money in Wall Street speculation.

Mr. Henry said Brower's resignation was asked for and received on June 19, after bank inspectors had found a shortage of $2,700 in the accounts of the Dispatch Building and Loan Association, of which Brower was Secretary. It is this item which forms the basis of the charge against the men. Brower is alleged to have taken that sum from a depositor's account in order to make good the earlier shortage, and Westerburg is said to have had knowledge of his act.

The bank officials continued their investigation after Brower resigned and learned last Thursday, they said, that Westerburg knew of the alleged juggling of accounts. Mr. Henry said that when the cashier was confronted with this information he denied he was guilty of defalcations, and refused to say anything more, but resigned.

Wall Street Man a Suicide.

A director of the bank said Westerburg told the officials the first alterations in the accounts were made to hide the disappearance of bonds owned by the bank, the proceeds of which had been lost in Wall Street speculation. An employe of a New York brokerage house said to have been concerned was reported to have committed suicide after the alleged speculation turned out disastrously.

Westerburg was arrested yesterday morning when he appeared at the office of Lionel Isaacs, bank counsel, to give a more detailed account of affairs. Brower was arrested in a near-by real estate office, where he had been employed since he left the bank.

As cashier of the bank Westerburg, who is 42 years old and had been employed there thirteen years, received a salary of $7,500 a year. He is married, has a nine-year-old son and has been prominent in New Jersey fraternal organizations.

Brower had worked for the bank twelve years and was paid $3,600 a year. He was separated from his wife recently, it was said, and lived with his father.

The bank's shortage is covered by the bonds of its two former employes.

FIVE EX-PREMIERS JOIN WITH POINCARE IN FORMING POWERFUL NATIONAL CABINET; AMERICANS BOOED AND ATTACKED IN PARIS

Poincare Will Delay Action on Debt Treaty, Hoping Time Will Bring Concessions From Us

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 23.—Premier Poincaré, when asked tonight what would be the policy of the new French Government toward the Washington debt accord, replied that the question was one relating to foreign policy and the inquiry should be addressed to Foreign Minister Briand.

While on the one hand this would seem a change from Poincaré's previous strong opposition to ratification of the Berenger-Mellon treaty, it might mean on the other hand only the Premier's desire not to embarrass his Foreign Minister, who as the Premier authorized Ambassador Berenger to sign the agreement. Indeed, it is learned tonight that the new Cabinet intends to try to obtain from Washington mitigations of the agreement.

There remains the letter Secretary Mellon wrote to M. Caillaux promising that America would not market the French bonds under Article 7 of the agreement, but it is considered possible that M. Poincaré will endeavor to obtain from America assurances comparable with those the British gave in the settlement made with Caillaux.

It is understood, however, that the Premier does not intend to act hastily and will not ask for ratification of the Berenger treaty before Parliament goes on vacation. This would be a formidable task for him, for not only are a majority of the Chamber still against the Washington settlement, but a majority of the members of the new Government have gone on record against it.

It appears to be Poincaré's idea that time is working for the French and that the prospects of further concessions from the United States will increase within the next few months.

Inasmuch as the Chamber has shown itself opposed to foreign credits, and inasmuch as those credits might be hard to get now, even were the accord to be ratified, Premier Poincaré, perhaps, sees nothing to be lost by waiting. Therefore it seems likely that no effort will be made by the French Government to obtain approval of the Berenger-Mellon agreement for the next two or three months.

MAJOR PARTIES IN CABINET

Only the Extremists and Socialists Remain in Active Opposition.

BRIAND AT FOREIGN MINISTRY

Poincare Holds Finance Post, Giving Education to Herriot and War to Painleve.

TO MEET CHAMBER TUESDAY

New Premier Is Reported Anxious to See Mellon About the Debt Deal With Us.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 23.—Raymond Poincaré has fulfilled his own expectations and the general hope of the country and has formed a Government of National Union.

His Cabinet, which, with himself, includes six former Premiers, stretches across the whole gamut of French political parties, from Louis Marin on the Right to Edouard Herriot on the Left.

It is as perfectly balanced as could be, giving satisfaction to the Right Centre and the Moderate Left and, in theory at least, it is without a flaw.

Aristide Briand remains as Minister of Foreign Affairs, thus maintaining the tradition of liberalism in foreign matters. Without him there this combination Cabinet would not have been possible; for, whatever else may be said of the policy of the Left during the past two years, it has this to its credit, that it has substituted Locarno and the Dawes plan for the policy of the Ruhr occupation; it would never have sanctioned a return to the control of foreign affairs of the country of the man who occupied the Ruhr—M. Poincaré.

M. Poincaré is Minister of Finance. Twice before, in the years before the war, he held that post and his record shows him to have been a careful, prudent administrator. Since the war he, as Premier, directed for a time the country's finances, though Count de Lasteyrie was the titular head of the Finance Ministry.

But that direction was marked by the first sensational fall in the franc and the long fight to bring it back to reasonable value by use of the Morgan credits and by the imposition on the country of a 20 per cent. increase in all taxation.

Cabinet Presented at Elysee.

At 7 o'clock this evening the new Cabinet was presented to the President of the Republic, as follows:

Premier and Minister of Finance—RAYMOND POINCARE.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—ARISTIDE BRIAND.
Minister of Justice—LOUIS BARTHOU.
Minister of War—PAUL PAINLEVE.
Minister of Marine—GEORGES LEYGUES.
Minister of Public Instruction—EDOUARD HERRIOT.
Minister of Labor—ANDRE FALLIERES.
Minister of the Interior—ALBERT SARRAUT.
Minister of Public Works—ANDRE TARDIEU.
Minister of Commerce—MAURICE BOKANOWSKI.
Minister of Agriculture—ANDRE QUEUILLE.
Minister of Colonies—FRANCIS LEON-PERRIER.
Minister of Pensions—LOUIS MARIN.

This Cabinet of thirteen Ministers, without any Under-Secretaries, represents the political factions of the whole Right Centre and Moderate Left of the Chamber and Senate. In it the Radicals have this guarantee of security for their doctrines, that M. Sarraut is Minister of the Interior, M. Briand Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Herriot at the Education and M. Painlevé at the War Ministries.

Former Enemies Join Forces.

How these four men have come to consent to serve in the same Cabinet with Louis Marin, Maurice Bokanowski, André Tardieu, and under M. Poincare, is one of those mysteries of French political life which can be understood but never explained.

It is only one week since one of the greatest of all political duels was fought between MM. Briand and Herriot, with MM. Marin and Tardieu on the flanks supporting the Radical leader in wrecking all Aristide Briand had accomplished in such an effective way that now, when a new start is being made, the exchange rate of the franc is still ten points below that of last Saturday, almost the whole of the State reserves in the Bank of France have been used up and the Treasury has been saved only by the transfer to the Bank of the last remnant of the Morgan credits, which played so spectacular but so transient a rôle in M. Poincaré's last Administration.

It may be argued that without M. Herriot's wrecking of the Briand-Caillaux Cabinet, this new Government of National Union could not have been formed.

Fiscal Program Due on Tuesday.

On Tuesday M. Poincaré will come before the Chamber with his program of financial redress and, though there is criticism and latent opposition by the whole Left, there is every likelihood that he will obtain a majority, and perhaps an extensive one. A forecast can, however, only safely be made after the Government's program has been produced.

Among his former followers, M. Her-

Senate Irreconcilables Think Churchill Is Campaigning for a Reduction.

Treasury Ceases Its Debate, Holding Case Has Been Already Proved.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—While Treasury officials refused today to continue the controversy with Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, over the war debt settlements, some "irreconcilables" in the Senate, under the leadership of Senator Borah, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, were making plans to combat what they characterized as a campaign by Mr. Churchill to obtain cancellation of part of the payments which Britain has pledged herself to make over a period of sixty-two years.

Senator Borah and his group, who have expressed the opinion that not only France and Italy but even Great Britain got off too lightly and should be forced to repay every cent that it will cost the American taxpayers to retire the debts, have been holding off until the Treasury has had full opportunity to amplify its reply to Mr. Churchill.

As it was indicated today that the Treasury was satisfied its position had been fully set forth and that there would be no further statement, it is probable that the Senate group will quickly get into action.

May Become Campaign Issue.

As a result the controversy over statements by Secretary Mellon that the pre-armistice debts of France, Italy and Belgium were in effect canceled by the terms of the debt compacts, and that a considerable portion of the pre-armistice borrowings of Great Britain, which are to be collected by the more severe terms of the British-American compact, were used for commercial purposes, promises to be continued indefinitely and may be carried into the Congressional campaign.

Some of the Senators who were opposed to leniency in the debt settlement terms see in the British charges of discrimination what amounts to a demand upon this country to revise the terms of the British compact so that it will, in effect, also cancel the pre-armistice borrowings of Britain. The fact that the British Treasury has so sturdily assailed the statement of Secretary Mellon as to Britain's pre-

PARISIANS INSULT AMERICAN TOURISTS

Single Out Our Citizens for Catcalls in Streets, Several Fights Resulting.

LOADED BUSES ATTACKED

Sightseers Are Forced to Alight and Only Prompt Police Action Averts a Riot.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 23.—An Anti-American riot on the boulevards of Paris was averted tonight only by the efficient action of the police reserves. The writer was in the midst of the demonstration and does not hesitate to characterize it as far more serious than the parade of war veterans which attracted so much attention ten days ago. Thousands of Frenchmen booed and hissed the citizens of the nation which just eight years ago was helping to hold back the German invaders from their capital.

At the corner of the Boulevard des Italiens and Rue du Helder, two blocks from the Opera, there is a tourist agency which specializes in "Seeing Paris by Night." Every evening a fleet of sight-seeing cars loaded with tourists sets out for a round of the city.

Tonight, with six cars loaded and about to start, a body of several hundred well-dressed Frenchmen appeared as if from nowhere and announced that Paris would not be seen tonight by the tourists in the charabancs.

Forced Tourists Out of Car.

Then they proceeded to empty the first sight-seeing car, while a crowd of several thousand which had quickly gathered began to berate the Americans. In fact, there were more Germans and English than Americans in the cars, but it was intended to be an anti-American demonstration and it was such.

While the protesting tourists were being taken out of the first automobile another sight-seeing car arrived at high speed from the direction of the Opera. It got by amid shouts of derision and catcalls. But a second car was halted.

Just at this moment the police reserves arrived. With difficulty they freed the car which had been halted and turned to the waiting automobiles. First they made an effort to clear a path so they could get away. However, the crowd got so ugly that they gave up this effort and advised the tourists to get down and disappear. This was done.

Then the inspectors of the police ordered the tourists' agency to get its six cars out of sight.

Cheers of delight went up from the crowd as the six big automobiles rolled away empty except for their chauffeurs.

Up until midnight the crowd lingered around the Opera shouting against Americans and hurling epithets at passers-by whom they took for citizens of the United States. There were some fist fights, but no serious encounters.

Germans and English Ignored.

It was striking that practically nothing was said against the Germans or the English, but that the Americans were singled out for insults.

To the credit of the American tourists it should be said that they behaved well. Personally I saw some Americans treated in a way which would have started fights in their home towns. But tonight they took it in good humor. Full discredit for tonight's disgraceful performance falls on the French.

The police have started an investiga-

Medal of Honor Man Found After 27 Years; Captured 21 Armed Rebels at Luzon in 1899

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—A quarter century search for a Congressional Medal of Honor man was ended a few days ago when the War Department received a letter from Joseph L. Epps of Panamaw, Okla., asking about the decoration. For an act of gallantry on Dec. 4, 1899, during the Gilmore relief expedition at Vigan, on the Island of Luzon, when Epps captured twenty-one insurgents, he was recommended for the Congressional Medal, the most coveted of all American military and naval decorations. That was on Feb. 7, 1902, but the War Department had never been able to locate Epps.

The search had been virtually abandoned when the department received a letter last week from the missing hero. Unaware of the honor awaiting him, Epps wrote to ask about the statement made by his Captain, that the latter had intended to recommend him for a medal. Epps wrote:

"My Captain, Charles Van Way, informed me personally that he wrote up and sent in a recommendation for a medal for me. The Battle of Vigan occurred Dec. 4, 1899. This was for the capture of twenty-one armed men—seventeen with guns and four with bolos—in a hazardous position. I will give you any information I can in regard to the battle."

Captain Van Way is now a Lieutenant Colonel on the retired list, living at Portland, Ore.

The department today forwarded the Medal of Honor to the Commanding General of the Eighth Corps Area, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for presentation to Mr. Epps. Mr. Epps is also entitled to the Spanish War Service Medal and the Philippine Campaign Medal, which he will also receive. He was born at Jamestown, Mo. He first entered the military service in Company D, First Regiment, Territorial Volunteer Infantry from Oolagah, Indian Territory. He then was a cowboy. He served later in the Thirty-third United States Volunteer Infantry. The citation for his medal follows:

"Discovered a party of insurgents inside a wall, climbed to the top of the wall, covered them with his gun and forced them to stack arms and surrender."

FAVOR BULGARIAN RELIEF.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—The Financial Committee of the League of Nations concluded in London today the special sessions called primarily to bring into operation a plan for the settlement of the Bulgarian refugees, and in particular to enable the Bulgarian Government to obtain advances up to £400,000 for the most urgent needs, such as early Autumn crop sowing.

These advances will anticipate the public issue of a full loan of £2,250,000 later in the year.

The Bulgarian Government is to be authorized to proceed with negotiations for the advances, but is to be urged to arrive at a satisfactory arrangement with the bondholders of her prewar loans.

Library's Ban on Shirtsleeves Upheld; Guards Bar Sweltering, Coatless Author

Shirtsleeves may be perfectly proper at country clubs, but they don't go at the New York Public Library. A regulation adopted years ago by the trustees provides that men must wear coats in the library.

Harry Forman of Milwaukee, a writer, discovered this yesterday afternoon. Mr. Forman, hatless and coatless, wearing a light-blue shirt, undeniably clean but open at the throat, started to enter the library and was barred by a guard. He protested and at length won his way to the office of Dr. E. H. Anderson, Director. There he complained to K. D. Metcalf, Executive Assistant, who told him of the long-standing rule and explained nothing could be done about it.

Mr. Forman, indignant, started to call on the director of the branch libraries, which are supported by the city instead of by endowment, as is the Central Library, to discover if such a rule was enforced there. On his way he got into an altercation with another guard, who wanted to know where he was going, but was rescued by Mr. Metcalf.

Dr. Anderson explained last night that such a rule was necessary because many men took extreme liberties as to clothing unless they were checked at some point. "But on a hot day like today," he said, "if a man in the reading room took off his coat to be comfortable we probably wouldn't notice it, even though it is against the regulations."

riot's presence in the Poincaré Cabinet is being criticized almost unanimously. His too great success last Saturday, when he left the Presidential chair to overthrow the Briand-Caillaux Cabinet and his equally complete failure on Wednesday, seem to have created a humility of spirit in the chief of the Radical Party sufficient to lead him to accept the comparatively modest appointment of Minister of Public Instruction in the Cabinet of the man he fought and defeated at the last general elections.

In a letter to his party he defends his action as once more dictated by his sense of duty, the same emotion he invoked when he turned M. Briand out and when he stood baffled and beaten before the Chamber two days ago.

At a party meeting, which criticized his action in joining M. Poincaré, it was notable that the new Government was considerably spared, which seems to indicate there are a large number of Radicals who, if M. Poincaré's financial program does not include too extensive proposals for increasing indirect taxation, may be expected to give him confidence for some months, at any rate.

Of the Socialist attitude there can be no doubt. Their hundred votes and all their eloquence will be thrown incessantly against any Government and any project of M. Poincaré's. So they announced tonight, and their sixth of the national representation at least cannot be counted as incorporated in this Government of National Union.

Franc and Bread Chief Problems.

Two things will determine the fate of the Government: First, its success or failure in raising the value of the franc; and second, its success or failure in keeping down the cost of living, and especially of bread.

For the opening day of this Administration civil servants announce their intention of making a demonstration outside the Chamber for a further increase in pay. That is an old vexed question which has never been entirely settled and was tranquilized only by M. Caillaux's promise of a substantial increase to be provided out of the next budget.

All this business of the billions which the Treasury owes, of the interallied debts and even of the fall of the franc does not concern the public so much as the fact that every day or two the price of bread is being raised a few more centimes.

M. Poincaré's Government, the public is being told, has been formed to reestablish confidence. It may do that among the possessing classes, though it is still a long way from getting capital to return to the country; but its real test is with the laboring, nonpossessing classes who, for first time in the past three months, have begun to feel the direct effects of the situation which politicians have been playing with so long.

From this point of view the life of the Government is not going to be an easy one. The Cabinet may produce a good program, it may obtain and keep for a time a majority, but below the surface in Parliament there is a movement in the country of deep significance. It is growing out of the desperate causes which, though yet inarticulate, except in Paris, where it takes the form of fiddling with Fascism, is not negligible and is not entirely favorable to the kind of union M. Poincaré has formed, and is just as suspicious of the former President of the Republic as his followers have shown themselves of Joseph Caillaux.

Seeks Interview With Mellon.

PARIS, July 23 (AP).—The new French Cabinet, regarded as the strongest since the war, is ready to take up the difficult tasks facing the country, notably those connected with placing the country on a sound financial footing.

One of Premier Poincaré's chief desires, voiced by him as he left the Elysée Palace after presenting his Ministers to President Doumergue, is to have a talk with Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, who arrived in France today.

The Premier remarked that there were certain difficulties connected with ratification of the debt settlement with the United States and he would be glad of an opportunity for a conference with Secretary Mellon.

If judged by his expression of opinion before he accepted the task of forming a Cabinet the Premier is in favor of an arrangement whereby, in case transfers of money become impossible, an alternative arrangement be made under which France could make payments in kind, in potash, for instance.

He is understood to favor only in part the financial projects suggested by the Committee of Experts appointed by the Briand Government to consider the French financial situation.

On leaving the Elysée this evening the new Premier described his Government as having been selected without regard to personal preferences, adding:

"We wanted to form a Cabinet of the largest national union, in which all parties would be represented, without taking account too closely of the representation of groups. We have tried to fulfill our task in the most high-minded spirit possible."

Franc Improves Steadily.

When it became known that M. Poincaré had succeeded today in putting the finishing touches on his fourth Ministry the franc immediately improved more than a point and a half to the dollar.

The franc opened at 44.62 to the dollar and 217 to the pound sterling. This was appreciably weaker than the closing yesterday, due to reports that M. Poincaré was meeting unexpected difficulties in forming a Cabinet. Then came official announcement that a Ministry had been formed and the franc improved steadily, being quoted at noon at 43.60 and 212. The official closing price was 42.87 and 208.23, while after the Bourse had closed the quotation was 42.33 to the dollar and 206 to the pound.

Heavy payments must be made within the next few weeks, and M. Poincaré's task is tremendous. The present schedule calls for 500,000,000 francs next Saturday for the semi-annual instalments on the salaries of State employes. On Aug. 15 coupons representing 68,000,000 francs, interest on the Treasury bonds of 1920, become due, while the following day has been set for payment of 235,000,000 francs, interest on the 5 per cent. rentes.

Ten million dollars is due to the United States on Aug. 1—the first annual interest on war stocks. Three million pounds is due to Great Britain between Aug. 18 and 25 on account of war debts, under a temporary agreement now in force.

MANY VETERANS IN CABINET.

Only Young Fallieres Has Not Had Extensive Political Experience.

The Ministers in the new French Cabinet represent the following political parties:

MM. Poincaré and Marin, Right Republicans.
M. Briand, Socialist Republicans.
MM. Barthou, Fallières, Tardieu and Bokanowski, Left Republicans.
M. Painlevé, Socialists.
MM. Herriot, Sarraut and Perrier, Socialist Radicals.
M. Leygues, Left Democrats.
Dr. Queuille is an Independent.

The only member of the new so-called "Government of National Union" who has not either been Premier or had a portfolio in some Ministry, or is at all lacking in political experience is the Minister of Labor André Fallières, son of the former President of the republic. As a Deputy from the Lot-et-Garronne, born in 1875, he has been chiefly concerned in the Chamber with correcting Socialists who had misquoted his venerable father. For example, when some one said, in an attack May 26, 1922, on the Poincaré Government, which had just succeeded that of M. Briand, that on hearing of the election of M. Poincaré as President his predecessor had exclaimed, "Poincaré? Then that means war!" Deputy Fallières indignantly denied that his father had ever used the words, and cried out to the Premier. "You know he never did, don't you?" And M. Poincaré reassured him.

In addition to M. Faillières, M. Bokanowski has not previously held portfolio.

Premier Poincaré, who also takes the portfolio of Finance, was President of the republic from Feb. 18, 1913, to Feb. 18, 1920, and was one of the few to serve a complete term. Before that he had been Premier from Jan. 14, 1912, to Jan. 10, 1913, and has twice since been Premier, from Jan. 15, 1922, to March 26, 1924, and from March 29 to June 1, 1924, when he was succeeded for a brief period by François-Marsal.

Louis Barthou, the new Minister of Justice and Vice President of the Council of Ministers, was Premier from March 22, 1913, to Dec. 2 of the same year, during which period the Three Years' Military Service act was revived.

Aristide Briand, who takes the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, which caused his undoing at the hands of M. Poincaré in 1922, has been Premier ten times. His first experience was from July 24, 1909, to Oct. 30, 1910, when his Government put through the bill for electoral reform; his last was this year, from June 23 to July 17.

Paul Painlevé has been Premier three times, from Sept. 12, 1917, to Nov. 13, 1917, and in 1925, April 17-Oct. 29 and Oct. 29-Nov. 22. He is now Minister of War for the second time.

Georges Leygues was Premier in the brief Presidency of M. Millerand, from Sept. 24, 1920, to Jan. 21, 1921, during which time the Brussels and London conferences took place and diplomatic relations were reestablished with the Vatican.

Edouard Herriot, Minister of the Interior, has been Premier twice during the Administration of President Doumergue: from June 14, 1924, to April 10, 1925, and from July 19 to July 21 of the present year.

Albert Sarraut, Minister of the Interior, held the portfolio of Public Works in the Viviani Government at the beginning of the World War, but gave it up on the reconstruction of the Ministry in August, 1914. He has also been Minister for the Colonies.

André Tardieu, Minister of Commerce, was the first Minister for the Liberated Regions in the last Clemenceau Government.

Dr. André Queuille, Minister of Agriculture, held the same portfolio in Herriot's short-lived Government of this month.

Francis Léon-Perrier, Minister of the Colonies, aside from having been President of the General Council of Isère, had the same portfolio in the last Briand Cabinet.

Louis Marin, Minister of Pensions, was Minister of Liberated Regions under Francois Marshal and was formerly Secretary of the Bureau of the Chamber of Deputies. He is the eloquent leader of the Nationalist group of 104 at the Palais Bourbon.

Maurice Bokanowski was President of the Finance Commission of the Chamber, whose figures overthrew the Leygues Government in 1921.

CABINET PLEASES WASHINGTON.

Belief Expressed That France Will Follow Sound Fiscal Policy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The success of Premier Poincaré in forming a Cabinet which, it is predicted, will obtain a majority for its plans in the French Senate and Chamber of Deputies was generally accepted here as a development of great importance.

Acting Secretary Winston expressed the opinion that the new Cabinet was a very strong one. He felt that the strengthening of the franc also could be accepted as an indication of the conviction in France that a sound fiscal policy was at last to be put into effect.

FRANCS ON THEIR BAGGAGE.

Americans Have Suit Cases Plastered With French and Belgian Bills.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—The suitcases of travelers arriving here today from the Continent, plastered with French and Belgian five and ten franc notes, attracted much attention.

One party of travelers, consisting of young Americans and Canadians, also had French franc notes adorning their trunks alongside the hotel and steamship labels.

Several of the tourists had paper money pasted on their camera cases.

SULTAN'S GEMS SOLD TO AID ANTI-KEMAL PLOT

Young Turk Leader Testifies Abdul Hamid's Jewels Brought in $2,000,000.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 23 (AP).—The famous Yildiz Palace jewels, which were seized by the Young Turks after the fall of Sultan Abdul Hamid, deposed in 1909, formed the first fund alleged to have been collected for the overthrow of the Government of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, it was testified here today.

The jewels, which were sold in Europe for $2,000,000, were in the possession of the political leaders who are now under arrest at Angora charged with conspiracy against the Government.

Testimony concerning the fund was made by Dr. Nazmin Bey during his examination before a special tribunal which is preparing the cases of more than 100 prisoners for trial. Dr. Nazmin Bey was one of the leaders of the revolt against Abdul Hamid.

[This same tribunal convicted and sentenced to death thirteen prominent politicians last week. Ten of those arrested in recent wholesale round-ups of those alleged to be involved in the plot against the Turkish President were ordered released yesterday.]

Fearful of the escape of Kara Kemal, war-time Food Minister, and Abdul Kadir, former Governor of Angora, the Government has issued a decree imposing the death penalty on those who protect them and offering handsome rewards to those denouncing their hiding places. Both of the men were condemned to death with the thirteen alleged plotters who were hanged at Smyrna. Kara Kemal is charged with being the ringleader of the Unionists' plans against the Kemalists.

The newspapers recall that it was eighteen years ago today that the very Young Turks, now on trial at Angora, curtailed the despotic régime of Abdul Hamid, the "Red Sultan," and established a Constitution.

MELLON IN FRANCE, PARRIES ALL ISSUES

Says His Statement on British Debt Was for Americans, but He Won't Enter Controversy.

FRENCH PARLEY DOUBTFUL

Secretary Indicates That He Won't Go to Paris—No Plans to Meet Leaders.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHERBOURG, July 23.—Secretary Andrew W. Mellon, upon his arrival here early this morning aboard the Majestic, made it quite plain that he had no intention of engaging in a controversy with Winston Churchill over the question of the British debt to America.

While adhering to his own statement upon which the Chancellor of the Exchequer based his challenging reply, Secretary Mellon said he regretted that his opinion of the matter had given rise to a conflicting opinion.

"I am sorry if what I said has caused a strong difference in view," Mr. Mellon said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent aboard the Majestic today.

"What I said in regard to the purposes to which Britain put the money she borrowed from America was my own opinion, intended largely to explain the situation to Americans."

The correspondent handed to Mr. Mellon the text of Mr. Churchill's statement in the House of Commons, in which the British statesman took exception to the official remarks of the Secretary of the Treasury on how the borrowed money was used.

"I have not yet seen the text, but as soon as I read it there may be a necessity for further statement," Mr. Mellon said. "This, however, I very much doubt, for I do not wish to enter into a controversy over the British debt."

No French Debt Negotiations.

Of equal importance was a very definite indication that Mr. Mellon sees no prospect of new Franco-American debt negotiations while he is in Europe. He emphasized the fact that he had come abroad with but one idea in mind, namely, to gain a little rest and freedom from all official duties.

In support of this idea, he said, he was not going to Paris and probably would not visit the French capital before sailing homeward in September. Mr. Mellon was reminded that much hope was being placed in his visit by Frenchmen interested in obtaining further concessions regarding the Franco-American debt accord. The Secretary smiled and said he had no engagements to see French statesmen or statesmen of other countries.

Nevertheless, if these statesmen seek him out, as they unquestionably will, Mr. Mellon will naturally see them and talk frankly with them about the American point of view.

It has been suggested that Secretary Mellon might confer with Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, President of the German Reichsbank, or with Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, as well as French financial experts.

Mr. Mellon would not comment on the possibility of France's obtaining a transfer clause in the debt agreement or the much discussed safeguard provision, and in reply to questions on these points he again referred to his original statement that he had come to Europe for a rest and to visit his daughter in Rome, who was recently married to David K. E. Bruce, the American Vice Consul and the son of Senator Bruce.

Lands and Motors Away Quickly.

After the most unobtrusive of arrivals, considering the importance given to his coming by the French press, Secretary Mellon, by an special arrangement with the French Government, was rushed through the formalities of the port—most of them were waived for him and his son Paul, who accompanied him—and he departed in an automobile five minutes after the tender reached shore. He said he would motor leisurely through Burgundy and the South of France and then on to Rome.

The only persons meeting him were Theodore Rousseau, Assistant Director of the Guaranty Trust Company in Paris, who is a personal friend of the Secretary, and the American Consul at Cherbourg, Samuel Hamilton Wiley. There were no French officials to greet the Secretary, it being explained that Mr. Mellon wished to arrive as an ordinary tourist.

The Secretary was especially desirous of having it known that he was in Europe on a private visit. To a group of French journalists who journeyed from Paris in the hopes of eliciting some favorable remarks upon the French desire for a safeguard clause, Mr. Mellon was polite but most reticent.

During the voyage Mr. Mellon was frequently in the company of J. P. Morgan and Charles Steele, one of the partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. Both Mr. Morgan and Mr. Steele went on to Southampton. They have important engagements in London, and later on it is probable that they will confer with Montagu Norman, the Governor of the Bank of England, and Benjamin Strong, the Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. It is not improbable that Mr. Mellon will see Mr. Norman and Mr. Strong in the course of the next few weeks.

Those familiar with the views of J. P. Morgan & Co., as well as the attitude generally of American financiers toward the present situation in France, assert that the present political situation in France makes the question of American aid almost impossible. It is true that hopes have been revived considerably over the prospects of a strong Poincaré Coalition Government, but even that is handicapped, it is said, unless the Franco-American debt agreement is ratified.

M. Poincaré's open hostility to the accord is regretted in American financial circles. The firm attitude of President Coolidge, who recently reiterated that there would be no aid for France before the ratification of the debt accord, would make such assistance as America could render almost out of the question, even if the financiers did not agree with the President's edict.

One view expressed today was that France might be brought around to accept the debt agreement with an implied safeguard or transfer clause of some sort. Then, it was added, France would be most fortunate in having in Europe at the same moment such a formidable array of American financial talent as Mr. Mellon, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Strong, Mr. Steele and S. Parker Gilbert.

It is not at all impossible to envisage a financial conference should the French situation clarify with the acceptance of the debt arrangement by a strong Government headed by M. Poincaré or some other powerful leader.

'FIGHTING JEWELER' KILLED ONE GUNMAN

He Shot Criminal Left by Band, Autopsy Shows—Auto Thought to Be Robbers' Is Found.

Autopsies performed yesterday by Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, Deputy Medical Examiner, on the bodies of Aaron Rodack, Washington Heights jeweler, and Peter Baranowski, gunman, indicated that Baranowski was a victim of the pistol used by the jeweler on Thursday morning when Rodack drove off six gunmen who had attempted for the third time to hold up his establishment at 3,630 Broadway.

Rodack, kneeling on the sidewalk outside his place, wounded one gunman as he was about to join his confederates in the blue sedan automobile in which they fled. Rodack used a .45-calibre pistol, while the bullet which killed him a second after he shot the robber was of .38 calibre.

Dr. Gonzales said that Baranowski, who was found dying in West 163d Street, not far from the Rodack store, five hours after the attempted hold-up, was killed with a steel-jacketed bullet of the same calibre.

Detectives said that it was evident that Baranowski had been shot while in a crouching position and expressed the belief that it was the jeweler's bullet that killed him and not the bullet of a Bronx bootlegger, as Baronowski had told them in a deathbed statement at Columbus Hospital.

A witness had told the police on Thursday that he saw Baranowski being dumped out of a blue sedan at the spot where the gunman was found and that he notified the police immediately.

The automobile believed to have been used by the six robbers was found yesterday at First Avenue and St. Mark's Place, on the lower east side. It had been standing there for more than an hour when a policeman took possession of it at 12:45 P. M. It developed that the car had been stolen on July 10 from Nathan Berkowitz of 596 Montgomery Street, Brooklyn.

The police appeared to attach much importance to the place where the car was found in connection with the criminal past of Baranowski, who had a record of arrests as a robber and a gunman. It was understood that a careful canvass of First Avenue and St. Mark's Place was made by detectives to obtain a description of the person who had abandoned the car.

Sidney Freifeld, salesman for Rodack, who was shot by the gunmen in the store, was reported last night to be still in a precarious condition in Columbus Hospital.

WOULD COLONIZE HOKKAIDO

Japan May Spend $500,000,000 in 20 Years on 1,800,000 Farmers.

TOKIO, July 23 (AP).—Efforts to alleviate Japan's ever-present emigration problem by colonizing the northern Island of Hokkaido are again being renewed by the Government.

The Home Department has announced completion of a plan whereby it is hoped to locate 1,800,000 Japanese farmers on the broad lands of Hokkaido within the next twenty years. The cost of the project over this period is estimated at about 990,000,000 yen (nearly $500,000,000).

Colonization of this region has been a futile dream of Japan's for many years. Many inducements have been offered by various Ministries to persuade farmers to migrate to the northern islands. Up to a decade ago about 5,000 emigrated yearly, but few remained, and still fewer went to take the vacated places. The objection to life there is principally the rigorous climate, below zero weather being the rule much of the year.

VICTORY FOR THE CABINET

Many Other Measures in the Government's Program Are Also Passed by Deputies.

WARSAW, July 23.—Elated over its pacific accord with the National Diet, the Government today rushed all the measures agreed upon yesterday to a vote in the Sejm and, in addition, won a marked victory by receiving sanction for rule by presidential decree during recesses of the Diet.

The only remaining step is the passage by the Senate of the measures, and there is practically no opposition in that body. The new program will be put into effect within a week at the latest.

These rights for the President, summarily dropped in Tuesday's vote on the approval of the Government's program, but confidently reintroduced today, gained the favor of Deputies, including the Jews and the German minorities.

While they are limited to certain occasions, the President will also receive the right to dissolve the Sejm and to call new elections within ninety days upon the failure of any single Government issue.

The right to rule by decree, won over the Socialist and Slavonic minorities, caused surprise by reason of the sudden exhibit of strength by the Government.

The intimate associates of Marshal Pilsudski, who saw him in great good humor today, declared he talked freely about the progress of the Government's program especially concerning the presidential powers. The report is taken to indicate he is pleased with the results of an almost closed parliamentary battle.

If his attitude is truly reflected, the prospect of any new revolutions in the near future are obviated and the Government will be able to carry out its Eastern Europe peace plan.

SCHWARTZMAN DENIES BRIBING DRY AGENT

Paid Grill $2,500, He Says, "in the Belief It Was for 'Ohio Governor's' Campaign Fund."

Theodore Schwartzman, who with Herman I. Goldman and the Herman Chemical Company of Brooklyn is on trial for bribery and violation of the prohibition law, told Federal Judge Edwin R. Holmes and a jury yesterday that he had given Saul Grill, a former prohibition agent, $2,500 in 1923 because Grill had said he was soliciting contributions for "the campaign fund for the Governor of Ohio."

Schwartzman, a Brooklyn attorney and partner of Goldman in the chemical company, denied he had ever bribed or attempted to bribe any Government agent. He testified that Grill had told him all companies holding alcohol permits were expected to contribute to the campaign fund, and that $5,000 was expected from the company in which he was a partner.

On Wednesday Pat Roche, an agent of the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Department, testified that Schwartzman had paid him $5,000 bribe money which he had promptly turned over to his superior, Harry Greenfield.

Schwartzman said yesterday that he went to the Pennsylvania Hotel room in good faith and with no idea of trying to bribe anybody. In Room 1,231, he added, he found Grill, a man named Dunnigan, and Roche. He testified that Grill had told him around $80,000 had been collected from companies holding alcohol permits and that prohibition agents were doing the collecting.

Grill, since discharged, was known as the greatest collector of bribe money employed by the prohibition department. He was said to have turned in not less than $200,000 paid him in alleged bribes. The trial will be resumed on Monday.

BELGRADE, July 23.—Another wave of high water, coming down the Danube Mountains, struck the hapless Backsa district so suddenly last night that several men are reported drowned in the villages of Bukin, Karavukovo and Plavna, where the damage is greatest.

The floods have stopped in the big town of Vukovar, a part of which is inundated, and the citizens are fearful of an outbreak of epidemics.

The Danube has overflown its lower banks for miles, but most of the villages were evacuated before the new flood came.

The necessity of getting out at once was so pressing that gendarmes sometimes had to force the departure of peasants, who were anxious to delay in order to save more of their movable property.

The Government is endeavoring to mitigate the misery of refugees. Private organizations also are appealing to public generosity for help.

News continues to reach Belgrade daily of torrential rains in some part of the country often accompanied by loss of lives.

BELGRADE, July 23 (AP).—The Ministry of Agriculture estimates the flood loss up to the present at $50,000,000.

The King is considering reconvening Parliament for the enactment of legislative measures to aid the people of the stricken regions. By direction of the Minister of War or army corps has been detailed for relief work.

The King and several of the Cabinet Ministers have visited the distressed areas.

BRESLAU FIGHTS TO STOP FEVER AFTER FLOOD

University Experts Help to Combat 300 Cases Due to Infectious Bites of Mosquitos.

BRESLAU, July 23.—The Hygienic Institute of Breslau University is reinforcing local and Federal health authorities in their battle to prevent the newly discovered swamp sickness, resulting from the floods in this region, from spreading to other inundated sections of Germany.

Meanwhile the victims of this epidemic continue to increase, the total of patients today being more than 300 here.

Professor Prausnitz, Director of the Hygienic Institute, commands the medical forces arrayed against the malady. His researches thus far have shown only that the high fever, severe pains in the head and legs and general exhaustion which are its symptoms result from infection carried into the human body by the bites of insects, notably the gnats or mosquitos bred in the marshy soil and flooded fields. The basic cause of the infection is an invisible virus, the nature of which has not yet been learned.

The disease, however, is not infectious in the sense that it can be transmitted from one human being to another.

Dr. Prausnitz reports that inasmuch as the conditions creating the epidemic, which is chiefly prevalent along the flooded banks of the Ohle River, a tributary of the Oder, are similar to those in other parts of Germany recently swept by floods, this swamp sickness may break out elsewhere in Germany at any time.

Unquestionably the Professor finds the infection is closely connected with floods. The disease resembles somewhat, but not exactly, the Japanese flood fever, Volhynian fever, the three-days fever in India, and the papa-tacci fever common along the marshy shores of the Adriatic. All these maladies exist in swamplands only and are spread by insects.

DZERZHINSKY'S ROLE IS DIFFICULT TO FILL

Two Important Posts He Held Will Probably Go to Two Men—Many Seek Places.

By WALTER DURANTY.

MOSCOW, July 23.—Officials are finding it difficult to select Felix Dzerzhinsky's successors as President of the Supreme Council, which controls industry, and as chief of "Gaypayoo," which includes the secret police and 100,000 well-trained "special protection troops."

Dzerzhinsky held both positions, but it is unlikely another will do so in the future. As a possible successor for the Gaypayoo post there is Unschlitt and also Minjinski, who already occupy prominent posts in that organization. Also M. Quibesheff, who is Commissar of Peasant Workers' Inspection and President of the Central Control Committee of the Communist Party.

Quibesheff is one of the strongest supporters of the Stalin Administration—a comparatively young man of pure Russian stock, born in the Siberian town of Tomsk in 1888.

But his duties already are important and multifarious, while both MM. Unschlitt and Minjinski are in poor health.

Minjinski was the first Finance Minister of the Soviet Republic in 1917. He was succeeded early in 1918 by Krestinsky, now Soviet Ambassador in Berlin. He was in charge of the Extraordinary Commission (the Cheka) in a section of the Ukraine, where he not only accomplished his task satisfactorily, but almost without bloodshed.

It is so generally accepted abroad that the Cheka is the bloodiest institution since the Spanish Inquisition that it is hard to believe that Minjinski won promotion by sparing human life. But such was the case, and it is a matter of record that Dzerzhinsky himself brought to trial and punishment one Cheka examiner who struck a prisoner in an inquiry.

To replace Dzerzhinsky as the controller of Soviet industry there is mentioned M. Rudzutak, now Commissioner of Railroads, of Lettish proletarian origin and who collaborated with Stalin in the formation of the Soviet Union three years ago, when he was chief of the Central Asian section of the Communist Party. Rudzutak is said to have great influence with the workers, but it is doubtful whether he is equal to the technical difficulties of the industrial problem.

Quite a different candidate is M. Miliutin, the economic and financial expert, who is technically competent but is lacking in authority with the workers.

Another is M. Piatakof, Dzerzhinsky's chief assistant, one of the ablest men in Russia, and highly educated.

But Piatakof was a member of the Trotskist "Opposition" two years ago, and reputed still to be not in entire agreement with the Administration policy.

Finally, they talk of Trotzky himself, whose personal popularity and influence is higher than ever. That he will be offered the post is doubtful; that he would accept it is uncertain. But there is no one so likely to make a success of this, the most difficult and the most important position in Russia today.

SLAIN IN BUCKET FIGHT.

Woman Is Shot by Another Near Pikeville, Ky.

PIKEVILLE, Ky., July 23 (AP).—A quarrel over a water bucket resulted in the shooting to death today of Mrs. Sarah Lester, 30, by Mrs. Armina Hall, 30, a cripple.

The bucket was left by Mrs. Hall at a well used by families across the river from here. She said Mrs. Lester had taken it.

When the tragedy occurred Mrs. Hall told a neighbor of Mrs. Lester's that she was en route here to swear out a warrant, charging Mrs. Lester with theft. Mrs. Lester heard the statement and came out of her house, and they quarreled at a distance.

Then Mrs. Lester, apparently incensed, started toward the road where Mrs. Hall stood, the latter warning her not to come. When Mrs. Lester was within ten or fifteen feet Mrs. Hall opened fire with a revolver that she was carrying wrapped in a handkerchief.

Mrs. Hall was arrested and brought here to await a preliminary hearing.

SHIP BOARD SEEKS PERMANENT POLICY

Committee Is Named to Study Every Phase of Merchant Marine Problems.

SENATE ORDERED INQUIRY

Report, Due Jan. 1, Is Expected to Help Settle Question of Best Operative System.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Under instruction of the Senate in the Jones resolution, passed during the closing days of last session, the Shipping Board is formulating comprehensive plans for building up and maintaining a merchant marine for commercial and national security, through private capital and ownership and through construction, operation and ownership by the Government. Its report must be submitted to the Senate not later than Jan. 1 next.

The board has created a merchant marine planning committee, consisting of Commissioners Edward C. Plummer, Chairman; Philip S. Teller and John H. Walsh, to carry out the intent of the Senate, and with this in view the committee already has put itself into touch with leaders in the varied fields of construction, operation, port facilities, insurance and all of the varied angles that go to make up the complete maritime picture. T. L. Madigan of the legal department has been assigned as counsel for the committee.

The committee has asked the Commerce, Treasury, State, Army and Navy Departments each to assign a representative to act with it in an advisory capacity. Varied interests throughout the country also will be asked for such data, information and suggestions as they feel may prove helpful.

The problem, admittedly of prime importance to the United States and of vital import to the future of the merchant marine, will be approached from two angles under the terms of the Jones resolution, one through operation by private capital and under private ownership, and the other through Government ownership and operation.

The task before the committee is to discover whether private capital can build and maintain a merchant marine without Government aid, the alternative being the adoption of a plan of Government ownership and operation instead of the present emergency policy, which is regarded as inadequate and unsatisfactory.

One of the most difficult problems for the committee will be to determine whether the higher cost of construction and operation in the United States over that of foreign competitors creates a differential that Yankee ingenuity, inventiveness and efficiency cannot overcome, and whether it is possible to devise a plan for private capital to compete with foreign shipping and overcome this differential.

Another phase of the committee's work will be a survey of all American shipping to determine what can be used in future and what new construction and replacements are necessary to make a well-balanced fleet. Still another subject for investigation will be existing port facilities and improvements necessary for more expeditious and economical handling of cargoes.

It is the expressed hope of the members of the Shipping Board that when the committee completes its work the board will have such a comprehensive compilation of facts and figures as to go a long way toward solving the problem when the completed plan is laid before Congress next January.

armistice borrowings was pointed to today as supporting this theory.

In any event, the Borah group now intends to take up the issue and make as much political capital as possible out of resistance to any agitation for a reconsideration of the British compact or any of the other debt settlements which would give consideration to more lenient terms.

In some quarters here it had been hoped that the bitter controversy would quickly subside, but today's developments indicate that the pot is to be kept boiling by a few of the Senators.

See Desertion of Capacity Theory.

The contention is made now, for instance, that by declaring that the pre-armistice debts of France, Belgium and Italy were cancelled by the terms of their debt agreements. Secretary Mellon has deserted the principle of "capacity to pay" and admitted that what the Debt Commission actually did in these instances was to devise a means by which pre-armistice borrowings were forgiven.

This position is being taken despite the fact that in his recent letter to Frederick W. Peabody, in which he opposed complete cancellation of the debts, Secretary Mellon contended that capacity to pay had been the guiding principle of all the debt settlements, adding that settlements based on this theory had reduced the total payments which would be made by all countries, except Great Britain, to such an extent that it amounted to cancellation of the portion of the total debt contracted with this country while the war actually was in progress.

The anti-American campaign which is being carried on in England by the Lord Rothermere newspapers is looked upon here as more of an attempt to discredit Premier Baldwin, who negotiated the British-American debt settlement, than an attack upon the American Government's position. The Rothermere interests, it is said, would like to see Winston Churchill become Premier.

BRITISH PAPERS RESENTFUL.

Discrimination on Debt Is Charged —Strachey Upholds Compact.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—The British Treasury's memorandum on the subject of Britain's debt to America is accepted here as a conclusive reply to what Chancelor of the Exchequer Churchill described in Commons as the "misconceptions" contained in the United States Treasury's statements.

One paper describes it as a "crushing rejoinder" to Secretary Mellon, especially to his assertion that "England borrowed a large proportion of the debt for purely commercial as distinguished from war purposes."

One statement in the British Treasury's memorandum upon which the papers dwell particularly is that which says in effect that Britain in all human probability would not have incurred the debt to the United States if she had not stood as a guarantor for the repayment of the cost of foods and ammunition supplied by America to her allies.

"Invidious Exception" Seen.

Mr. Mellon's statement that America virtually canceled her pre-armistice loans to all of the Allies except Britain provokes the following comment from The Daily Telegraph:

"Whether that is strictly accurate or not we need not inquire, but we are deeply concerned to know why if the other Allies were, in effect, not required to pay their pre-armistice loans so invidious an exception was made of Great Britain, whose war losses in 1917 and 1918 were stupendous.

"Why this discrimination against Great Britain? That is what has galled British public opinion. Why discriminate adversely—and every time—against the one country which, of all America's large debtors, met her obligations punctually and to the very last penny?

"The British taxpayer is not a little sore that he should be paying 6d., half apenny in the pound, in his income tax toward the American debt charge, while on Mr. Mellon's own statement the French and Italian debtors have been excused from paying their pre-armistice loans."

Then the paper concludes:

"Yet we would lay stress on the fact that Britain has not asked to be relieved from her bond and it is because she has shown herself ready to meet her obligations that her credit stands high in the world."

America's War Profits Brought Up.

The Star says: "It seems hard to us that after 'doing our bit' in the war that we alone should be singled out for usurious treatment at the hands of one we thought was an ally and now find was a creditor.

"Judged either by the mortality of soldiers, the trade of the war, the gold it drew, or by the wealth which its receding tide left behind, America is the only country which has actually profited by the war. There is no reason on her part for being proud and lecturing the rest of the world and the Treasury statement shows that there is no case for founding discriminatory treatment against us."

The Daily News, which is under the same proprietorship as The Star, adopts a more moderate tone. It seeks to set out without bias, first, what it believes to be the ordinary decent Englishman's view of the American debt question, and then that of the ordinary decent American. It concludes:

"What we think is more important at the moment is that Englishmen should realize that there are two cases. One of them may not be worth very much in the eyes of a just, practical man conversant with all of the facts. But it is still there and thousands of Americans believe it."

Strachey Says Britain Keeps Word.

The condemnation of the anti-American campaign over the debt question, contained in the Earl of Denbigh's letter to The London Times, receives the endorsement of J. St. Loe Strachey, former editor of The Spectator. Writing to The London Times, Mr. Strachey says that the tone of Lord Denbigh's letter exactly represents the best opinion as well as the majority opinion here and is also exactly consonant with the facts, and continues:

"I would ask all Americans who care for a good understanding between the two branches of the English-speaking world—and they number many millions—to remember that British opinion remains exactly where it was as to the repayment of our debt to the United States.

"We received the money. We gave our note of hand and under Mr. Baldwin's wise guidance we refused to argue with our creditors whether we ought or ought not make good our bond and our word.

"For a nation of honor there is no other way. The flouts and jeers of a tiny majority, infected by delirious ravings that reach us from across Channel, have not altered our determination not to talk about national honesty, but to practice it.

"Therefore, I ask the American and British people to disregard the babble of politicians, to ignore the verbal duels between the representatives of the two Treasuries and to judge us by our deeds."

Weeklies Deprecate Debt Attack.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—The weekly reviews of Liberal tendencies, The Economist, The New Statesman and The Nation, all deprecate the recent attacks on the United States in Parliament and the newspapers over the debt question.

"America's attitude," says The Economist, "certainly will not be improved by irritating comments from this side. Such comments merely have the effect of making the position more difficult for those who are genuine friends of Europe.

"We shall never get to a proper understanding of this difficult question until we realize that the war was not America's war in the same sense that it was Europe's war.

"Europe must never cease to be grateful for America's help, voluntarily given. If America ever agrees to modify or cancel the international debts, it will be as a further voluntary addition to her contribution toward the war."

The New Statesman says:

"Any one is entitled to entertain expectations that the United States will change its attitude and offer its debtors more generous terms. But it is much better that such expectations should not be voiced in Parliament. They merely irritate American opinion without serving any useful purpose."

The New Statesman thinks there is no reason whatever why America should revise her policy, and that "the dream of getting a favorable revision is to ask for the moon."

The Nation protests against abusing America as a "Shylock," and argues that the British Government itself has driven a hard bargain with France by taking advantage of her present predicament of needing foreign credits.

Morgan Silent on Reaching England.

tion to find the responsible leaders of tonight's demonstration. There was a slight disturbance at this corner late last night and the fact that the Communist Humanité was the only paper which reported it gave rise to the belief that this evening's disturbance was engineered by the Reds. However, this appears wrong and more likely the Fascisti are responsible.

Such doings as tonight's are not all the potentialities of trouble. There are fully 200,000 American tourists in France and if the American baiting of the past week keeps up there are bound to be more serious developments.

Today's Paris newspapers contain at least a dozen anti-American articles. If one tries to analyze them they appear illogical. One article accuses the Americans of buying up everything in sight and thus increasing the prices Frenchmen have to pay, whereas another calls Americans cheap people who spend no money.

However, there remains a widespread feeling against American t

The international situation in Europe has begun to undergo a change under the influence of the gradual drawing together of France and Germany. At present this rapprochement proceeds on a plane which is entirely that of common economic interests. But it is certain that political developments must follow in a not too distant future.

Political observers in constant touch with influential circles in Paris are struck with the complete change in the French attitude toward Germany. The revengeful spirit of the days of the Poincaré régime has evaporated. The question asked is not, Should France cooperate with Germany?—the cooperation is considered now inevitable and desirable—but the question is, How can the German offers of cooperation be used to the best advantage to strengthen the position of France in economic and political relations?

Germans Making the Advances.

We have used the expression "German offers" deliberately, because it is Germany which is making all the advances. She is the active partner in the game which is leading toward a closer and more friendly contact between the two great Continental powers. The attitude of France is that of a cool observer who waits for things to happen and does not lose for a moment the capacity of dispassionate judgment. It is Germany which displays the greater anxiety to establish more cordial relations.

Germany has ceased to be the passive object for the experiments of the victorious signatories of the Versailles Treaty. The entry into the League of Nations will finally re-establish her as a full member of the concert of Europe. Already she is preparing to claim the pristine advantages of her privileged position in the centre of the Continent. To show the growing energy and expansion of Germany's political effort and her confidence in her own powers we will adduce the following facts, until now more or less unknown to the public and which prove the German desire to play a part in the affairs of Europe and incidentally to further German interests wherever possible:

Offered to Aid Belgium.

1. About eight months ago the German Government, acting through the President of the Reichsbank, made a tentative offer to assist the Belgian Government in the latter's financial difficulties by helping to revalorize the milliards of worthless German marks left in Belgium by the army of occupation. The fact that this offer could not be entertained does not make it less interesting, all the more if we consider that the compensation demanded for Germany was the return of the territories of Eupen and Malmédy, lost to Belgium after the war.

2. In February last, through a member of the Secretariat of the League of Nations, the German Government took soundings in Warsaw in regard to the following offer: The Reichsbank would take a considerable share in a loan intended to set Polish finances on an absolutely solid basis. In return the Polish Government was asked to agree to a change in the state of affairs in the Corridor to Danzig.

The territory of the Free City of Danzig would have to be increased so as to include the most northern of the railway lines which connect, across the Corridor, Germany proper with Eastern Prussia. The German Government would surrender all its treaty rights for transit by other lines if its right of unrestricted passage through the enlarged territory of Danzig is admitted.

The Polish Government did not see its way to entertain the idea of any such alteration in the status of the Corridor. But that the offer was made in Warsaw with the knowledge of the German Government is confirmed by a conversation between Herr Schacht, the President of the Reichsbank, with Mr. Kemmerer, the chief American financial expert in Poland.

German Cash for a French Colony.

3. When Herr Schacht came to London immediately after the general strike he mentioned to Montagu Norman, the Governor of the Bank of England, a plan to supply the French Government with considerable funds by way of a national voluntary loan in Germany, having for its object the acquisition of one of the French colonies in West Africa. Mr. Norman is said to have turned down this suggestion by expressing the view that it would interfere with the transfer operations under the Dawes scheme.

4. There is reason to believe that a few weeks ago Herr Schacht renewed his offer of financial assistance to the French Government, and especially of support for stabilization of the franc. This time the counter-value to be received by Germany was said to be an immediate evacuation of the second and third zones in the Rhineland, which remain yet in allied occupation under the terms of the Versailles Treaty.

5. Several months ago, when the controversy between France and Italy on the subject of the exact meaning of the new Anglo-Italian agreement on spheres of influence in Abyssinia was at its height, the German Chargé d'Affaires in Paris indicated to the Quai d'Orsay the interest which his Government took in preserving the principle of the open door in that part of Africa and in the preservation of the rights of Abyssinia as a sovereign State and a member of the League of Nations.

Influence Over Neighbors Growing.

These few examples, chosen because until now they have more or less escaped public attention, do not exhaust the list which may be compiled of the perfectly legitimate efforts of the German Government to establish itself in all directions as the arbiter of affairs in Europe. The treaty with the Soviet Union may well come into this category, though its origin is in the onerous commitments which Germany believed herself obliged to accept when she saw herself ostracized at Genoa in 1921.

We have also the continuation of the German effort to encircle Czechoslovakia by a control of Austrian and an influence over Hungarian politics. Officially the Austrian Anschluss is ruled out for the time being. But in fact Vienna is in the power of Berlin, and Dr. Benes and his practically minded colleagues have no illusions on the true state of affairs there as well as in Budapest.

The Little Entente is obliged to count with Germany all the more, so—that of late French influence, or, rather, the faith in the power of French support, has been waning. When M. Briand, in Geneva last March, at the last moment, at the urgent demand of Sir Austen Chamberlain, refrained from pronouncing his flaming requisitory against the Hungarian Government for the famous banknote forgeries, he deeply antagonized the Czechs and other representatives of the States which are the neighbors of Hungary. We are certain that from that moment dates the marked increase of German influence at Prague. The same applies to Warsaw, where the Germans are showing a conciliatory spirit in the question of the new commercial treaty.

Out of Diplomatic Range.

The disconcerting thing about the present German activities in Europe is that they are placed to such a great extent in the plane of economics, and therefore are immune from diplomatic intervention by third parties. So the drawing together of France and Germany is proceeding entirely along the lines of mutual material interests.

The Rhineland is turning out to be an economic link between the two States. We mean both the German and the French territories in the basin of the great stream. Germany possesses the richest deposits of coal, and France has the greatest reserves of iron ore. Here is an argument for cooperation more powerful in modern times than consideration of racial hatred or than vindictive political ideas.

We see now how the great financial and industrial magnates of both countries come together and explore the ground for establishing a community of interests. Two months ago THE TIMES reported the formation of a joint Franco-German committee. In a secluded spot in Luxemburg the magnates of the Ruhr and the leaders of the Comité des Forges met and laid the foundation of an intellectual cooperation which must bring eventually the formation of a series of Franco-German syndicates, the weight of which will inevitably make itself felt in the markets of the world.

It is symptomatic of the spirit which prevailed at the meeting mentioned that the question of the Ruhr occupation was discussed with absolute detachment as a historical fact. It is alleged even that one of the principal Germans present declared objectively his admiration of the French methods of occupation, which "failed only because of the lack of British support."

How Great Britain Will Figure.

Here we come to the all-important question of the influence which the undoubted Franco-German drawing together may have on the relations of Great Britain with the rest of Europe. The British Government and British public opinion have consistently favored a general peaceful settlement in Europe and first of all, therefore, an improvement in the relations between Germany and France. From this point of view we cannot feel anything but satisfied at the growing friendliness between the German and French Governments and their peoples. But if the rapprochement is desirable and even inevitable it is yet necessary to be watchfully on the alert to see that suddenly it does not take a form harmful to British interests. For what is the exact position now?

We have explained endlessly that the entente with France is necessary to Great Britain and to the British Empire. This view will no doubt be taken by the spokesman of the mother country at the coming Imperial Conference in October. For the alternative—the impossible alternative—is for every adult Britisher to become a soldier or sailor and to quadruple our expenses for the fighting services. The entente with France is necessary, therefore, because, first of all, it is an essential element of defense for the heart of the empire, Great Britain herself, and, secondly, because French cooperation is invaluable to maintain the security of our principal line of communications with the outlying vital parts of the empire—the route through the Mediterranean.

A Loophole for Germany.

In view of the growing improvement of Franco-German relations it is most unfortunate that the Franco-British entente has been allowed to base itself all these years on the idea that the interest of France in the combination depends on her anxiety for the security of the Rhine frontier. If the Germans contrive to persuade the French, rightly or wrongly, that no danger menaces them from the east it becomes evident that under such conditions the interest of France in the entente with Great Britain will decrease in proportion.

It is useless to seek consolation in the idea that eventually the French will discover their mistake, for the harm will have been done already. British policy must take immediately into account the new state of affairs created in Europe by the drawing together of France and Germany. The base under the entente must be widened and consolidated. We can confidently say that the need for this is fully recognized by the Foreign Office, but the mistake is committed, as usual, of not taking the public into the confidence of the Government.

If, in a not too distant future, we discover Germany at the head of a great political combination on the Continent not wholly favorable to our economic interests the public must not be taken unawares. Far be it from us to accuse Germany of any nefarious plans. What she undertakes now is in the execution of her legitimate desire to regain the preponderant position in Europe which she enjoyed before the great war and which she lost for a time.

Let us look into the future, though prophets have never been at a premium and prophecies have the disagreeable propensity of bringing showers of stones. But there is a possible future which a responsible British statesmanship dare not leave without consideration.

German Ship Ready for the Seas.

Let us imagine Germany in the centre of Europe. She is like a good ship which has been sorely tried in the storm but has been able to reach port. The dockyard has refitted her and she is fast filling her bunkers. In a few days she will be ready to make for the high seas again. This is the position of Germany today: badly shattered by the war and social upheaval, but already on the road to internal peace and well-being, ready to play her part in the great game of world politics. The entry into the League will be like the hoisting of the Blue Peter: the ship is ready to sail.

At the side of Germany is France, connected by a network of economic combinations and dominated by the greater mass of her neighbor. Through Austria and Hungary the influence of Berlin extends southward, holding Czechoslovakia in a tight embrace and reaching once more toward Trieste and the warm sea. On the eastern border is Poland. We know already that Herr Stresemann and his colleagues do not want to crush Poland. They have a better plan than that of applying force. They are convinced that they can obtain more by the steady pressure of "common sense." Common sense in this case would be strengthened in a singular fashion by an agreement between Berlin and Paris for a joint participation in the economic and financial consolidation of the Polish State.

Britain Must Be Watchful.

If we consider this not impossible future combination in Europe we are obliged to admit that by its very mass it may become dangerous to British interests. British foreign policy, less than ever before, cannot afford to stand aloof from affairs in Europe. It must watch them always and intervene without hesitation whenever needful.

Two years ago a sensation was caused by the publication in the world's press of a document which purported to be a summary of the views of Sir Austen Chamberlain and of the Foreign Office on the question of international relations. The policy of isolation was condemned utterly and conclusive proof was furnished of the necessity for British foreign policy to keep in touch with the situation in Europe and to maintain first of all the entente with France.

The arguments of that splendid memorandum, like good wine, have improved with time and have become even more potent than when they were first put down on paper. We gladly say that now, as then, the principles of the memorandum are the guiding principles of British foreign policy. We have no quarrel with the policy. We cannot say the same about the methods employed to apply it.

It would be wrong to say that, like the Bourbons, professional diplomats are unable to learn by experience. They do learn. Suffice it to compare the treatment meted out to the press at the Foreign Office before and after the war. In the olden days a few favored journalists were permitted to hover in the courtyard and then to obtain from an office keeper a short statement of what "Lord Salisbury says," if he did say anything. Nowadays the Foreign Office is modernized to the extent that a crowd of journalists is admitted into the sacred building and allowed daily to have intercourse with a staff of clever and intelligent officials.

Policies Still Kept Hidden.

Alas, this is as far as modernization has gone. For there continues a desperate stand against the disclosure of principles of policy. We may obtain reliable information about the name of the official appointed to go to Washington for a bootlegging consultation, but it is well nigh impossible to obtain a definite hint on broad lines of policy. The desire to keep diplomatic activities secret is instinctive and overpowering. The general public does not know that even the signature of the historic Locarno treaties was made public only after several weeks of painful hesitation.

Foreign politics nowadays cannot be separated from domestic affairs. The latter have definitely been brought under democratic control, but people remain who oppose with might and main the extension of that control to international relations. Yet from the British point of view this is essentially desirable.

In the extremely delicate circumstances in which British diplomacy now finds itself placed in Europe it is not sufficient for the Government to know that it wants to do the right thing. It can really do it only when backed by an educated and prepared public opinion.

Let us recapitulate. We do not apprehend for a moment that Germany contemplates attacking; we do not think, equally, that France cares to lose the security of the British entente for a mess of German pottage. But we must beware of a possible divergence between political and economic interests and we must not allow a state of affairs to be created when the Franco-British entente will be found to repose on a mass of Franco-German economic syndicates.

IOWA REPUBLICANS HEARTEN COOLIDGE

Endorsing of Administration, So Soon After Corn Belt Censure, Cheers President.

ACTION BELIEVED TYPICAL President Sees No Danger of a Foreign Combination to Hurt Our Trade.

Special to The New York Times.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 23.—President Coolidge, in studying the anti-Republican revolt in the corn belt over the farm relief situation found much consolation in the fact that the Iowa Republican State Convention endorsed his Administration and did not threaten an attack on the tariff.

The attitude of advisers of the Administration is that while the corn belt may be upset by the refusal of the last Congress to enact radical farm relief legislation, the President is still so strong among the masses because of his tax and economy policies that the party leaders in the State which is the centre of the revolt found it unwise to condemn the Administration and only suggested that the tariff be modified to place agriculture on a parity with industry. In the opinion of many of these advisers President Coolidge has not lost his popularity, even in Iowa, despite the fact that he stubbornly resisted the demands of the Iowa members of Congress, who led the demand for the McNary-Haugen Price-Fixing Farm bill.

Nothing that has happened since he came to the mountains on his vacation has so impressed the President as the action of the Iowa Republican State Convention, taken within twenty-four hours after the Des Moines corn belt conference sharply assailed the Administration, naming three Cabinet members.

Coolidge Still Believed Popular.

This action, it is felt here, is symptomatic of public opinion in other sections, which while hostile to certain acts of Congress, apparently has not lost confidence in the President. The action of the Iowa Republican Convention is taken to show that, despite the activity of ex-Governor Lowden and Vice President Dawes in supporting the McNary-Haugen bill, President Coolidge still continues strong in the corn belt States, which are revolting against the Republican Party, but do not include him in the attacks.

It became known here today that the Administration is hopeful that the Interstate Commerce Commission will approve a reduction in the freight rates on grain as one means of solving the pressing farm problem. The commission may render a decision reducing the rate or grain for export, which would materially aid the farmers this Fall.

General Leonard Wood, Governor General of the Philippines, does not intend to resign, according to President Coolidge, who today read reports from Manila to the effect that he would retire. The President feels that there is not the slightest foundation for such reports.

Administration Behind Wood.

General Wood has no reason to leave his post so far as Administration support is concerned. Mr. Coolidge recognizes that he has done good work in a difficult situation. Before Colonel Carmi Thompson left for the islands the President made it clear that his inquiry was not undertaken because of any dissatisfaction with General Wood, but was made in the hope of finding means of aiding the Government economically and of making improvements in the law to strengthen the hands of the Governor General.

Reports that foreign countries intend forming a combination against the United States to crush its trade supremacy as the result of the debt settlements are not believed by President Coolidge. He does not know of any such movement. There is nothing apparent to the Administration along this line other than the natural competition in foreign trade.

In the opinion of Mr. Coolidge it would be more difficult now than before the war for foreign countries to capture the foreign trade of the United States. This country, he holds, is in better condition to take care of its trade than other countries and will probably continue to give better service than other countries.

Lacks Successor to Fenning.

President Coolidge announced today that he is having much trouble in finding a successor to Commissioner Fenning in the District of Columbia, whose resignation was demanded by the President two weeks ago and will become effective when his successor is selected. Because of attacks made upon the District Government in Congress capable men, it is said, do not wish to subject themselves to attack and will not accept the position.

Mrs. Coolidge spent half an hour today inspecting the camp of the fifty-three marines who are acting as guards at the Summer White House. The camp lies just outside of the White Pine Camp grounds. She was especially interested in the kitchen and the quality of food served to the guards and tasted it to be sure that it was good. She chatted with many of the marines. She left a large box of candy for the guards, who disregarded discipline to give her three cheers as she left.

BEN BERNIE INDIGNANT AT BRITISH EXCLUSION

May Protest Against Barring of His Orchestra When Whiteman's Is Admitted.

Indignant because his dance orchestra has been barred from England while Paul Whiteman's band has been admited, Ben Bernie is contemplating an appeal to the State Department in an endeavor to have the British decision reversed, it was announced yesterday.

Bernie was informed last Fall that the British Minister of Labor had forbidden his band to play in London, pursuant to a regulation made at the behest of British musicians. His protests and those of his American friend in London were of no avail.

"The contract covering Bernie's English appearances was made months ago," it was said yesterday at Bernie's office, 745 Seventh Avenue, "and the arrangements were the same as those made for Whiteman and his band."

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—The case of Ben Bernie parallels those of numerous American jazz musicians who have sought unsuccessfully to introduce their music styles into the British Isles.

The British Foreign Office, it is said here, apparently has made an agreement with native musicians to maintain a parity between home and foreign talent, in order to keep native talent lucratively employed.

GEN. NOBILE LECTURES BEFORE ENGINEERS

Discusses the Norge and the Polar Trip—Made Life Member in Aerial League.

General Umberto Nobile, who is sailing today for Italy on the steamer Conte Biancamano, gave an illustrated lecture on the technical details of the Norge and some of his experiences in the trip over the North Pole in the Engineering Societies' auditorium at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street last night. Dr. John W. Lieb, Vice President of the New York Edison Company, presided.

The lecture on the Norge, which General Nobile designed and constructed, was delivered before the metropolitan sections of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Society of Automotive Engineers and Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

The Italian Consul-General in New York, Emilio Axero, attended the lecture. The General's pet terrier, Titini, which accompanied him over the North Pole, was on the platform and slept during most of the program.

After the lecture Henry Woodhouse, President of the Aerial League of America, presented the General with a bound volume of editorials and cartoons on the polar expedition from the leading newspapers of this country.

The Reception Committee of the League that attended the presentation included Admiral C. M. Chester, who was a member of the board that passed on Admiral Peary's North Pole records; Charles H. Sabin, Stanley W. Eakin and Mr. Woodhouse.

2,000 MOROCCANS SUBMIT.

Progress in Pacifying Remote Districts Is Reported in Paris.

PARIS, July 23 (AP).—The work of restoring peace in the more remote districts of French Morocco is progressing rapidly, according to reports received by the Foreign Office. Dispatches received today told of the submission of 2,000 families and Chief Sidi Raho. The latter probably will be taken to a new district, where his power will be decreased.

The date of Abd-el Krim's voyage to Reunion Island, to which he has been exiled, has not yet been fixed. The voyage probably will not take place for several weeks, when special transportation will be furnished to the former Riffian leader and his family.

FINDS GREAT RICHES UNUSED BY FILIPINOS

Thompson Thinks Mindoro Will Become Real "Isle of Gold" if War on Malaria Succeeds.

IT HAS GOLD AND COAL BEDS

Governor Tells Coolidge Envoy Province Wants Independence Now —Speech Possibly Inspired.

ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP BUSTAMENTE (By Wireless to Batangas and Los Banos, P. I.), July 23.—The Bustamente stopped this afternoon at Calafan, capital of the island province of Mindoro, "the Isle of Gold," so that Colonel Carmi Thompson, who is investigating conditions in the Philippines for President Coolidge, could learn what the Filipinos are doing to develop the rich mineral and forest resources there. Calafan is twelve hours' sail from Manila.

Colonel Thompson found that pernicious malaria is the greatest obstacle to development of the resources, but Governor General Wood, through Major Hitchens of the Medical Corps, is working on a plan by which it is hoped to drive out the mosquitos within a year.

The islanders raise cocoanuts and rice and have unexploited deposits of gold and coal. They also produce ochre, used in mixing paint, and gum copal, the basis of a high-grade varnish much used in the United States. They seem to know little of the possibilities of these natural riches and, consequently, do little to develop a trade in them.

Governor Welcomes Thompson.

Christian Filipinos living on the coast buy the gum from the Mangyans, a pagan tribe living in the interior, who get it from the roots of trees in the jungle.

Colonel Thompson thinks that when the malaria curse is removed, Mindoro will in reality become the "Isle of Gold," its old Spanish name, though not necessarily through the production of gold itself.

The Thompson party after landing, drove from the old Spanish stone pier in modern American automobiles through a tropical downpour of rain up an avenue lined on both sides with cocoanut palms as tall as the Sixth Avenue elevated to the Spanish style Provincial Building.

Here Governor Navarro, speaking in Spanish and dressed in American clothes, welcomed Colonel Thompson and asserted that the whole province was in favor of immediate independence. The interpreter smiled knowingly when translating the Governor's speech. It is possible that the Governor got orders from the Manila politicos to talk independence.

The party then visited the Municipal President, corresponding to an American Mayor, who said that there had been only two crimes committed in Calafan since May. The visitors also dropped in at the high school, where they saw several hundred boys and girls, all well dressed with many of the girls in middy blouse costumes, studying English, history and science very seriously.

Struck by Eagerness to Learn.

Pictures of George Washington and Manuel Quezon hung side by side in the assembly room and there was also a framed copy of the Declaration of Independence on the wall.

During the visit to the school Colonel Thompson made three addresses, saying he thought the outstanding characteristic of the Filipinos was their desire for education, amounting almost to a passion. He advised the pupils to study agricultural science so they could help in the development of the Islands' natural resources. The students applauded him heartily.

The party visited the fishing village of Tingloy on the Island of Maricaban this morning. It is a primitive community, but has 100 children in a grade school trying hard to learn.

Colonel Thompson was impressed by the fact that many Filipino teachers speak poor English, so that the pupils learn the language with an accent despite the "Speak Good English" signs seen in the class rooms.

A villager presented a bolo, a wicked-looking Filipino knife to Colonel Thompson.

The Bustamente will arrive at Cullon, the leper colony, tomorrow.

The permit carried a stipulation that the stock could be sold only to stockholders of Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc.

THEFT DISCLOSES GOLD GERMAN FIRM HOARDED

Company Forgives Thieves, but Police Investigate — Concern Faces $248,000 Confiscation.

BERLIN, July 23.—Though the William Prym Company of Stollberg in the Rhineland is willing to allow the men who admit stealing 160,000 gold marks to keep their booty and to keep the whole affair secret, the police want the matter cleared up and the thieves punished.

The reason the company is willing to forget the huge sum stolen is because it was part of 1,400,000 marks in gold which the firm buried soon after the armistice.

Besides all these gold coins there was a quantity of money in British, French and American notes.

After carefully sealing up the coins and notes in lead cases, they were hidden in an old mineshaft. Later they were removed to a forest and buried there.

Only the trusted secretary of the firm, Herr Forester, and a department manager, besides members of the firm, knew of the existence of this fortune.

When the money was dug up last year, after being hidden for more than seven years, it was discovered that eight cases containing 160,000 gold marks were missing.

Forester and the manager, as well as the secretary, admitted their part in the theft, but the firm did not wish to prosecute on account of the embarrassing questions the tax collectors might ask. However, knowledge of the theft and the hoard leaked out and the police are investigating, with the result that the firm faces the likelihood that the authorities will seize the remainder of the hoarded gold.

TO STUDY AUTHORS' RIGHTS

Intellectual Commission Adopts Schedules for Promotions.

GENEVA, July 23.—The Subcommission on Arts and Letters of the International Commission for Intelectual Cooperation, which has ended its first session, has outlined an exhaustive series of studies of the interests and rights of authors and artists as well as for the promotion of literature and music.

Among the commission's proposals one to promote translation from the less well known tongues of works chosen from an annual list of the Commission for Intellectual Cooperation. A commission for international exchange of musical programs and for unification of diapasons is contemplated and the creation of an International Bureau of Museums for the development of better relations between museums and the promotion of gifts, loans and exchanges, as well as the exchange of photographic collections, also are planned.

After a long interchange of views the subcommission asked the Institute of Intellectual Cooperation to prepare a plan for model legislation and draft a convention for the protection of authors' rights. Preliminary studies will be centred about "the right of property," which will protect works of art and literature from mutilations and transformations without the consent of their creator, and the right of artists to remuneration on additional value acquired by their works.

For the first subject the institute will be asked to study all existing legislation and combine its best points. On the second, the institute will have to take French and Belgian laws as a model, as they are the only countries which at present permit artists to claim remuneration for works which they are forced to sell for a song and which later have been recognized as having greater value.

The subcommission decided also to charge the institute with the task of studying the possibility of organizing a congress of popular arts next year.

I. Nora in the Kings County Court, yesterday, on a charge of first degree grand larceny. Greenfield pleaded not guilty.

Supreme Court Justice McGoldrick yesterday denied an application by James N. Butterly, suing as a taxpayer, to restrain the President of the Borough of Manhattan from entering into a contract for repaving Avenue B. from Fourteenth to Eighteenth Street, under a resolution adopted June 22 by the Board of Estimate.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, July 24—On dit that there are no sharks roundabout New York waters. The "struck-by-lightning" swimming suits of the beach Adonis have scared them far out to sea. Colors are now by way of being toned down.

The really smart swimming suit is cut "pro" style with a plain white worsted shirt and blue flannel trunks. Pure wool. Non-shrinkable. Worn by men who do not strike stained-glass attitudes on the sand. Exclusive, but not expensive.

REVOLT AGAINST COATS IS STARTED IN BERLIN

Group of Men Demand Girlish Blouses of Fancy Design for Summer Wear.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 23.—Berlin is in the throes of a "revolution." A group of men resolute and daring have demanded the abandonment of the old rules of dress, so that men may enjoy the same privileges as women as regards simplicity of attire. Coats and vests must go during the sultry Summer weather, replaced by wide flowing blouse-shirts of fanciful design and color, they say.

Cases have been known where a Berliner removed his coat on account of the heat, but there is no instance recorded where he took off his vest except at bedtime. It was, therefore, a great shock for visitors at one of Berlin's uptown dance halls to see waiters and members of the jazz band in their shirtsleeves.

There was a still greater surprise when twenty male manikins dressed in these rather girlish blouses tripped lightly to the dance floor as the Charleston tune warmed up and interpreted the famous American dance each according to his own lights. Critics say the fashion show would have been passably good if the dancing had been omitted.

Last night's demonstration followed several weeks of an active campaign to break away from the time-honored customs in men's dress. Fate, however, seems to hang with the coats and vests, since the weather suddenly turned cooler and an overcoat show is more in keeping with the temperature. The representative of the blouse manufacturing firm managing the show failed to appear in the wares he is advertising, being dressed in the regulation tweeds.

68 ON WRECKED SHIP SAVED

Crew of Port Kembla Taken Aboard by the Maravi.

The sixty-eight members of the British steamer Port Kembla were rescued early yesterday morning and taken aboard the United Fruit Company's freighter Maravi, according to a brief radio message received at the company's offices at 17 Battery Place. The dispatch, which came from Captain D. W. McClellan of the Maravi, said the men were transferred without accident. His vessel is due to reach New York Monday afternoon.

The Port Kembla grounded on an exposed reef off the coast of Watling Island, near San Salvador, a week ago. Her twenty-five passengers were put ashore immediately, but the crew remained on board in the hope of saving the vessel. It was only when the heavy seas began to break her up that they decided to abandon her. At the time they sent out the S O S, which was intercepted by the Maravi, there was 18 feet of water in the hold. According to radio information the Port Kembla will be abandoned as a total loss.

MUSSOLINI ASSERTS ITALY MUST EXPAND

the United States and Fascist Italy that something more than good-will is needed for mutual understanding. In connection with such a basic matter as our condemnation of liberalism and democracy, Americans cannot arrive at a clear understanding without knowing our yesterdays as well as todays.

"Here I am afraid they have had little or no adequate guidance. Fascismo is a profoundly Italian phenomenon, intimately connected with our history, psychology and tradition and culminating in a long-complicated political evolution. Without accurate knowledge of sources, without marginalia and footnotes, no just analysis is possible.

Expression of Political Genius.

"Foreign journalists, failing to take the true historical perspective, have been deluded into following erroneous clews. For example, they have popularized the notion that the origin of Fascism can be found in the post-war period alone; that it is merely another of the numerous reactionary explosions directly due to the World War. These are ridiculous blind alleys. Fascismo is the expression of the political genius of our people, binding together in ideal form the Latin State lessons and traditions of two milleniums of history. The war awoke our souls from lethargy. It helped, but did not cause the birth of Fascismo.

"Italy had imposed upon her by false friends the idea that she was weak and doomed to permanent debility; that subjection to the insults of foreigners was a fatal necessity, she had bad doctors, caring more for fees than for the health of the patient. For generations these scoundrels kept dormant the will power of our people, allowing them to be the prey of stronger nations, the butt of the world's contempt.

"Fascismo has stepped in to prove that the past of so many woeful centuries is a lie. Italy is awake, healthy, thirsting for the power so long denied her. She is strong enough and ready to maintain herself against all enmies at home and abroad. We are committed to a war to the death against liberalism and democracy because these two foreign importations, badly digested, ill suited to our temperaments and at variance with our traditions, virtually have destroyed the moral fruits of our war for independence 'risorgimento' and have nearly succeeded in nullifying our victory against Austria in 1918.

Says Liberals Hurt Italy.

"Foreign invasions and occupations did not hurt Italy as much as Italian Liberal Democrats did. Foreigners could not crush our traditions, our vitality and our past glory. They merely postponed our self-realization. The Liberals did far worse. They inflicted moral prostration on the nation and left her in such wretched condition that the roots of national life were seriously menaced. The spirit of 'risorgimento' was crushed before it achieved its moral maturity. Spiritual unification, the creation of political morality, preparations for independence — all processes necessary for the nation's coming of age—were checked. Free Italy was kept crushed and enslaved.

"Italy added to them the vices of parliamentarism, worse than the rest of the brood put together. The Italian parliamentary system consisted of talking lengthily and doing nothing; proclaiming fine phrases and satisfying personal ambition, bureaucracy ensnared all movement and the executive power was practically non-existent. Even when the Italian nation won her great victories of the Piave, and Vittorio Venetto, the liberal government almost threw away the spiritual fruits of the victory. It did surrender the most material advantages."

Premier Mussolini believes that no international crisis brewing war exists, but that a grave internal and economic struggle, wracking the nations separately, is in progress. He has firm faith that Europe will emerge into a period of stability, but that sacrifices will be necessary.

Sees No Threat of War.

"Tell the people of America," he said, "that Europe is traversing a period of acute—most acute—crisis, but that I have firm faith that she will overcome her difficulties. Afterward, I am convinced, she will have a period of stabilization and peace.

"Make it clear, however, that the grave crisis of which I speak is not international, that it has nothing to do with the relations between nations and hence in no sense brings up the spectre of war," he added. "It is an internal crisis that is wracking the various nations separately, not their political lives, but their economic and social organizations. It is preeminently social. I am confident that the nations will solve it, but to do so all the people of Europe must use all their energy and must be prepared to make every sacrifice in the cause of peace and stability."

Asked whether Fascismo might be copied by other nations as a solution of their difficulties, he gave an eloquent outline of the philosophy of the movement which he is leading, Italy, he said, is creating "a new type of State." Among striking sentences in his exposition were the following:

"Liberty or death was a fine phrase, but cooperation or poverty is more accurate now. * * * Fascismo replaces individual sovereignty by State sovereignty, the nation for the individual. * * * Even the most ardent defenders of the Liberal-Democratic movement cannot be so blind as not to see its decay.

"Italy alone, among the great nations of Europe, is not torn by wasteful and dangerous political crises nor ruinous strikes and lockouts," he declared. "While other nations are trying to struggle along with a type of State organization obviously unfitted to present conditions—mending and patching as they go—we are marching unfalteringly toward a glorious future.

"The most significant fact is that our success is positive. We are not leaving problems for tomorrow, but are facing and solving them today."

EAST HAMPTON HAS GALA STREET FAIR

Summer Colony Helps Make Annual Event Best in the Resort's History.

VILLAGE GREEN IN GAY GARB

400 Women Run Booths—Circus Attractions Vie With Unique Voting Contests.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST HAMPTON, L. I., July 23.—The largest and most successful street fair ever held in East Hampton was staged on the village green today to raise funds for the Ladies' Village Improvement Society, which includes in its membership many of the Summer colony as well as all-year residents. The proceeds, which are expected to exceed the $7,000 of last year, will defray the expenses of taking care of the green and the beautiful old trees along the streets.

The executive committee in charge of the fair consisted of Mrs. George Ethridge, President of the society; Mrs. Nathan H. Dayton, Vice President; Mrs. Edward M. Gay, Secretary; Mrs. Jonathan Baker, Treasurer, and Mrs. George Hand, Mrs. Hamilton King and Mrs. Harry Hamlin.

Samuel Gregory, President of the village, and fellow-members of the Village Board were guests of the society at supper, which was served in an enclosure artistically decorated with garden flowers. Mrs. Edgar Hoagland was Chairman of the supper booth.

Gay Pennants on Tents.

The green was enclosed with a rope fence of orange, the society's color, and orange pennants flew from all the tents. The booths were draped with orange bunting and many were covered with leafy branches. At one of the largest, the farm booth, of which Mrs. Harry Hamlin and Mrs. Francis Newton were co-Chairmen, vegetables, jellies, bread and rolls were sold.

The Pet Dog Show had more than a hundred entries, many from nearby resorts. Mrs. Fred L. Bronnaugh and Mrs. William C. Morgan were in charge.

Miss Dorothy Battie and Mrs. Leonard Cox conducted a Charleston contest, winners of which received $5 gold pieces. They were assisted by four little girls, Madelein Bass, Elizabeth Cirro, Alice Whithead and Enid Simmonds, who danced and performed acrobatic feats between contests.

Give an Original Sketch.

Mrs. A. C. Vandiveer and Mrs. W. W. Livingston produced an original sketch, "The Little Old Lady From Lollipop Land." A vaudeville show, directed by Miss Maude Bouvier, included a Punch and Judy performance, a soft-shoe dance by Miss Janet Lee, a Hungarian dance by Miss Barbara Leslie, songs by Mrs. Phelan Beale and tricks by Mrs. Albert Gallatin's police dog.

Mrs. Norris W. Harkness had an attractive booth, where tea was served. Mrs. Joseph Osborne was Chairman of the candy booth; Mrs. George Hand, the cake booth; Mrs. Charles Taylor, ice cream; Mrs. Ogden Edwards, peanuts, and Mrs. Stephen Leonard, "hot dogs," while Mrs. James Zeveley presided at the punch bowl.

Mrs. Grantland Rice and Mrs. John Wheeler, disguised as pushcart vendors, turned doughnuts and chewing gum into cash.

Gypsy Camp Popular.

A Rumanian gypsy encampment, with its covered wagon and group of bright-colored tents, drew large crowds. Every one wanted to have his or her fortune told. Mrs. Winthrop Gardiner, Miss Irene Rossiter, Miss Harriet Kernan and Mrs. Edward Cocroft made the arrangements.

A feature was the booth of Parisian novelties brought over by Mrs. Robert Appleton. Most striking of all were the fabric dolls, replicas of characters from famous operas.

A popular attraction was the voting booth, in charge of Mrs. Alfred Leaman. Votes were cast fast and furiously for the most beloved minister, the best grandmother, the most beautiful girl and the best golfer.

Mrs. Louis De Laigle Munds, chairman of the perfume booth, had a fascinating array of powders. Mrs. Scott McLanahan was in charge of the flower booth.

Fun for the Children.

Sand piles and slides, a fish pond and grab bags were provided for the children. Mrs. Alfred Bell, Mrs. Henry Knox, Mrs. Percy Schenck and Mrs. Phelan Beale had charge.

Each chairman of the forty or more booths had a committee of about ten, so that there were at least four hundred East Hampton women working at the fair. Mrs. E. T. Dayton was the gatekeeper, Mrs. Charles Trippe was in charge of the archery booth and Miss Jean Leonard of ninepins, quoits, darts and bowls. Mrs. James Perot and Mrs. Harold Nichols sold gayly decorated boxes; Mrs. John Hutton, tip tables; Mrs. William Leslie, balloons; Mrs. George Flynn, cigarettes and Mrs. Harold O. Barker and Mrs. Clarence Alcott, toys. Mrs. Louis Connick was in charge of a wonderful floating island. Mrs. Bert Osborne was Chairman of the gift booth, Mrs. Lional Gardener had charge of the rummage sale, Mrs. C. W. Edwards sold household necessities and Norman Barnes managed the ponies ridden by the children.

There was much interest in six children's portraits made by Julian Lamar, proceeds from which were donated to the fair.

PAIR WED ON U. S. SHIP.

Capt. Van Beek Expects Court Will Sanction Such Events.

The last high-sea marriage which Captain Theodore Van Beek will perform as commander of the United States liner President Harding, unless the recent Shipping Board order instructing captains of their vessels not to officiate at marriages is withdrawn, took place on July 8 while the liner was en route from Plymouth to Southampton, according to information given out when that liner docked yesterday.

On that date Captain Van Beek married Carl Gade, a German, to Miss Jeanette Sellinger, also a German, on the deck of the liner. Gade, an archaeological student, is on his way to Greece, where he will be obliged to remain for some time, and his bride wished to be married under the American flag.

"Naturally, I will obey whatever orders I receive from the Shipping Board on this subject," said Captain Van Beek yesterday. "It is, however, my opinion that the Supreme Court will decide that sea marriages are valid."

DOCTOR DENIES HE HIT POLICEMAN WITH AUTO

Dr. Couney of Coney Island Says He Will Move on Patrolman —Paroled After Arrest.

Dr. Martin Couney, 54 years old, the oldest physician on Coney Island, who for years has conducted infant incubators there and at Atlantic City, was paroled yesterday afternoon by Magistrate Folwell in the Adams Street Court, in Brooklyn, on charges of disorderly conduct and striking Traffic Patrolman John Toolan with his automobile at Surf Avenue and West Fifth Street. The physician denied both charges, and said that he would apply this morning for a warrant for his accuser on an assault charge.

Dr. Couney, who lives at 3,723 Surf Avenue, Sea Gate, was returning to his infantorium at Stillwell and Surf Avenues, Coney Island, in his automobile. His head nurse, Miss Louise Recht, who had accompanied him to a patient in Manhattan, was in the car.

"I was driving west on Surf Avenue, when, at Fifth Street, the patrolman ordered me to turn into Fifth Street to the parking place in old Dreamland Park, in which Auditore and Shea recently were granted the privilege of parking cars by Park Commissioner Brown," said the doctor. "I told the patrolman that I was bound for my home further ahead in Sea Gate, but he told me to comply with his order.

"Then I said to him: 'I do not want to go to that parking place, and I shall not obey your order. You either can arrest me or give me a summons for declining to park my car there when I have my own garage in which to park it.' Then he took me to the Coney Island Station, where, after the patrolman had had a conference with Lieutenant Frank Lonergan, a charge of striking the patrolman with my car was lodged against me in addition to the disorderly conduct charge. My car never touched the patrolman at any time.

"The Lieutenant told me the bail would be $500. Miss Recht took my check and returned with the money from the Coney Island Bank in a few minutes, but the Lieutenant refused to accept the money as bail. Then, over my protest, I was hustled into a patrol wagon and carried ten miles to the Adams Street Court, although the Coney Island Court is right at the starting point.

"Humbert Savarese, former Republican Alderman in Coney Island, was in court when I was arraigned before Magistrate Folwell. At his request my hearing was adjourned until Aug. 1, and I was paroled in Mr. Savarese's custody. After this court proceeding is disposed of, I shall lodge a complaint with Police Commissioner McLaughlin against the patrolman and Lieutenant Lonergan."

DIVORCED WIFE SUES TO HALT THOMAS WILL

Elizabeth Thomas Seeks a Share in the Publisher's Estate for Her Young Son.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST PALM BEACH, July 23.—A few hours after the will of Edward Russell Thomas of New York was filed in Palm Beach County Court, Mrs. Elizabeth Finley Thomas, his divorced wife, entered a caveat restraining execution of the will because her young son was excluded from a direct share in an estate reputed to exceed $1,000,000.

The terms of the will make absolutely direct provision for the boy, Samuel Finley Thomas, who was supposed to receive part of the principal of a settlement amounting to $500,000. The settlement was made in Palm Beach in 1924. If the will is allowed, the boy would receive one-third of an unestimated trust fund in the event of the remarriage of Lucy Cotton Thomas, the widow to whom Thomas was married in October, 1924. In the event of her death the child by his second marriage would receive half the trust fund principal.

Under the terms of the will Mr. Thomas's mother will receive property sufficient to net her an income of $25,000 annually. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Adelaide Wisby Cotton, will get property to give her an annual income of $9,000. Harry Read of Palm Beach receives the only direct bequest amounting to $10,000. Lucy Cotton Thomas, his widow, will receive the remainder of the estate in trust, to be paid in quarterly instalments. If she remarries she will get one-third of the trust fund, while the remaining two-thirds will be divided equally between her daughter, Lucy Cotton Thomas, and the son of his second wife, Samuel Finley Thomas.

The late Edward R. Thomas, noted sportsman and one of the owners of The New York Morning Telegraph, died in the Harbor Sanitarium, 667 Madison Avenue, on July 6. He was 52 years old.

Mr. Thomas was married three times. His first wife was Linda Lee, daughter of a Louisville banker. At the time of the marriage in 1901 she was known as one of the country's most beautiful women. She divorced him in 1912, and on the day she obtained her final decree Mr. Thomas married Elizabeth Finley, daughter of Mrs. Henry Finley of New York.

The ceremony took place in the drawing room of Land's End, the Newport residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom.

One child was born to the couple, Samuel Finley Thomas, now 14 years old.

The first public inkling of the rift in Mr. Thomas's second matrimonial venture came in October, 1923, when Mrs. Thomas served her husband with a summons in a separation suit as he was leaving the Hotel Langwell.

The second Mrs. Thomas eventually took her case to Palm Beach, where they had a Winter home, and obtained a divorce there in the Summer of 1924, after, it was reported, Mr. Thomas had settled several hundred thousand dollars on her.

In October of that year Mr. Thomas was married in Paris to Lucy Cotton, formerly of Houston, Texas, an actress who played in New York in "Turn to the Right" and "Up in Mabel's Room." A daughter was born to the couple in 1925.

INDIANS ADOPT GUSTAF; MAKE HIM 'BIG CHIEF'

Prince's Arapahoe Name Is Lone Bear—Royal Couple 'Act' in Movies.

LOS ANGELES, July 23 (AP).—Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, Crown Princess Louise and the royal entourage were "in the movies" today.

They visited three prominent studios, "acted" in several camera scenes, "shot" some scenes themselves, witnessed the making of thrillers, tragedy and comedy and got the biggest laugh of the day when they were caught in a misdirected movie rainstorm.

The first studio visited was that of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer organization at Culver City. As they entered the grounds they were saluted by the firing of twenty-one guns and pased through files of "soldiers" and Indians who were making a new photoplay.

Here the Prince was adopted into the Arapahoe Indian tribe as a "Big Chief," and was named the Arapahoe equivalent for Lone Bear. He is now entitled to sit in the tribal council, which is headed by Chief Standing Bear, who conducted the ceremony.

After luncheon the visitors proceeded to the Famous Players-Lasky studios, where they appeared before the camera and then ground the cranks of the cinema machines.

The final studio visited was that of the Warner Brothers, and tonight the royal party was entertained at dinner at the San Marino home of Henry E. Huntington, after which they attended a symphony concert in the Hollywood Bowl.

DINERS' HASTE SPOILS COOKING, SAYS KNECHT

Development of Taste Difficult With Unworthy Clientele, He Tells French Chefs.

There are in American hotels many French chefs capable of producing dishes equal to any served in the best Parisian restaurants, but the hurried American public, lacking appreciation, rebels at the leisurely service of the viands which alone can make of good cooking an art. This was the criticism leveled at American hotels by Dr. Marcel Knecht, owner of the French newspaper Le Matin, who was chief guest yesterday at a luncheon given in the Hotel Ambassador by three of the associations of French chefs in New York.

"You must develop a demand and a taste for good cooking," said Dr. Knecht, "although you will find the task a difficult one, due to an unworthy clientele. There is too much carelessness in the service of the dishes, which, when they leave the kitchen, are of excellent quality. You must combat, too, the American habit of having several dishes served together, instead of separately. The head waiters, too, take little interest in informing the clients which dishes are especially good. One has to take a chance in ordering."

The following decorations were bestowed by M. Mongendre, French Consul General, on the following chefs and other hotel men: Medaille d'Or d'Hygiène Publique, Charles Scotto, President of the Vatel Club of New York and chef of the Hotel Ambassador; Medaille d'Argent d'Hygiène Publique, Theodore Lamanna, President of the Chef de Cuisine Association; Charles Champion, President Philanthropic Culinary Society; Charles Sicault, chef of the Yale Club, and Alfred Hartman, proprietor of the Colony Rest; Medaille de Bronze d'Hygiène Publique, Charles Faissole, maitre d'hotel of the Ambassador and owner of The Brook at Saratoga Springs; Felix Bondoit, assistant chef at the Ambassador; Jean Massaroni, Henri Cassaucau, Etienne Allio, Gaston Thierry and Louis Sérés.

Among the forty-four guests were Thomas D. Green, President of the American Hotel Association; George W. Sweeny, Vice President of the Hotel Commodore; E. M. Statler, President of the Statler Hotels, and Charles E. Gehring, Vice President of the Hotel Ansonia.

LAZZERI HITS 13TH HOMER

Gehrig and Paschal Get Triples—Hank Severeid Shines at Bat and Behind It.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Despite the heroic efforts of Mr. Collins's best pitcher, Ted Lyons, the Yankees won their third straight from the White Sox yesterday, making it three out of four as far as the series has gone.

The Yankees wheeled up their long-range batteries and fired volleys all over the landscape. Tony Lazzeri whaled a home run—his thirteenth of the season—into the right-field bleachers. Lou Gehrig and Ben Paschal paraded a pair of tidy triples, Gehrig and Hank Severeid spanked a two-bagger apiece and the whole team managed to stagger in with thirteen bingles. The score was 11 to 3.

The unreasonable failure of the Yanks to crack as advertised is giving the other American League clubs a severe pain. The Red Sox and Browns don't care, of course, but the Indians and Athletics are annoyed. The Yanks now own an eight-game lead over Cleveland and a ten-game margin over the gentle Quakers.

Severeid Performs Well.

Henry Severeid, our new catcher, did not make the trip from Washington merely for his health. Hank came up here to catch. He dusted off the stains of travel, jumped right into first-line duty, made three hits, one a double, and caught a capital game for Urban Shocker.

The game was just a bed of roses for Shocker. For the second time in a week the Yanks gave their highly efficient spitballer plenty of runs to play with. At the end of the fifth he had a seven-run lead. So Urban turned off the gas and coasted the rest of the way. Although not under pressure he held the Sox down to eight hits.

Beating Lyons was beating a good pitcher, but the Baylor University lad proved to be unexpectedly easy for the Yanks. Long hits at critical moments ruined him.

The Yanks, already two runs ahead, scored five more in the fifth. Lazzeri's homer spilled the beans and Severeid's double brought Milton Steengrafe to the scene on the gallop.

Yanks Sail Right In.

The glad activities got under way in the first inning when Combs singled, took third on Mostil's fumble and scored on Koenig's fly. Ruth walked and galloped the rest of the way when Paschal tripled to right centre. Lazzeri shot a double to right and scored Ben.

Mostil's single, an out, and Collins's hit restored a run to Chicago in the third, but the Yanks retrieved the unit in their half on Gehring's two-bagger and Ruth's one-bagger.

The Sox grasped another marker in the fourth through a fumble by Paschal. Sheeley singled, went to second on Harris's blow and to third on Paschal's bobble. The big first baseman scored during a double play.

In the fifth the game became as loose as ashes. Koenig singled to Collins and promenaded home on Gehrig's three-bagger to left centre. Ruth drew a complimentary, then Paschal forced Gehrig at the plate, Hunnefield to Grabowski.

Lazzeri Pounds One Out.

At this not untimely moment Lazzeri found the range and laced a homer into the right-field bleachers, two hands scoring ahead of the Italian. Lyons walked Gazella.

On a perfect hit and run Severeid lined a double to left centre and Gazella, with plenty of headway, footed it over the plate. Steengrafe occupied the mound after this mighty episode.

An error by Morehart in the sixth, followed by Gehrig's single, a walk to Ruth and a fielder's choice, enriched the Yanks by another run. Severeid singled in the seventh, was sacrificed to second and scored on Koenig's hit.

BROWNS WIN IN TENTH, 6-4.

Two-Run Rally Makes It Four Straight From the Red Sox.

BOSTON, July 23 (AP).—The second overtime game in as many days proved costly to the Red Sox when St. Louis pushed across two runs in the tenth inning to defeat Boston, 6 to 4, here today. It was the Browns' fourth straight win here.

Miller's single, followed by a triple by McManus and Schang's sacrifice, pushed across the winning runs after a Red Sox rally had tied the score in the last of the ninth.

RAIN HALTS ROBINS; PLAY TWICE TODAY

Flock Must Win Both From Pirates to Break Even on Tour of the West.

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 23.—The Robins will have to win both games of tomorrow's double header against the Pittsburgh Pirates in order to break even on their Western trip, which will come to an end with the two-time attraction.

The club has won seven games and lost nine to the Western foemen to date and an even break would be highly satisfactory to the followers of the Flatbush Flock. The Robins won two out of five games in Chicago, split even in St. Louis and Cincinnati, where four-game series were played, and have won one of the first three games here.

The double-header tomorrow was necessitated by a downfall of rain here today that left the diamond wet and muddy, but the atmosphere greatly improved. The storm not only washed away the ball game, which was regrettable, but it also carried off the hot spell that has followed the Robins for a week. That was very satisfactory.

The club returns to Brooklyn on Sunday and will bring the Pirates with them.

ROOT WINS FOR CUBS.

Beats Phillies, 5-3, and Registers Thirteenth Victory of Season.

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs turned the tables on the Phillies today by bunching hits in three innings off Wayland Dean and winning the second game of the series, 5 to 3. Charley Root pitched a steady game and registered his thirteenth victory of the season. Huber, the Phillies third baseman, was spiked in the side and had to retire in the fourth inning.

SHERDEL HUMBLES THE GIANTS AGAIN

Cardinal Twirler Sets Down McGrawmen for Third Time This Season—Score, 6-1.

McQUILLAN HIT FREELY

St. Louis Gets Off to Early Start, Southworth Scoring Once and Driving In Three Runs.

By IK SHUMAN.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, July 23.—Bill Sherdel, the loose-jointed left-hander of the Cardinals, apparently intends to make it his habit as well as his business to beat our Giants.

He did it again at Sportsmens Park here today, aided, of course, by Cardinal batsmen, who were help a-plenty in the 6-to-1 victory.

Bill was never in trouble. Early in the game he got a safe lead on timely clouting by the heads of the batting order off Hughie McQuillan, the Giants' best bet. Except for the sixth inning, when the Giants scored their lone run after two men were down off a double by Lindstrom, followed by a single by Meusel, he never even permitted the Giants to make more than the semblance of a threat. In no inning other than in that sixth did he allow the Giants to get more than one hit.

Usually he allowed that after two men were out, and, save for that same sixth inning, not a single Giant got as far as second base.

Helped by Two Double Plays.

That was real pitching. The Cardinals had very little to do in the way of fielding. To be sure, there were two double plays in which Rogers Hornsby participated, but neither was what could be called a difficult chance, wherefore most of the credit for the victory goes rightly to Bill, who now has beaten the Giants three times this season.

Meanwhile Bill's teammates were pounding McQuillan often. Hughie did not get the sterling play the Giants usually give him, but, even so, the Cards won by bunching hits off him-in a manner no one can alibi. Southworth, ex-Giant, scored one run and drove in three others.

McQuillan suffered some hard luck when the Cardinals scored their first run in the opening inding. Blades reached first on a scratch to Jackson. Douthit was called out on strikes, Lindstorm fielded badly on a hot one by Hornsby, but he had plenty of time to throw to second to start a double play. He threw badly, and both men were safe. Next, Bottomley grounded to Frisch, whose throw pulled Kelly off the bag and filled the bases. Southworth was thrown out by Frisch at first, but Blades scored.

Three Runs in a Bunch.

The next runs, three of them made by the Cardinals, came in the third on clean hitting. Douthit starting with a single to right after one was down.

Hornsby lifted a fly to Young for the second out, and then Bottomly singled and Southworth and Lester Bell doubled in the order named to score Douthit, Bottomley and Southworth.

Hornsby, whose injured right eye was sufficiently recovered to permit him to play, got his first hit in eight times at bat during the present series and contributed two runs in the eighth to the Cardinals.

Douthit singled through Lindstrom. Hornsby lined through Lindstrom, the third baseman getting his hands on both drives, but finding them too hot to handle. Douthit took third on Rogers's drive. Bottomley lined out to Jackson. Then Southworth singled to centre, scoring Douthit, and Hornsby scored from third on Lester Bell's sacrifice fly to centre.

Propose a Test Game in Philadelphia In Move to Establish Sunday Baseball

PHILADELPHIA, July 23 (AP).—Major league baseball on Sunday in Philadelphia is a possibility in the near future, Charles G. Gartling, attorney for the Philadelphia American League club, said today that he was considering the legal phases and that a test game was among the possibilities in two or three weeks.

The fact that Sunday baseball was under consideration became prematurely known through a remark dropped in court yesterday at the hearing on the application for an injunction to restrain the Sesquicentennial Exposition from operating on Sunday.

Mr. Gartling said today that there has been a demand for Sunday baseball in Philadelphia and pointed to the fact that it is played in many Pennsylvania cities on Sunday.

Other amusements are permitted to run on Sunday without interferences or at most on payment of a small fine, said John B. Shibe, Vice President of the Athletics. "Baseball should not be discriminated against," he said.

President W. F. Baker of the Philadelphia Nationals said he favored Sunday baseball but would not attempt to play on that day in this city unless it could be done legally and not against public sentiment.

SKIDDING MACKMEN DROP 7TH IN ROW

Collapse in the Field and Allow the Indians to Romp Off With Game, 8-5.

PHILADELPHIA, July 23 (AP).—The Athletics' slump continued unabated today when they dropped their seventh straight by losing to the Cleveland Indians, 8 to 5.

The Mackmen went to pieces in the field and kindly scoring charged them with only five errors. Al Simmons hit a home run for the Athletics in the first inning with two on base.

ROCHESTED, N. Y., July 23 (AP).—Al Mamaux hurled the Newark Bears to victory over Rochester in the final game of the series here today, 8 to 1, turning in his eleventh triumph of the season. The Bears drove Karpp off the mound in the second inning after scoring seven runs in two frames.

Horne took up the pitching and blanked the Bruins until the ninth, when Hawks's single and Fonseca's triple scored the final tally. The Bears won the series, three games out of four.

TIGERS GET 19 HITS, BEAT SENATORS, 9-6

Bunch Safeties in Two Innings for Eight Runs—Cobb Clashes With Umpires and a Fan.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Detroit pounded Washington pitchers for nineteen hits and won the fourth game of the series from the Senators today, 9 to 6.

The Tigers massed their attack in two innings, putting ocer four runs in each.

The game lasted two hours and forty minutes, Manager Ty Cobb taking up much of the time in an argument with Umpires McGowan and Connolly over a balk by Pitcher Collins, and again when he endeavored to have a spectator removed from the stands. Cobb said the fan had been reviling him. The police made no arrests.

Crusader Is Favored to Beat Carlaris in $25,000 Cincinnati Derby Today

CARLARIS RACES CRUSADER TODAY

California Crack to Clash With Man o' War's Son in $25,000 Cincinnati Derby.

EASTERN STAR 6-5 CHOICE

Coast Horse Quoted at Odds of 2½ to 1—Nine Entered in Coney Island Turf Feature.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, July 23.—The race of the year among the three-year-olds is the prediction of horsemen gathered here on the eve of the second running of the Cincinnati Derby. The event will be at a mile and a quarter, will carry $25,000 in added money, and will be run as the sixth race of a card of eight offered for the third day of the Summer meeting of the Coney Island Jockey Club.

While it may not provide the tremendous thrill of the Dwyer or the Suburban, or a number of the other great events on the New York courses during the Spring and early Summer, it will be an event of great importance and of widespread interest if for no other reason than it will bring in contact, for the first time, the Coffroth Handicap winner, Carlaris, and some of the good ones of the East. It also may serve definitely to place the star of the Chula Vista Stable in the ranks of the three-year-olds of the year.

Nine have been named through the entry box today, but it is by no means certain that all will go to the post. Several are definitely outclassed by Crusader, Display, Carlaris and Boot to Boot, and it is possible that not more than six or seven will parade when the bugle calls tomorrow afternoon. At that hour the largest gathering that has ever surged within the gates of the new and picturesque Coney Island park is to be packed in the stands that overlook the reaches of the Ohio River and face the verdant Kentucky hills opposite.

Great Throng Expected.

All Ohio and Kentucky will be on hand and a considerable New York delegation is expected to get a line on the wonder horse of California last Winter and Crusader, the son of the wonder horse of all time in American racing annals. On the eve of this great turf battle Crusader is favored at odds of 6 to 5, with Carlaris at 2½ to 1.

Crusader is a known quantity among horsemen the country over and the winner of the Brooklyn Handicap, the Belmont and Dwyer Stakes will certainly face the barrier a strong favorite. It may be that the best the mutuels will pay on him if he is a winner will be even money. Carlaris would have been far more popular had it not been for his stunning defeat in the Raceland Derby a week ago.

Carlaris was unloaded at the course this morning in first-class condition. W. T. (Fatty) Anderson and Fred Kraft, his trainer, said the colt was ready to measure strides with the best they could bring against him. Carlaris had his final workout for tomorrow's race before leaving Raceland and will not be asked to do anything more until he goes to the post.

"My colt is all right," said his owner this afternoon. "I'm not making any predictions this time. I guess I said too much before his last race and I got a good trimming. I believe now, as I did then, that the colt was short and he needed that race to bring him to his best form. I am just as confident as I was then, but this time I am going to do my predicting after the race."

Crusader is Ready.

"Crusader is ready for his race," said the tall and somewhat taciturn George Conway, trainer for the Glen Riddle Farm. He is not given to prophecy when his charges are concerned and prefers to let works speak for themselves. Tae son of Man o' War and Star Fancy performed to the satisfaction of all interested in his final work for the Derby on Thursday when he stepped the mile and a quarter easily with his weight up in 2:09 2-5.

The big fellow was anxious to run, but was under stout restraint. The fractional times for the work were as follows: 0:26; 0:52 1-5; 1:17 4-5; 1:43 3-5; 2:09 2-5.

Walter J. Salmon will give Display another chance to prove himself. The colt worked yesterday for the race in 2:04 2-5. He went the mile under a light drive in 1:38 4-5, but was under a strong drive during the final quarter. Edgar Barnes will have the mount and arrived late this afternoon with Earl Sande, who will pilot Crusader. L. Schaeffer came over from Washington Park to ride Carlaris.

Alfred Johnson will have the leg up on Boot to Boot, which perforce will be the representative of the Idle Hour Farm stable. Colonel Edward R. Bradley arrived from New York this morning to see his colt perform. On the train last night, Colonel Bradley said that he was not any too confident of victory.

It was a great disappointment to the master of Idle Hour that Bagenbaggage went wrong and that Trainer Hurley was obliged to substitute Boot to Boot.

"Bagenbaggage is a fifteen-pound better colt than Boot to Boot and I had hoped that he would have a chance to meet Crusader and Display in the Cincinnati Derby," he said. "Of course I would have preferred Bubbling Over as a starter."

Colt Through for Year.

Colonel Bradley said last night that Bubbling Over probably will not race again this year. He added, however, that all he could do was to await the result of the tendon trouble which developed during his training at Saratoga. He said the colt has not been completely stopped in his training and is galloping lightly, but indications are that his three-year-old career is ended.

Four colts—Crusader, Carlaris, Display and Boot to Boot—represent the best of the field in tomorrow's derby, which will net the winner $20,500 if all go to the post. There may be some support for W. C. Baxter's Malcolm B. Jr., conquerer of Carlaris in the Raceland Derby, but he is certain to be considerable of a long shot chance.

The Park View stable's improved Rhinock will command respect in many quarters. He ran fourth in the Kentucky Derby and second in the Latonia Derby and is reported at the top of his form. He came over from the Latonia course today by van, all of the candidates being on the ground this afternoon.

The outsiders of the lot are F. M. Grabner's Chicago, the Cold Stream farm's Barbara, the only filly in the race and which gets a five-pound allowance, and Kay Spence's Drone. They may be classed as doubtful starters.

It was cloudy this afternoon and somewhat warmer. The heat, however, is definitely broken and delightful weather with fair skies and a fast track is the prediction for tomorrow. The management is preparing for a gathering of 35,000 racing enthusiasts from all part of the Middle West, and if their predictions are fulfilled it will be a record gathering for the plant which was opened only a little more than a year ago.

SIR STUART ROMPS AWAY FROM TESTER

Harriman Colt Leads Favorite by 2 Lengths in Wedgewood at Empire City.

FIVE CHOICES ARE BEATEN

Sweepster, In Last Race, Alone Brings Relief to Harassed Form Players.

Sir Stuart, handsome and speedy son of War Cloud, bore the silks of W. Averell Harriman to victory in the Wedgewood High Weight Handicap at Empire City yesterday. The race might just as well have been a match race, as it was strictly a two-horse affair from barrier to wire.

The honest Peter Pan gelding, Tester, which went to the post with the estimable record of having run unplaced only once in his last twelve starts, was the one Sir Stuart had to beat. The Harriman horse kicked his heels in front all the way and beat Tester by two lengths. Turner didn't give Tester the best ride in the world and the Winfrey gelding's top impost of 140 pounds, six more than Sir Stuart, tired him at the end.

As soon as the lawnmen became active before the running of the Wedgewood an avalanche of slips began to force down the prices of both, but it was Tester's that slipped furthest and fastest. At post time the current odds on the son of Peter Pan were 9 to 10, with Sir Stouart at 2 to 1. Tester showed a game effort, but Turner took him back coming out of the far turn and this didn't help him any. Forecaster finished third behind the battling leaders.

Form Players Hard Hit.

The form players probably felt as though they never wanted to look at any kind of horse again after the day's sport. They wilted completely when they saw favorite after favorite go down, until the count stood at five beaten choices. Then in the last race they got scant satisfaction when Sweepster at 7 to 20 romped merrily home.

The final race proved a good workout for Sweepster, believed by many keen horsemen to be one of the best two-years-olds under saddle. Sam Hildreth looked justly proud of the good-looking son of Sweep in the paddock before the race. Hildreth hasn't had much of a chance to send winners to the post since the coughing epidemic spoiled his Spring plan of campaign for the Sinclair thoroughbreds.

Sweepster opened at 1 to 4, but as the players only shifted from one foot to the other and looked disinterested the layers proffered 7 to 20. There was quite a lot of play on Lord Broom. That colt, also a son of Sweep, was the best of the others.

Friedjof Nansen, the form horse in the opener, ran his race, but it wasn't in the cards that he should win, as Lady Inver dominated most of the running and had a winning margin over the Log Cabin oat-burner at the end. The handicappers thought Friedjof was one of the outstanding choices of the day, as he had run second in his last three starts. However, the players did a good deal of shopping around and there was plenty of support for Lady Inver, Chief Sabattus among others.

Callahan Uses Sound Judgment.

Callahan got Lady Inver away smartly and saved ground all the way. When Stevens, on the favorite, went to the whip in the stretch it looked as though the form was going to stand up. Lady Inver, however, kept right on jumping and jumped past the judges two lengths to the good.

The shrewd horseman Jack Richardson put one over in the third when Collins lifted Bruns across the line first after a finish that had even the sweltering regulars in an uproar.

Laverne Fator shot Gold Button to the front and led the bunch to the home corner. Collins took Bruns wide there, but the Friar Rock gelding was out to win and he leaped to the stretch battle with a will. Alkali Ike came up too, and a few jumps from home these two and Gold Button ran like a charlot team. Then Bruns stuck his neck in front of Alkali Ike's, while the Cooper gelding had a head on the weary Gold Button.

Very few thought much about King Jimmy before the second race, but it was King Jimmy and none other that was down in front at the end. St. John, which was carrying plenty of wise money, set a brisk pace when Friedjof Nansen hastily let them go, and it looked strictly like a St. John victory until Stevens sailed through with King Jimmy on the outside and beat the Alexander colors-bearer by half a length. Irish Marine took the small end. Zelda Leighton was installed the favorite by the price-makers, but she evidently hadn't heard about it or didn't care. She took every one's dust to finish last.

The fifth race was just a cakewalk for Ceylon Prince. Once more the talent was thrown for a loss when the well-meant Araby, with Laverne Fator himself aboard, could do no better than third. Ceylon Prince was chuck full of running, but Ellis held her back of Blether, the hard-luck horse, until the distant turn. Then Ceylon Prince stepped out and it was all over. Eight lengths separated the Prince from Washington, which got up to take the place at the end.

BUYERS PAY $33,300 FOR 35 RACE HORSES

The Vintner and Silver Finn Bring Top Prices of $4,300 at Empire City Sale.

A total of 35 horses in training went under the hammer at the special sale held yesterday before race-time in the paddock at the Empire City track. These Auctioneer George Bain knocked down for an aggregate of $33,300.

Top prices of $4,300 were paid for The Vintner and Silver Finn. R. A. Smith paid that amount to the Greentree Stable for the Omar Khayyam gelding, while Woods Garth got Silver Finn for a like figure. Smith also paid the next best price, $2,800, for the promising Johren two-year-old, Policeman Day, which earned brackets recently on the Hilltop.

Besides The Vintner and Policeman Day the Greentree Stable offered Wild Aster for sale. J. Wormser got this son of Ultimus for $2,100. The Laurel Park Stud and Eastman Hill Stock Farm were among the other consignees.

Following is a list of horses which brought more than $1,000, together with their purchasers and the amount paid:

Post and Paddock

Another victory for the sire War Cloud was scored yesterday at Empire City when Sir Stuart won the Wedgewood. These War Cloud horses bear watching. Witness General Lee and Bonnie Maginn for a couple of other shining examples.

Many of the lawnmen disregarded the conventionalities of dress yesterday, and the ring was a mass of coatless—and, in many instances, collarless—men.

Laverne Fator wasn't out of the money once with five mounts, but he succeeded in getting only one of them home first. That was Sweepster in the last.

Many horsemen were busy scanning the weights for the Saratoga Handicap, to be run at the Spa on the opening day. Sarazen is at the top with 129 pounds, American Flag has 122, Silver Fox 119 and Macaw 116, among others.

Louis Feustel saddled Sir Stuart for the Wedgewood. John I. Smith, who succeeds Feustel as the Log Cabin trainer, will not assume charge of the Harriman contingent until the Saratoga meeting.

The Yonkers Handicap, one of Owner Butler's favorite fixtures, will be the feature race at his Yonkers oval today.

Lady Inver, running back to her previous good race, took the lead soon after the start, saved ground and drew away in the stretch to win nicely in hand. Friedjof Nansen appears to be a five furlong colt. He quit badly. Moramine ran a good race. Nama was pinched back and is worth noting. Drummer Boy ran away a half mile before the start.

King Jimmy was rated off the early pace to the middle of the upper turn. He came around the field in the stretch, closed fast and won going away. St. John had plenty of speed and forced a fast pace, saved ground and held on gamely. Irish Marine followed the pace to the last furlong, then tired. Zelda Leighton lacked speed and quit badly in the stretch. Clique moved up fast but weakened.

Harada Is Defeated by White in Straight Sets in Longwood Tennis Semi-Final

WHITE PUTS HARADA OUT IN THREE SETS

No. 23 Player on National List Beats No. 7 Star at Longwood, 8-6, 7-5, 6-1.

WILL MEET TILDEN TODAY

To Face National Champion for Final Honors—Also Scores in Doubles With Thalheimer.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTNUT HILLS, Mass., July 23.—Today Lewis N. White made himself a figure in the Longwood Bowl singles by defeating Takeiichi Harada, Japan's Davis Cup player, 8—6, 7—5, 6—1. Before that, with Louis Thalheimer, fellow Texan, as his partner, he won from John Barr and Wilmer Allison, also Texans, 6—3, 9—7, 6—4.

White will play Tilden tomorrow in the final of the Bowl singles, while, with Thalheimer, he will meet Wiener and Tilden in the doubles final.

White, a University of Texas graduate and now a student at the Harvard Law School, is ranked No. 23 among the country's best, while the player he bested, Harada, is No. 7. In 1923 and 1924, with Thalheimer, he held the intercollegiate championship and has been improving steadily.

Not Seeded in Draw.

When White's entry was announced in the Bowl singles there was dispute as to whether he should be seeded. He was not, and in his rapid advance in the tournament he has defeated Chapin, Tawara and Harada, three seeded players.

Against Harada White improved as the match progressed. Harada captured the first two games in the first set only to have White take the next three. Harada won three out of five to even matters and then White's performance was a marvel. The Southern flash shot the ball back to Harada, varying his placements so that his opponent was bewildered.

Harada took the eleventh game by a close margin to give him a 6—5 lead. Then the turning point came with White's game. He actually outplayed his opponent in every department as he triumphed in three straight games to win, 8—6.

It was a remarkable match and it marks the fall of Harada for the second time in the Bowl singles. Last year he was upset by Gerald Patterson, Australian, in the final.

White's Attack Improves.

In the second set White's game was even better than in the first, as he took advantage of every misplay by his opponent. White opened with a three-game margin, only to have Harada even it up. Finally Harada captured two out of three games, to lead 5—4. As in the preceding set, the Texas star summoned all his courage and dazzled the Japanese star with his drives, to win three games and the set.

Harada was in a bad state as the third set opened. Psychologically he was in poor spirits. White was eager for another set. Harada's lone game was the third and White outplayed him in the others by a wide margin.

White won a total of 21 games, to 12 for his opponent. He netted 34 times, while Harada was guilty on 43 occasions. He drove out of court 26 times, to 45 by his opponent and scored 25 placements, to 29 by Harada. The latter scored one service, the only one of the contest, and double-faulted only twice, while White committed this offense seven times.

WILL DEFEND TITLE, MISS WILLS STATES

Tennis Champion Says She Will Compete in National Event at Forest Hills.

TO PLAY AT EASTHAMPTON

Enters Wednesday's Tourney, the First She Has Competed In Since Operation In Paris.

Miss Helen Wills, national women's tennis champion, announced last night from Forest Hills that she has decided to defend her national title in the championship at the West Side Tennis Club beginning Aug. 16. The week of practice that she has gone through has so encouraged her as to her physical fitness to stand the strain of championship play that she has reached a decision earlier than she expected to.

Miss Wills also stated that she will play next week in the women's invitation tournament to be held at the Maidstone Club, East Hampton, which is scheduled to begin on Wednesday. This will be her first tournament appearance since she was operated on in France the first week in June. The champion had thought of entering the Essex County tournament at Manchester, Mass., which starts Monday, but the fact that the Maidstone tournament is closer to New York and does not start until later in the week, giving her more time to store up strength, influenced her to decide on the latter.

Miss Mary K. Browne, captain of the Wightman Cup team, and Mrs. Molla Mallory, former national champion, are also expected to play at East Hampton, so that Miss Wills will have the opportunity to put herself to a severe test. Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Eleanor Goss of the Wightman Cup team, will compete at Essex. From East Hampton Miss Wills will go to Seabright to engage in the invitation tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, starting Aug. 2.

Former Extended to Beat Strahan in North Jersey Coast Play—Rain Prevents Many Matches.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 23.—Rain caused the postponement of many of the tennis matches in the North Jersey Coast tournament today, but the first round in the doubles, the third round in the singles and two quarter-round matches were completed. J. P. Stockton of New York reached the semi-finals in the singles, and so did Kenneth Appel of East Orange.

Stockton had a hard match with John W. Strahan. The play in the first set was quite even and was interspersed with brilliant rallies. Strahan wilted toward the end, and Stockton finally won at 8—6 and ran through the second set, 6—2. Appel had little difficulty with Phil Vandeventer of Plainfield, winning at 6—1, 6—4.

BOWMAN ADVANCES STEP NEARER TITLE

Downs Feibleman in Tennis Tourney at Hempstead to Reach Sem-Final.

HAS TWO LEGS ON TROPHY

But Binzen, Who Puts Out Bernstein, Threatens Him Today — Kynaston Also Wins, Beating Heyden.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., July 23.—Herbert L. Bowman of the New York A. C. advanced a step further today toward realizing an ambition that he has nursed for three years. In the fifth round of the New York State tennis championship at the Hempstead Country Club he defeated Edward W. Feibleman of the New York Tennis Club at 6—4, 6—2 and gained a place in the semi-final round.

In 1922 and 1923 Bowman gained two legs on the championship cup. He was primed to add the trophy to his storehouse in 1924, but Kirk Reid of Cleveland stepped in and spoiled his plans. Last year Jerry Lang preserved the longevity of the cup, defeating both Bowman and Reid.

Lang is still in the running, by virtue of his victory yesterday over Julius Seligson, and in view of the fact that Seligson defeated Bowman at Quaker Ridge the New York A. C. star may have to wait till another day to get his third victory.

Kynaston Also Wins.

But before Lang and Bowman can come to grips again each has the task of getting by another opponent, who may turn out to be the ultimate winner. Percy L. Kynaston and Elliott H. Binzen also reached the semi-finals today and the former is bracketed in the semi-finals with Lang, while Binzen is opposed to Bowman.

Kynaston advanced at the expense of Luis Heyden, conqueror of Allen Behr in the Kings County championship. This match was taken up in the second set, Kynaston having won the first on Thursday at 6—3 before darkness forced them to abandon the courts. The play went as far as 6-all in the second set, but by mutual agreement these twelve games were thrown out.

Heyden won the second set today at 7—5, but by that time Kynaston had found the key to the situation and his backhand cross court shots and forehand line drives carried him through the deciding chapter quickly at 6—1.

Binzen had to concede a set to Morton Bernstein before he gained his semi-final bracket at 6—2, 4—6, 6—2. Had Bernstein been able to keep his shots under better control the score would have been considerably closer. His erratic streaks and Binzen's excellence at the net, where he won a large number of his points on overhead shots, enabled the north side player to come through the final set in handsome style.

Doubles Semi-Finals Reached.

The semi-finals of the doubles were also reached, with Feibleman and J. Henry Steinkampf and Gerald Emerson and Seligson in the upper half. Lang and Anton Von Bernuth and Alfred D. Hammett and J. G. Hall are bracketed in the lower division. The singles will be played at 2 o'clock tomorrow and the doubles at 4. The finals will be held on Sunday.

Feibleman failed to get a set from Bowman, but it was not because of lack of opportunities. In both sets the New York Tennis Club star held a lead of 2—0, but Bowman's accurate driving and ability to force openings enabled him to overcome these leads and take command of the play. The first set was stubbornly fought all the way, but in the second Bowman finished brilliantly and took six games in a row.

The summaries:

Singles (Fifth Round)—Herbert L. Bowman defeated Edward W. Feibleman, 6—4, 6—2; Elliott H. Binzen defeated Morton Bernstein, 6—2, 4—6, 6—2; Percy L. Kynaston defeated Luis Heyden, 6—3, 5—7, 6—1.

Doubles (Third Round)—Edward W. Feibleman and J. Henry Steinkampf defeated W. E. Gossett and L. T. Salmon, 6—1, 6—4; Jerry Lang and Anton Von Bernuth defeated Charles A. Anderson and Dr. William Rosenbaum, 6—2, 7—5.

Smith and Sarazen to Continue Golf Tug of War This Morning

Lakeville and Fresh Meadow Professionals, Deadlocked for the Metropolitan Open Championship at End of 108 Holes, to Resume Struggle at Salisbury With Score Tied at 428.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

The seventh chapter of the Metropolitan open golf championship serial, in which Macdonald Smith and Gene Sarazen are collaborating will be unfolded at the Salisbury Country Club, Garden City, L. I., at 10 o'clock this morning.

The synopsis of preceding chapters follows: In the first round of the event Smith created a new course record with a 67, clipping a stroke off the old mark, held jointly by himself and Jack Hagen, the Salisbury overseer. The feat gave him a neat margin over the field, and especially over Sarazen, who took 73. In the second round, however, Smith took 73 to hole the course while Sarazen had a 70 and thus drew up to within three strokes, the totals being 140 and 143.

In the third round Sarazen registered a 68 for a total of 211 and went into the lead, Smith's score for the round being 74 and his total 214. With the championship almost within his grasp, Sarazen stubbed his toe and took 75, while Smith, racing home in 34 strokes, was 72. Thus the total of each for four rounds of play was 286 and a play-off was in order.

At the end of the fifth chapter they were still tied, their scores for the round being 70's and their total for the five rounds 356. Then, in the sixth chapter, they again tied with 72's and everything was just as it had been in the beginning. When they halved the 108th hole in 5's and were deadlocked at 428 strokes each, new golf history was made, for never before had a play-off for a titular affair gone beyond 36 holes as this one had.

Incidentally, there are some interesting mathematical figures concerning the match. In the 108 holes that have been played thus far Sarazen has made one 2, twenty-six 3s, fifty-eight 4s, twenty-two 5s and one 6. Over the same distance Smith has made two 2s, twenty-six 3s, fifty-six 4s, twenty-two 5s and two 6s.

Smith's best-ball card for the six rounds is 59, one stroke less than Sarazen's. Figuring the worst-ball for the six rounds, Sarazen's out and in cards are 43—41—84; Smith's 42—42—84.

Although no official communiqué has been forthcoming from the United States Golf Association, it has been rumored that only one of the two Baltusrol courses will be used for the national amateur championship in September. The rumor goes further and has it that the course used will be the lower one. With two days set aside for the qualifying phase of the event it will be entirely possible to handle the field on only one course, but why both are not used is something that only the U. S. G. A. officials know. The New Jersey club affords a great chance to try using two courses that are exactly on a par, and if anything the upper course is more exacting than the lower. Either, however, will give the amateurs all they want in the way of shotmaking.

At the time that Miss Maureen Orcutt of White Beeches won the women's metropolital championship it was predicted that she had arrived at a place in golf where she could be depended on to give Miss Glenna Collett a run for her national laurels. The time will soon be here for a test since both are entered in the eighth annual women's invitation tournameent for the Shenecosett trophy. The event starts Monday and lasts through Friday. It is by no means certain, however, that either Miss Collett or Miss Orcutt will emerge with the honors for pitted against them will be several stars of note, any one of whom may figure in the final. This is especially true in the case of Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former American, British and Canadian champion, who has been playing consistent golf all Summer.

There are yet some others in the list of 300 entries who may cause upsets. Miss Dorothy Klotz, the Western champion, has entered; so has Miss Helen Payson, the Maine champion, who has at least one victory over Miss Collett to her credit. Other notables in the list will be Miss Bernice Wall, the Wisconsin State champion; Miss Marie Jenney, former metropolitan champion; Miss Helen Statson, Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, Mrs. F. E. DuBois, Miss Ruth Batchelder and Mrs. Courtland Smith.

Ever since it was organized the New York State Golf Association has had a hard time getting the up-State and down-State golfers to mix. It was a case of Kipling being right except that the compass points were North and South instead of East and West. When the tournament was held up-State the up-State golfers predominated; when it was held here the metropolitan golfers predominated. As a matter of fact the metropolitan golfers always held rather aloof. This time, however, the barriers seem to be broken down to a great extent.

According to Don M. Parker, the secretary-treasurer, quite a number of local golfers have signified their intention of going up to Saratoga for the 1926 event which will be played on the McGregor links starting next Thursday. Among the entrants are Hamilton K. Kerr, E. C. Van Vleck, Johnny Riddell, R. A. Jones Jr., Ensign Conklin, A. W. Biggs, Jack Mackie Jr., Maurice J. McCarthy Jr., J. C. McMahon, C. V. Benton, Peter Forsman, H. H. Will and Tom Sherman.

Officials of the Professional Golfers' Association have been spending considerable time of late in the vicinity of the Salisbury links on Long Island getting a line-up on the several courses that J. J. Lannin has built to take care of the few thousand homeless golfers in the district. It is now almost an assured fact that the championship will be played on the No. 4 course which probably would have been used for the metropolitan open championship and the Sarazen-Smith aftermath had it been in condition.

YOUTHFUL GOLFERS BEST AT GREENWICH

MARTIN TOPPLES HOMANS

Puts Out Last Year's Winner, 5 and 3—Upson, Finlay and Brodbeck Also Survive Their Matches.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 23.—A quartet of golfers, averaging about 22 years, stepped away from their elders in the Greenwich Country Club's annual invitation tournament today and entered the semi-final bracket.

Leonard Martin of Apawamis, medalist of the junior metropolitan; Phillips Finlay, young Shinnecock Hills star; Al Brodbeck, Mount Vernon High School football ace, and Lauren Upson, a year ago a leading intercollegiate player from California, remain in the lists tonight.

Martin, 20 years old and slight of build, played the giant killer's rôle today, defeating first George Brush, Westchester champion and medalist of yesterday's qualifying round, 1 up, in a struggle which went an extra hole, and then Eugene Homans of Englewood, junior metropolitan champion, 5 and 3.

Martin insured that a newcomer would capture the Julian W. Curtiss Trophy this year, since Homans won it last season in the first competition.

Brush Loses on Nineteenth.

Brush beat himself on the nineteenth in his match with Martin, for in putting he knocked his opponent's ball into the cup. Martin was one up at the turn in his match with Homans by virtue of a birdie on the ninth. Both men were out in 37, but Martin then stepped out and needed only three fours for a 68.

Maurice McCarthy Jr., son of the pro, easily defeated Dick Jones, Westchester Hills and finalist at Oakmont last year, this morning, 3 and 1. Young McCarthy then fell before Finlay, losing 1 up after the latter had negotiated a dead stymie at the eighteenth. In the morning Finlay came from behind to beat Neal Fulkerson of Bellaire, 2 up. At the turn Finlay lost the next four holes, only to recapture that number and to win the match 2 up.

Brodbeck had an easy victory in the first round, defeating J. A. Roberts, Yale sophomore, 7 and 5. He had harder going in the afternoon against Donald Carr, Siwanoy veteran, runner-up in the qualifying round. Here Brodbeck's victory was of the 4 and 2 variety.

Upson Beats Topping.

H. J. Topping, former Connecticut amateur champion, and S. Brainard, a left-hander from Pine Orchard, were Upson's opponents in his march to the semi-finals. The one time Californian defeated Topping 3 and 2 and won his other match 6 and 5.

The draw brings Upson and Martin and Finlay and Brodbeck together in the semi-final.

OLYMPIC OFFICIALS LEAVE FOR EUROPE

Hulbert and Robertson Sail Today to Plan U. S. Invasion of Holland.

America will have a harder fight on its hands to retain its supremacy at the next Olympic Games in Amsterdam, Holland, in 1928, than it ever experienced before, was the opinion expressed last night by Lawson Robertson of the University of Pennsylvania on the eve of his departure for Europe. Both Robertson, who was the head coach of the 1924 American team, and Murray Hulbert, President of the A. A. U., are sailing today to lay the groundwork for America's next Olympic invasion.

The two, however, are sailing on different liners. Robertson will journey direct to Holland on the Volendam, while Hulbert is going on the France, bound for Paris. But both are making the trip to make a survey of housing conditions in Holland, attend to other preliminary details and to attend the convention of the International Amateur Athletic Federation at the Hague, Aug. 5 to 8.

America's stiffest fight at the 1928 Olympics will come from the Germans, Robertson believes, in view of

Democratic Primary May Decide Who Shall Be the State's Next Governor.

ESTIMATES FAVOR MOODY

But Mrs. Ferguson's Supporters Say She Will Be Renominated by a Clear Majority.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 23.—Texas will hold tomorrow its first Gubernatorial primary since Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson was chosen Governor. Optimistic supporters of Mrs. Ferguson, who is seeking renomination by the Democratic voters, and equally ardent followers of Attorney General Dan Moody,, her chief opponent, hope the result will be so pronounced a majority that no second or "run-off" primary will be necessary to settle the nomination. There are six contestants in the race and if neither has a clear majority a second primary must be held, with the field limited to the two candidates having the highest totals.

Reports from various parts of the State indicate that Mr. Moody will be the victor tomorrow and that a run-off primary a month later may not be necessary. On the face of the situation Moody is the favorite of the six candidates, with the Governor second and Lynch Davidson third, according to the latest polls.

On the other hand, ex-Governor Jim Ferguson, husband of the Governor, declares that his wife will lead her next highest opponent by 100,000 votes in the balloting tomorrow and that she will win by a big majority in the run-off primary. Mr. Moody expressed confidence today that he would receive not fewer than 150,000 votes more than Mrs. Ferguson.

Davidson Says Both Are Wrong.

Lynch Davidson declares this is all a mistake and that he will be high man by at least 50,000 votes. It is generally conceded that Mr. Davidson has gained strength during the last few weeks, and some political observers think he will be second, with Moody first, and that in the run-off he will defeat Moody.

If as many as 800,000 votes should be cast, Moody will receive approximately 425,000, according to unbiased estimates. This would give him a majority over all the other candidates, thus avoiding the necessity of a second primary. It is not expected, however, that the total vote will exceed 700,000, and it is regarded as improbable that Moody will receive in that event a sufficient number to nominate him.

It is the announced intention of Governor Ferguson to resign her office as soon as the official vote is canvassed should she not receive as many as 25,000 votes more than Moody. Many Moody adherents therefore expect she will vacate the office some time next week, and that Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller will automatically succeed her, to serve until the new Governor is inaugurated the third Tuesday in January.

Moody Makes Similar Promise.

Moody declares he will step down and out of the office of Attorney General if he does not receive more votes than Governor Ferguson, and the latter's followers say this means that he soon will be out of office.

Great crowds greeted Jim Ferguson in his closing speech at Austin tonight, as they did also Dan Moody at Lockhart and Lynch Davidson at Fort Worth. Mr. Ferguson finish the campaign in a wearied condition. Mr. Moody appeared as fresh as when he began his tour, nearly four months ago.

The three other Democratic candidates, Mrs. Edith Wilmans of Dallas, Mrs. Kate Johnston of San Antonio and the Rev. F. O. Zimmerman of Naples, on the official ballot, have received little mention in the contest for Governor, and it is not expected they will receive all told more than a few thousand votes.

First State Primary for Republicans.

DALLAS, Texas, July 23 (AP).—The Texas Election Bureau, an organization set up by Texas newspapers to gather returns, estimated tonight that the Democratic vote in tomorrow's primary would be about 650,000, or about 50 per cent. of the State's voting strength.

On the Republican side, the chief interest has centred in efforts of the minority party to hold a State-wide primary for the first time in the State's history. The Republican leaders were not claiming that they would poll a large vote—30,000 was the highest estimate of the Republican headquarters—but they assert a Republican primary will be held in 200 of the State's 252 counties.

The Republicans have almost a full slate of State and Congressional candidates.

One Woman Candidate Withdraws.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 23 (AP).—Mrs. Kate M. Johnston, one of the three women candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Texas, withdrew from the race tonight and counseled her supporters to vote for Governor Ferguson in tomorrow's primary.

Mrs. Johnston said that she decided to withdraw as she had been inactive for the last several weeks on account of illness.

TEACHERS COLLEGE HONORS M'MURRY

650 Graduates at Astor Dinner Hear Eulogies of Professor for 28 Years' Service.

WILL TRAVEL, THEN RETIRE

Guest of Honor Says Tribute Is to His Calling—Dr. Butler Cables Praise From London.

Six hundred and fifty teachers, graduates of Teachers College, Columbia University, attended a dinner held last night in the Hotel Astor in honor of Dr. Frank Morton McMurry, who for twenty-eight years has been a member of the college faculty. Next year he plans to take his sabattical leave and then retire.

There were seven speakers who paid him tribute. These included Professor Franklin T. Baker of Teachers College, who acted as toastmaster; Miss Roxanna A. Steele of the Western State Teachers College, Kalamazoo, Mich.; Dr. Frank P. Bachman of the General Education Board of New York City; Miss Annie E. Moore, Assistant Professor of Education at Teachers College; Dr. Lotus D. Coffman, President of the University of Minnesota; Dr. John W. Hall of the University of Nevada, and Dr. James E. Russell, Dean of Teachers College.

After the eulogies had been spoken, the guest of honor made a brief reply.

A Tribute to Teaching.

"I shall remember this occasion as a tribute to a classroom teacher," said Dr. McMurry. "Administrators are frequently so honored, and so are men of big business or of other world affairs. I have not done anything but teach, so if there is any recognition to my work in this gathering here it is a recognition to classroom teaching."

After recalling some of the experiences of his forty-seven years as a teacher, Professor McMurry said that if he had his life to live over again he would live it as a teacher. In discussing the meaning of teaching from the modern viewpoint he said: "The thing that students of teaching need most is fire. They have brains, but they lack the moving force, the flaming purpose. So it has been my endeavor to stir them up. If students go from my classroom placidly, I know that I have had no effect upon them, but if they left me almost clawing on another in their arguments I knew I had stirred them up and that the effect was good."

The doctor said that there has been more progress in methods of teaching in the last 50 years than ever before, and that it was only in the last 35 years that the right of childhood had been recognized.

Dr. Baker said: "Throughout the long years of Dr. McMurry's teaching he has remained the same, not in all of his theories, but in his quality, his forceful directness, his intellectual honesty, his industry and his ideals. His philosophy of life has been good for us because it has been based upon life."

Professor Moore declared: "I know of no one who has done more for the cause of elementary education than has Dr. McMurry." Then, turning to him, she concluded: "In the name of the hundreds of teachers and children who have been influenced by you, I salute you as a warm friend and a great teacher."

Dean Russell's Praise.

Dean Russell said that Professor McMurry's title to fame is secure, and in this connection he said "We of the old guard, staff and students, owe him a debt of gratitude which can be repaid only by continuing to carry on in his spirit the work to which his life has been dedicated."

Others on the dais included Dr. John H. Finley, Professor David Snebben, Teachers College; Mrs. McMurry, Professor R. J. Leonard of Teachers College, Professor Ralph McAughy of Teachers College, Dr. William H. Kilpatrick of Teachers College and Mrs. Kilpatrick.

Telegrams were received from Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, who is now in London, and from Dr. Bruce R. Paine, President of the George Peabody College for Teachers.

FREES GIRL WHO HIT PARSON

Kentucky Governor Approves Slap for Insult Over Bobbed Hair.

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 23.—Governor Fields today pardoned Miss Martha Bates of Letcher County, who slapped the Rev. Arlie Brown, a Baptist preacher, after he criticized bobbed-haired women.

On May 28 the Governor granted to Miss Bates a stay of execution of the unsatisfied portion of the forty-day jail sentence imposed in the Letcher County Circuit Court. At that time the Governor said he wished to investigate the case.

"I am convinced from the investigations made that the preacher, Arlie Brown, with whom Miss Bates became involved, which resulted in her conviction, made the statement that no virtuous woman would wear bobbed hair, or words to that effect, for which statement Miss Bates slapped his jaws," Governor Fields said in his pardon.

"I approved of the action of Miss Bates in resenting the alleged remarks."

BUCHAREST, July 23.—The latest communiqué from the Bulgarian frontier says: "Twenty Bulgarian Comitaji yesterday again invaded Rumanian territory, battling for hours with sentinels near Dimingi. There were no casualties."

A note received from the Bulgarian Foreign Office promises energetic action against the Comitajis and the removal from the frontier of colonists inclining to violence. The Rumanian Cabinet last night accepted the note as satisfactory.

Included among the officers and directors of the Equitable Building Corporation before the sale, besides Mr. Baldwin, were Frank V. du Pont, President; Matthew C. Brush, Lewis L. Dunham and August Heckscher, Vice Presidents; Warren S. Stone, now dead, George T. Webb and Darragh A. Park. Mr. Park is President of the New York Empire Company and could be regarded as the representative of the Brotherhood in the company. Except for the addition of Mr. Vanderbilt and Mr. Cushing, no other changes in the company were announced.

The Equitable Building has 38 stories and its tenants include some of the largest industrial corporations in the country, as well as many financial firms. It was finished in 1915, replacing the old Equitable Building, which was destroyed by fire in 1912.

HOST TO OXFORD MEN.

Princeton Entertains Visitors Who Inspect the University.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 23.—Eight Oxford undergraduates who are touring this country under the auspices of the English Speaking Union were guests at Princeton University here today. The party motored from New York with Frank D. Waterman, Republican Mayoralty candidate last Fall, and his son, Frank D. Waterman Jr., an honor graduate of Princeton this year.

Under the guidance of Controller George C. Wintringer, the British students were shown about the Princeton campus, where they found many of the Gothic halls much like some of their own college halls at Oxford. After tea in the common room of the graduate school the visitors enjoyed a swim in Brokaw pool and then were guests of the university at dinner at the Princeton Inn. Present at the dinner besides Controller Wintringer were: Professor Radcliff Hermance, Director of Admissions; Henry G. Duffield, Treasurer of the university; Professor C. R. MacInnes, Director of the Princeton Summer School, and S. Harrison Thompson, captain of the Princeton track team in 1923, who spent a year in study at Oxford.

USE CLUBS IN CLASH WITH I. R. T. STRIKERS

crowd to shelter. Mrs. Barton was pushed against a wall by a detective, and when she went into the Casino after the fight was over fainted.

Calls Attack Unprovoked.

If the fight had been planned by the strikers, it was very badly organized, for they made no resistance, but scattered at once before the police. Harry Bark, one of the strike leaders, denounced the police action as an entirely unprovoked attack and said that although sent to the Casino supposedly to maintain order they had done nothing but stir up trouble.

Acting Captain John J. Lyons, in command of the Detective Division during the absence on vacation of Inspector John D. Coughlin, said that the action of detectives was without his knowledge.

The attempts to pull motormen out of their boxes brought two results: The first was the retention of all policemen guarding green motormen, while the other policemen on strike duty were ordered yesterday afternoon to report back to their precincts. The second was a statement from Magistrate McKiniry in Night Court last night that cases of intimidation and violence would be punished by jail sentences and not fines.

Acting on this, Magistrate McKiniry sentenced Mike Giagunta, a striking wheel inspector, to five days in the Workhouse for assaulting Peter Nycyk, a brakeman's helper, in the Interborough yards at 205th Street and Jerome Avenue. Giagunta pleaded that he must have been excited by the heat.

Attempting to return to work in a body and with their leaders insisting that all sympathetic strikers get their jobs back, the striking subway motormen met with a sharp rebuff yesterday morning from officials of the company and as a result announced the strike was "on" again.

In the meanwhile, however, fifty-seven motormen and twenty-eight switchmen returned to work individually, so that the company is now lacking only 150 motormen and 100 switchmen of the original quota of experienced men. The ranks of the strikers have been depleted to an extent that gives the whole affair the character of a forlorn hope.

Early in the day the men, about 350 in number, gathered at Manhattan Casino and marched in orderly fashion to the Interborough yards at 147th Street and Lenox Avenue. In the group were not only motormen and switchmen but motive power men from the substations, guards, agents, conductors and shop men who had quit their jobs out of sympathy with the strikers and whose places had been speedily filled.

Seemingly in accordance with the program agreed on at a secret meeting earlier, Edward P. Lavin, the chief of the leaders, went into the Interborough office and told George Keegan, President Hedley's chief assistant, that he had come to see about getting the men back to work, expressly designating the guards, conductors and motive power men, as the company asserts.

Keegan told Lavin that he would talk to him only as "Motorman Lavin" and discuss with him only the case of Lavin personally and not anything relating to anyone else. In other words, he refused to receive Lavin as a representative of anybody. He also said he was not interested at that time in any guards, conductors or motive power men, but only in motormen and switchmen.

Lavin rushed back with his face very red and reported to the men. The latter shouted "To Hell with them; let's go back to the Hall," and similar exclamatory defiances. Then the procession reformed and went back to Manhattan Casino. In the course of the day the general strike committee was reorganized and a system of picketing devised. The men said last night that they had obtained new recruits to their ranks and would go on with the fight.

The Strike Committee issued a long statement violently attacking Hedley and asserting they had been "double crossed." The statement said the men were counting on the support of organized labor and the sympathy of the public, and insisted that the various city and State bodies with jurisdiction do their duty in protecting the public against unsafe operation by "criminal and inexperienced strike-breakers."

James L. Quackenbush, general counsel for the Interborough, explained that the company wanted its motormen back, but is not interested in guards and conductors, inasmuch as the labor turnover in these ranks was very great, and places were filled as quickly as men quit. The same was true in a slightly lesser degree with reference to the motive power men, he said.

There are now 486 of the strikers back at work, the company says; 349 motormen and 137 switchmen. Before the strike the company had 499 motormen and 237 switchmen. It is therefore using strikebreakers to fill the places of 150 motormen and 100 switchmen.

12 HURT IN ELEVATED CRASH.

Train Rams One That Stalls on Structure Over Battery Park.

Twelve persons, two of them women, were injured yesterday morning as the result of a wreck on the elevated structure used by the Ninth and Sixth Avenue trains, over Battery Park, just north of the South Ferry station.

An unusual feature of the accident was the injury of Michael G. Walsh of 1,713 Second Avenue. He was sitting on a bench in the park nearly under the elevated structure. When the two trains collided over his head the heavy brass whistle of the rear train was torn loose and fell. It struck Walsh on the shoulder, dislocating it. He was attended by an ambulance surgeon and went home.

A Sixth Avenue train was waiting to pull into the South Ferry station. Behind it was a Ninth Avenue train, with a signal in between. This signal fell, and Motorman J. J. Thompson, who has been with the company nine years, started his train. According to the company, the Sixth Avenue train "stalled." The Ninth Avenue train crashed into it from the rear, both platforms being demolished by the impact.

There were twenty-five passengers on the Sixth Avenue train and thirty on the other train. All the injured, except Walsh, were in the first car of the Ninth Avenue train. Some of the men passengers scrambled along the structure to the station. Others were helped or carried down ladders, after a still alarm had brought a hook and ladder company to the scene. The injured, besides Thompson and Walshr, were:

BANGS, RICHARD, 216 Temple Street, Astoria.
BIRKNEY, EMILY, 425 West Fifty-eighth Street.
BUTLER, EDWARD, 218 West Fourteenth Street.
DELARITTY, THOMAS, Mills Hotel.
GOUGH, THEODORE, conductor of the Ninth Avenue train, 5 Abingdon Square.
McDONALD, Miss N., 506 West 148th Street.
RODIGUEZ, RAYMOND, 15 West 107th Street.
SAHIKE, A., 325 East Fourteenth Street.
TEASE, ROBERT, 231 West Eleventh Street.
TRAUB, WALTER, 237 Willis Place, Brooklyn.

The accident disrupted the west side elevated service somewhat, all trains being turned back at Rector Street for more than an hour.

PRISONERS' WHISTLES BROUGHT IN LIQUOR

Court Inquiry Reveals Unique Signal System for Drinks for Chicago Jail Inmates.

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP).—Testimony that Frank McErlane and other inmates of Cook County's jail held frequent receptions in the hospital of the jail where liquor was served was given today by a former jailer in Judge McGoorty's inquiry into jail conditions.

McErlane's recent appearance in court under the influence of liquor when he was brought from his cell to hear proceedings looking to his extradition to Indiana on a murder charge caused the inquiry.

James Castignano, former assistant jailer, said he had seen McErlane drunk "so many times I can't remember," and told of hearing from a guard that Jules Portugese, a lately slain gangster, was "stiff drunk" in his cell one night while held on a minor charge. Other witnesses named the hospital as a scene of carousals.

Castignano gave his superiors at the jail credit for doing all they could to stop the smuggling of liquor to prisoners, but he said they could not cope with the situation. He named Elmer Moore, sentenced yesterday to 90 days in jail for contempt of court, as one of the guards who often was under alcoholic influence. Moore was sentenced because, when he was called as McErlane's guard to explain the prisoner's condition, he also was discovered to be unsteady.

A raid on an apartment adjoining the jail was believed today to have dried up a principal source of jail booze. Beer and liquor were confiscated by the raiders, who discovered hot water bottles in which they believed intoxicants were smuggled into the jail. One whistle from the jail cells brought whisky and two whistles brought beer, they said.

The whistling, police said, would cause a messenger to be sent with the rubber containers concealed beneath his coat and, once in the jail, the intoxicants would be delivered by means of rubber tubing through the bars.

Through organized advertising and the constructive activities that have sprung from it, practices in advertising and selling have been revolutionized in the past quarter of a century, and put on a sound, profit-making basis.

This Association conducts 12,000 fact-finding meetings a year that are bringing to light new information, new ideas and workable plans that are every day increasing the profits made through better and more effective uses of advertising.

Through 40 national and one great international convention held within its membership of many highly organized groups each year, it is focusing attention of the public upon the part advertising plays in the economic distribution of the world's commodities: it is showing how advertising is serving the great buying public and making that service of constantly increased value.

Through 44 local and our National Better Business Bureau, it is eliminating advertising that is misleading, deceptive or fraudulent and thereby making advertising of great service value. It is giving the public increased confidence in advertising and thereby making it more resultful.

It inaugurated the slogan, "Truth-in-Advertising" and now it is emphasizing that the public may well have "Belief in Advertising." Its slogan, "Before you Invest—Investigate" has saved millions of honest earned dollars to the investing public.

Through the Advertising Club of New York and the Better Business Bureau of New York City, business firms throughout the metropolitan district are asked to put a few dollars of invested capital into this highly constructive, forward-going movement. It has twenty-two years of accomplishment back of it, the endorsement of leaders in every line, here and abroad, and its possibilities of future service are limited only by its financial support.

THREE MORE DEATHS IN BUS CRASH LIKELY

Last Bodies of Ten Killed in Accident Near Nyack Are Identified There.

51 PERSONS IN CAR FOR 30

Driver Held for First Degree Manslaughter—Coroner's Inquest on Monday.

Twenty-eight operations were performed in the Nyack Hospital, Nyack, N. Y., yesterday on ten persons injured on Thursday night near Sparkill, N. Y., when a bus carrying members of the old Menahan Neighbors' Association of Brooklyn sped down a hill and crashed into a brick building, killing ten of its occupants and injuring forty-one others. It was 3 o'clock in the afternoon when Dr. William Leightner finished his work of setting broken bones, sewing up lacerations and dressing wounds. He had been continuously at work seventeen hours.

Two of the ten dead who were not recognized on Thursday night were identifed yesterday. They were Mrs. Theresa Bleimeyer of 1727 Bleecker Street, Brooklyn, and Mrs. Anna Shulz of 739 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn. Three others are likely to die. They are Mrs. Emma Baumbun of 727 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, whose skull is fractured; Mrs. Katherine Muhs of 1808 Stanhope Street, Brooklyn, one of whose lungs was punctured by fractured ribs, and George Bruernels of 57 Menahan Street, who has internal injuries.

Vehicle Law Questioned.

While Menahan Street and its neighborhood was in mourning yesterday after the worst bus accident in the history of New York State, attention was focused on the Motor Vehicle law, which, it was asserted, failed to insure inspections of such public conveyances against defective brakes and to require special qualifications for drivers. The accident also drew attention to the clause which requires a bond of only $2,500 to satisfy claims after accidents. With ten dead and forty-one injured, it was estimated that legitimate damage claims might be 200 times that amount. A fight was made in the Legislature to increase the bond, but the proposal was defeated.

Daniel J. Lastro was the driver of the bus, which he owns. The records of the New York Motor Vehicle Bureau show that he had a license to drive a bus carrying not more than thirty passengers. He actually carried fifty-one at the time of the wreck.

Lastro balked investigation of the disaster yesterday by demanding more time when he was taken before Magistrate Bert Leightner in Piermont on a charge of first degree manslaughter. The hearing was postponed until Tuesday. Coroner William Childs will begin his inquest on Monday. From court Lastro was returned to a cell in the jail in New City, having been held without bail.

Frank J. Ryan, Deputy Commissioner of Motor Vechicle Bureau, 220 West Fortieth Street, said the license issued to Lastro, was for a Mack bus of thirty-passenger capacity. The license plate is 052765. Mr. Ryan said Lastro was insured by the Public Service Mutual Casualty Insurance Company as required of every omnibus driver. The annual fee is $67.50.

A driver at the Fernbrook Sightseeing Company, 206 West Eighteenth Street, the address given by Lasto at the Motor Bureau, said the bus had been owned by the Manhattan Sightseeing Company and that Lastro had taken it as his share of stock when the company was split up.

Woman Tells of Crash.

A Buick touring car, which sped up the hill directly in the path of the bus was one cause of the crash, Mrs. William Smith of 77 Menahan Street said yesterday. She was seated beside Lastro. She said it loomed directly in front of the bus, which was traveling no faster than thirty-five miles an hour. She heard Lastro exclaim, she said, "Oh, my God! That's the end." She remembered no more until she was taken from the wreck.

Relatives went to the hospital and the morgue in Nyack in a stream yesterday. John Reiter had read the names of his wife and 12-year-old daughter among those listed in the morning newspaper as dead. He arrived at the morgue at 4:30 A. M. and identified the bodies.

Mrs. Joseph Barth of 1,866 Stanhope Street was killed on her birthday. It was partly in honor of her birthday that her friends decided to hold the outing on July 22.

Mrs. Gustave Schulz of 739 Myrtle Avenue was identified by her husband. He had known nothing of the picnic and did not know where his wife was when he went home that night. He read of the accident in the newspapers.

Charges Fast Driving.

Mrs. Adam Fink of 77 Menahan Street said a bus had been hired from the Riverside Sightseeing Company and Chester Sherman had been selected to drive them. At Irvington, she said, tire trouble developed and Sherman telephoned back for aid. Lastro was sent out and took the party into his machine.

After an hour at Bear Mountain, she said, the party started for home. She continued:

"We drove fast—much too fast—all the way. Then came that hill near Nyack. The chauffeur lost control. He simply seemed to give up. He threw both his hands up into the air and yelled. Every one else screamed. We struck a house and I lost consciousness."

Survivors said yesterday they had not thought of taking action against the driver; they were too taken up with their own sorrows.

FLAGG TRIES IN VAIN TO SAVE DROWNING MAN

Artist Drags to Land St. Louis Resident Overcome by Heart Disease.

BIDDEFORD POOL, Me., July 23 (AP).—James Montgomery Flagg, the artist, was hailed as a hero here today for his attempt to save Isaac Cook, a wealthy St. Louis real estate man, from drowning in a severe storm last night.

Mr. Cook met death in the ocean when he tried to recover a canoe, the property of one of his sons, as the boat started seaward lashed by a heavy gale which had just broken.

Perceiving that the boat was riding to sea, Mr. Cook ran from his cottage and plunged into the water fully clothed. Mr. Flagg, whose Summer home adjoins that of Mr. Cook, saw his neighbor struggling in the waves and dashed to his assistance.

The artist succeeded in dragging him from the water, and a call was sent to a near-by life-saving station, but a physician who had been summoned found the St. Louis man dead. A heart attack while in the water had caused death, the doctor said.

Mr. Cook, who was 60, had made his home here for twenty-five years. His wife and three children were at the cottage at the time of the accident.

PHILHARMONIC CONCERT.

Willem van Hoogstraten Gives a Diversified Program.

The Philharmonic Orchestra, directed by Willem van Hoogstraten, gave a diversified program at the Stadium last evening. The attendance was not large, because of the uncertain weather. The symphony was Brahms's Second, which supplied the richness of its four movements to balance the brilliance of the "Roman Carnival" overture, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Spanish Caprice," and Honegger's "Pacific 231," that made up the first half of the program.

Two Frenchmen separated by a Russian, two romantics opposed to a modern, and the romantics won. The melodious Rimsky-Korsakoff, who for the moment expressed himself through a Spanish medium, made a wonderful contrast to Honegger's idea of a locomotive. Mr. Honegger may have imagined that he was idealizing an engineering miracle, but the epic is all on the side of the actual machine and not in its musical counterpart. However, it met with the favor of the audience, and the encore was the lively "Irish Tune from County Derry," arranged by Percy Grainger.

Tonight there will be a popular program featuring Wagner, Grieg, Tchaikovsky, Carpentier and Johannes Strauss.

FAIRBANKS GOES TO POLAND

Ovation in Moscow for Film Stars Overcomes Mary Pickford.

MOSCOW, July 23 (AP).—Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks left for Warsaw, Poland, yesterday afternoon after having received for two days the greatest popular ovation ever received by foreigners in Soviet Russia.

Even the death and funeral of Felix E. Dzerzhinsky, Chairman of the Supreme Gouncil of National Economy, did not seem to cool the ardor of Russia's movie fans. The screen stars had little rest during their two days in Moscow. "Doug" enjoyed things immensely, but the strain was too much for Mary, resulting in a case of complete nervous exhaustion.

France Honors Horace Liveright.

Horace Liveright, publisher and theatrical producer, received the title and decoration of Officier d'Academie from Maxime Mongendre, French Consul General, at the consulate, 9 East Fortieth Street, yesterday. The award was made for Mr. Liveright's services to French letters in publishing the works of many French authors. This is the first time that an American publisher has received the decoration.

New Delay for Thorne and Elliott.

MONTREAL, Que., July 23 (AP).—Philip Elliott and Richard Thorne who are fighting extradition to the United States, were remanded for another eight days today, following the non-arrival of extradition papers. The men were arrested here upon an indictment by a jury in New York State, charging that they attacked Miss Violet Anderson, an actress.

REED IN CHICAGO TO SIFT PRIMARY

Senator Says the Inquiry Which Opens Next Week Will Be Thorough and Fair.

DECLINES TO FORECAST

Smith, Brennan and Insull Will Be Called Early in Hearing—McKinley Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who was in Chicago today preparatory to Monday's opening of the investigation of the Illinois Senatorial primary election held on April 13, said the hearing would go thoroughly into all phases of that contest.

"We will follow where nature and common sense lead us," Senator Reed said, "always, of course, being governed by the scope of the Senate resolution authorizing us to make this inquiry."

"I do not know what witness we will call first, but we must start somewhere," the Senator added. "My understanding is that there are a dozen or so witnesses already summoned, with more to follow. The committee will naturally want to accommodate itself as much as possible to the time limitations of important factors in the hearing, and courtesies along these lines will be exchanged. I cannot tell now in what order we will call the witnesses."

Senator Reed has word that Senators Goff and McNary, other members of the committee, will not be here until later. He expects Senators King and La Follette in Chicago Monday.

"I have no pre-judgment, and am certain no member of the committee has," said Senator Reed. "We want a fair and impartial hearing. We want the truth. We will be thorough and we will interpret our instructions most liberally, so that all circumstances needful can be followed through."

"I make no prognostications and leave speculations and opinions to others. I cannot control either and am not responsible for either," he continued, declaring that he had no advance opinion and no set notion about what had happened in the Illinois Senatorial primary battle on either side of the political house.

"The testimony brought out must speak for itself," the Senator asserted.

Asked if he felt that possible use of money to influence opinions and support of newspapers in the primary came within the scope of the inquiry, he esaid he thought it would if improper use of the money was made.

"I cannot undertake to speak for the other members of this committee," he said. "As for myself, I would follow corrupt use of the press just as far as corrupt use of organizations, political or otherwise, and I think my colleagues feel the same way about it."

Among the witnesses summoned for Monday are Colonel Frank L. Smith, winner in the Republican Senatorial fight; George E. Brennan, Democratic Senatorial nominee, and Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities leader.

Chester A. Willoughby, secretary to United States Senator William B. McKinley, arrived today in response to a subpoena issued to him in Washington. Senator McKinley is all at his home in Washington and has not yet received a subpoena.

ACTOR STRICKEN ON STAGE

Edouard Durand Has a Stroke in the Premiere of "The Stolen Lady."

Special to The New York Times.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., July 23.—While suffering from the heat of the day, Edouard Durand, well-known actor, was stricken last night by paralysis at the close of a speech he made in the first act of "The Stolen Lady," which was having its première at the Mamaroneck Playhouse.

Crane Wilbur, author of the play and recently co-star with Alice Brady, was one of the first to reach Durand's side after the curtain was rung down.

Durand was rushed to the United Hospital at Port Chester. His condition today was said to be slightly improved, although he was not out of danger. His left side is partly paralyzed. He asked how the play had been received and was told that it had met with a fine reception. Mr. Wilbur, the author, had stepped into his part.

"The Stolen Lady," a comedy, is a John Golden venture, starring Leo Carrillo, and is scheduled to open in New York on Aug. 2.

ASKS SMITH TO OUST SARATOGA OFFICIALS

Head of Taxpayers' Association Accuses Sheriff and Others of Upholding Gambling.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 23.—Removal from office of Sheriff Arthur G. Wilmot, District Attorney Charles B. Andrus and Commissioner of Public Safety Arthur J. Leonard and an investigation of alleged gambling in Saratoga Springs is asked by Peter A. Finley, President of the Saratoga Springs Taxpayers' Association, in a petition to Governor Smith, which followed warning letters sent to the officials several days ago.

In one paragraph of his petition Mr. Finley says he believes "that such neglect to prosecute or suppress illegal gambling is the result of an agreement and conspiracy by and between said officers and gamblers, whereby the profits derived from illegal gambling operations are apportioned by fixed percentages among them."

Accompanying the petition was a letter in which Mr. Finley said to the Governor:

"There is gossip here in the city that this application to you for relief as to the matters set forth in the petition will either be denied or put off until after August. This gossip arises from the prevalent opinion in this city that you will do everything to protect your friend, Arthur J. Leonard, who is charged with neglect of duty as in my petition and to protect other friends of yours who are anticipating opening gambling houses, one of whom, I am informed is Tim Mara, a bookmaker operating on the race tracks around New York who intends, in cooperation with one Jim Beattie, to operate the gambling concessions at Riley's on Lake Lonely.

"You know that gambling, vice and official corruption prevail here during August."

Bloodworth Praises Pastor Who Slew Chipps and Is Sure Order Supports Him.

FORT WORTH, Texas., July 23 (AP).—Texas Ku Klux Klansmen are supporting the Rev. Dr. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Fort Worth, who last Saturday shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman, in the opinion of Lloyd P. Bloodworth, Grand Dragon of the Klan in Texas.

Bloodworth in a statement today said that while he could not speak officially for the Texas Klan organization as a whole, it was his belief that Klansmen in the State are "with" the minister in his fight for vindication.

"I have known Dr. Norris for seventeen years, and in that time he has been an outstanding crusader for Protestant Christianity," said Bloodworth. "In every great moral fight that has taken place in the city of Forth Worth Dr. Norris has ever been ready to champion the cause of right.

"I am not attempting to speak officially for the Klansmen of Texas, but I presume to know their attitude in regard to free speech, free press, free conscience and the freedom of worship.

"The first law of all is the law of self-preservation, and it has been so since the beginning of time. Therefore a man must defend himself in a time of emergency.

"In conclusion I wish to say I have a very high regard for Dr. Norris and it is my sincere belief that the Klansmen of Texas are with him in his fight."

MUSIC NOTES.

The Lyric Grand Opera Company of Starlight Amusement Park will present "Carmen" tonight for the first time this season. Martha Mellis will sing the role of Carmen. Blanche Zuber. The program consisted of numbers by Tchaikovsky, Grieg, Weber, M. Bemberg, Yradier and excerpts from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana."

BLONDS OF CHORUS THREATEN A STRIKE

Say Mr. Ziegfeld Must Retract His Assertion That Gentlemen Prefer Brunettes.

DEMAND RISE OF PAY, TOO

No Aspersion Intended, Explains Producer—Merely Meant Blond Beauties Were Plentiful.

The blond members of the chorus of Ziegfeld's Revue have organized and voted, it was announced yesterday, to strike next Wednesday unless Mr. Ziegfeld retracts his utterance that gentlemen prefer brunettes and titians.

The committeewomen who were appointed yesterday to represent the blond organization said that the "disparaging remarks of the producer threatened to decrease the earning power of every blond actress and chorus girl on the stage." Mr. Ziegfeld is alleged to have said "A few blonds are enough." Not only that, he has begun to enlist an all-brunette chorus for his next production.

"If any one thinks this is a joke, he is in error," said Paulette Goddard, the leader of the blond committee. "When Mr. Ziegfeld denies that blonds are popular, and when he seeks to exclude them from his next show, the effect on us is very, very serious. Our blond complexion is our capital, and when Mr. Ziegfeld rates us below brunettes and titians he hurts our standing. If his views are followed by other producers, as they are likely to be, it may become hard for blonds to obtain positions. Mr. Ziegfeld's attempt to influence the public against blonds has not only hurt our feelings. It has caused us to be worried about our future.

"So we held a meeting, attended by more than twenty blond members of the chorus, and voted unanimously to go on strike unless Mr. Ziegfeld retracted and raised the salaries of all blonds in his chorus 50 per cent. We want the extra salary as compensation for the injury done us, but what we are most concerned about is vindication. There is no doubt at all that blonds are more popular than brunettes. Everybody knows that. Mr. Ziegfeld has no right to say anything different."

The striking blond committee, whose members are Paulette Goddard, Ruth Grace and Kae English, had originally set this afternoon, just after pay envelopes are distributed, as the time for the strike, unless Mr. Ziegfeld retracted and promised financial reparation by noon. It was decided, however, to let him meditate until Wednesday on what he has done.

"Mr. Ziegfeld has brought a great deal of ridicule on us," said Miss Grace. "The stage hands point at a blond and say, 'You're out.' Then they point at the next one and say, 'You're out,' and so on. Then the others shout at us 'Gentlemen don't prefer blonds' and things of that kind. We had to do something to protect ourselves. We'll show Mr. Ziegfeld that blonds have some standing in this community."

Miss English said that the producer's sudden desertion of the blond had caused particular chagrin to the members of his chorus, because the blonds predominated in it at the ratio of three to one.

One of the members of the committee has dark eyes and not too light hair. She is classed as a blond. Miss Goddard, the Chairman, explained the principle of classification into types that had been adopted by the committee.

"We consider them blonds if they're on our side," she said. "Blondness is a state of mind."

Mr. Ziegfeld denied yesterday that he had disparaged blonds.

"I have never said anything against blonds," he said. "It seems to be true that there are more beautiful blonds than beautiful brunettes. Beautiful brunettes are the rarer article. I am trying to organize a chorus of only brunettes for my next show, but the reason is that the scene is placed in South America. I love blonds as much as I ever did. In future shows I intend to use them in about the same proportions as at present.

"I am having my troubles finding beautiful brunettes. Plenty of beautiful blonds have come and offered to become beautiful brunettes for the season, but that doesn't interest me. I don't like synthetic blonds or brunettes. There's nothing worse than a synthetic blond.

"If they want to strike, let 'em strike. Anybody that wants to strike during this weather is welcome."

GERMANY AND FRANCE.

All this week the dispatches have shown the extraordinary interest which Berlin has taken in the events at Paris. This means much more than the natural curiosity or fellow-feeling of a country which itself had passed through the agonies of currency inflation and the temporary destruction of the national standard of value. It was obvious that German concern had other and deeper reasons. There was a fear that the good political understanding with France, which had been manifested in so many ways during recent months, might be endangered. Then there was that whole series of business negotiations between the two countries, especially those affecting coal mining and steel manufacture, which contained even more promise for the two peoples than did any mere diplomatic agreement. There were, in fact, causes in plenty for the keen interest which Germany has been taking in French affairs.

In today's TIMES is published a noteworthy article by an English political correspondent touching on the whole subject of the increasing friendship between Germany and France. He cites case after case in which German political and financial interests have made approaches to the French. What they desire is not only better relations, but a general system of cooperation and mutual aid in developing the resources of the two countries, and preparing them to resume their old and rightful place in the European economy. In this getting together of the two nations the anonymous writer mentioned sees a possible peril for England. Should the rapprochement continue, he fears that the British may find themselves isolated to some extent not only commercially but in international politics.

This, however, seems to be a case of unnecessary suspicion and alarm. There can be no thought of anything aggressive, especially in a military sense, in these proposals for joint action between France and Germany. They will simply be consulting their common interest, which is only another way of saying the interest of all Europe, including Great Britain. Unless she is ready to abandon her old proud boasts, she will expect to find her profit in the restoration and upbuilding of Continental markets, provided she is permitted to compete in them on equal terms and without fear or favor.

ENDING THE STRIKE.

In favor of the little group of men who brought on the subway strike it cannot even be said that they know when they are beaten. The strikers signally failed to win public sympathy, and the reason was not entirely because the public resented the inconvenience to which it was subjected by a few hundred motormen and switchmen. It has happened in other strikes that the public which suffers inconvenience or actual deprivation will at the same time admit the existence of something like a case for the strikers. There was no such reaction in the present instance. A strike for higher wages usually seeks to establish its primary justification by emphasizing the "bloated" profits of the industry. But it would require an exceedingly vivid imagination to discover the swollen profits of the I. R. T. The conflict was precipitated in face of the company's promise of a wage lift next year if the recent improvement in its financial condition continued.

Public opinion was chiefly affected by the consideration that the strike obviously involved something more than a quarrel over wages. It was an attempt to introduce warfare in place of negotiation in the relations between the I. R. T. and its employes. To speak slightingly of the I. R. T. Brotherhood as a "company union" does not dispose of the matter. It is at any rate a union which has served to maintain peace in the operation of a great public utility without sacrificing the interests of the workers. The brotherhood consented to a wage reduction when conditions compelled and secured a partial restoration when conditions warranted. But the principle of peace through conference was threatened when less than a thousand men seceded from an organization of more than 15,000 men. It was announcement of a new strike technique by which a few skilled men, so-called "key men," endeavor to capitalize their advantageous position at the expense of both their fellow-workers and the public. When key men strike the public cannot be blamed for concluding that they are not striking because they have a grievance, but because they have the power. The strike against the public is fast becoming an anomaly. It is an absurdity when the proportion is less than a thousand strikers against a community of six million people.

Now that the affair is practically ended there is reason for congratulation that it has been unattended by violence and that it does not promise to leave rancor behind it. The community will be glad when it sees the strikers back on their jobs as important factors in the operation of what is generally recognized to be the most ably conducted transportation system anywhere. While admitting defeat, one of the leaders of the strike could not deny himself the luxury of a Napoleonic gesture. "Obey "your leaders now and go back, and "when the call comes again answer "it." That is nonsense. There should not be, and there will not be in all probability, any further calls to battle. The city's transportation workers must develop some other form of technique than the strike for the purpose of getting their grievances before the public.

INCONSISTENT RAILWAY DECISIONS.

Railway men may be excused for bewilderment when the Interstate Commerce Commission reverses itself between March and July. In March its opinion was that the Rio Grande Valley of Texas was sufficiently served by the Missouri Pacific Railway, and that the public interest did not require new construction. But now the commission, by 8 to 3, authorizes the Southern Pacific to build extensions of the San Antonio & Aransas Pass into that region. Much more is involved than the construction of something over a hundred miles of railway.

The State of Texas intervened to challenge the commission's jurisdiction in such a purely intrastate affair. It is natural that competing railways should hold different views, and the two Pacific lines naturally wish to round out their systems strategically in the march toward consolidation. If there is not too much traffic for one of them, there will be too little for two. Yet there is a possibility that traffic may be created rather than divided and diverted. One of the new lines runs to the Mexican boundary at a practicable crossing of the Rio Grande. Those who are to finance it may have better vision than those who oppose it. Whatever the outcome, the commission cannot be wrong in both decisions. Its reversal of itself is a sign that regulation is not an exact science, but a matter of business judgment.

MOSES IN SHIRTSLEEVES.

Clam chowder when the mercury says 100 in the shade is for other midsts than ours; but it is good to see Massachusetts true to tradition. It is better to see the Essex County Republican Club, 1,000 strong and 100 per cent. pure, sitting down, steaming, to the steaming cate, and "enjoying" two hours of yawp afterward. The feast was on the shores of Lake Chebacco in ancient Wenham. We hear the Salem Cadet Band playing, as usual. Mr. BEVERIDGE, overlooking "JIM" WATSON, has Mr. COOLIDGE renominated by acclamation. In The Boston Herald here's metal more attractive; Senator MOSES, in his shirtsleeves, is near Senator BUTLER, who, from his interest in textiles, keeps on his coat. BUTLER looks sad. MOSES looks joyous. He had just "jollied" the Chairman of the Republican National Committee: "I have seen him "in his own right win a great place "in the United States Senate."

Senator BUTLER hurried back to Boston to get in his nomination papers. So many Massachusetts Republicans are cold to what Mr. MOSES calls their "duty" to Mr. BUTLER that he seems to need to take off his coat much more than his facetious friend from New Hampshire. All the Republican papers in New Hampshire are for MOSES. He has been attacked for not being a good Coolidge man. So he is circulating "a reprint of his "speech on the Revenue bill which "bears the written endorsement of "CALVIN COOLIDGE and will be reproduced in his own handwriting with "the President's permission." Former Governor BASS, who wants the Moses shoes, is a citizen of credit and renown and as good a fellow as a reformer can be; but he or his managers have some queer kinks in their intellectuals. According to a correspondent of The Boston Transcript, they are trying to make the New Hampshire farmers straight Corn Belters:

"There were thirty-two farm measures proposed in Congress and you "voted against twenty-eight of "them," said a Bass supporter accusingly to MOSES one day. "That's "a lie. I voted against thirty-two of "them," retorted the blunt MOSES instantly.

A former Master of the State Grange came out for BASS. Great joy among the Bassites, soon damped. "JIM" REED's committee brought out the fact that the former Master was one of Mr. BASS's hired men. The often quoted mistake of MOSES that "any "law that makes buttermilk intoxi-"cating is a jackass law" still irritates the Drys; but in what seems the present public temper may do him more good than harm. Finally, he has a position of distinction in the Senate; and at home, if he has made enemies, he is respected for his frankness and courage. He has a blend of qualities, a personality and individualism, that make him a mighty hard man to beat. He won't really take his coat off until some time in September. One fancies that he is not greatly perturbed. On the other hand, Mr. BUTLER's worry is not about nomination, but about election.

MODIFIED GOLF LANGUAGE.

A couple of weeks ago a man was haled into an English police court and fined "for using bad language." The astonishing thing is that he was punished for having used it "in the hearing of members of a golf club." They seem to have been the complainants. If so, it shows what has become of the fine old tradition of golf as the great begetter of picturesque profanity. Now it would appear that we have fallen on such lily-livered days that golfers, far from swearing themselves, must be protected from contamination by the profanity of others. Gone are the days of the terrible Major in a bunker with such terrible language issuing from its depths that affrighted onlookers stopped their ears and ran away rather than "hear" him play. According to this new ruling of the English police magistrate, the only safety would be that of the clergyman on the links who topped his ball into an awful trap and was said to have indulged in "the most profane silence" ever observed.

Whatever the law or facts of the case, there can be no question that a great change has come over what may be called the etiquette of golf. It used to be the fashion to invoke the malevolent gods at every messed shot and to indulge in excesses of violent temper. That kind of thing is no longer good form. If the unhappy player must swear, he now does it softly and to himself. As for angrily breaking one's clubs over one's knee in a passion, or knocking an offending ball deep into the forest, one guilty of such practices on the links would today be looked at askance and pityingly. The fine moral quality of the game has asserted itself in the general change of manners, at least in public, and in the conviction that he that conquereth his spirit is greater than he that makes a hole under par.

A REAL "DOMSIE."

Dr. FRANK MORTON MCMURRY, in whose honor a dinner was given last night by his associates and students, past and present, celebrating the completion of his forty years of teaching service, is a real "domsie," as the Scotch would say, but of the new school. He had the qualities of the Domsie of IAN MACLAREN'S stories, the love of teaching and the capacity for it as if a "born teacher," but he did not rely merely upon his native ability and predilection. He equipped himself in the technique of teaching ("the artistic technique of the classroom," Dean RUSSELL called it) through study under the greatest masters in his younger days and through his own first-hand studies during forty years. In all the tributes of those who spoke of his contribution, there was emphasis upon his teaching. The word "educator" was not used. He belonged to a higher order. He was "the teacher."

Others whose names are linked with his during this period have contributed, as one of the speakers said, to the philosophy of education, the history of education, educational psychology and tests and experiments, but he stands "almost alone among "university men in his devotion and "his contributions to good teaching." He has written for the guidance of others in acquiring the art of conducting recitations and provoking study, but his chief contribution has been in his own self, personality and method as a teacher. He has himself been "a living example of his creed." He has not devised new pedagogical vocabularies. He has found the words of common everyday life adequate, on the whole, for his uses. He has not spent his energies on definitions, valuable as they are in the classification of knowledge. It may be said that his method has been to set the child in the midst of his disciples, instead of theorizing about the child in refining terms of abstraction remote from the living ultimate object of concern.

When the graduates of the Domsie's school in Drumtochty came back for a celebration in his honor, there was talk among the neighbors of strengthening the supports of the bridge for the "wecht o' knowledge" that would pass over it in the persons of the university professors and others of scholarly distinction. The procession of those whom Dr. FRANK MCMURRY has taught would probably be some hours in passing a given point in Fifth Avenue and of such personnel as to justify the suggestion that he has found "a short way to immortality" in having trained many before whom similar processions might in the future pass, and so on ad infinitum. Dr. MCMURRY has made a great contribution to education in these forty years as a teacher, but not as an "educator"; he has taught himself and has in his own teaching best taught others how to teach. What CHAUCER said of the Clerk of Oxenford may most aptly be said of him:

Gladly wolde he lerne and gladly teche.

FISH IN THE GREAT LAKES.

That the old pioneer confidence in the inexhaustibility of nature, coupled with modern methods of emptying refuse of all sorts into rivers and lakes, is curtailing the supply of fish in the Great Lakes is apparent from a report by Dr. WALTER KOELZ of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, recently published by the Department of Commerce. "We are faced with the "extermination of the sturgeon in all "the lakes" the report reads, "of the "bluefin in Lake Superior, the blackfin in Lake Michigan, and the bloater "in Lake Ontario, and with the reduction of the whitefish from first place "in abundance in 1880 to fourth place "in 1922." In the meantime there has been a steady increase in the quantity and variety of apparatus used in fishing, with no corresponding efforts to maintain or increase the supply. Wasteful methods of fishing have been common, and no attempts to check them have been made. It is the old story of earning a few more dollars today by destroying tomorrow's supplies. Conservation of fish has not kept pace with conservation of other natural resources.

The pollution factor has been great. Not only have modern industrial plants made barren some of the most productive fishing grounds by pouring poisonous refuse into them, but lumbermen and even the fishermen themselves have contributed to the damage to the lake waters. Sawdust, waterlogged bark and even decaying logs have clogged up the bottom in portions of the lakes, with disastrous effects on aquatic life. The dumping of fish offal into the water has also been common, despite the fact that this is prohibited by law. Owing to the cold waters at the bottom—they average about 40 degrees Fahrenheit—this matter decomposes slowly and so contaminates the water for long periods.

By way of conserving the fish supply, Dr. KOELZ suggests that regulations somewhat comparable to those limiting the taking of game birds be put into effect, providing a maximum catch as well as establishing a closed season during spawning time. Owing to conflicting laws about fishing in the Great Lakes, passed by the different States and the Canadian Provinces, he suggests that an international organization be formed through which coordinated control of the fisheries may be secured. It is not impossible that the desired objective can be obtained by a treaty between the United States and Canada, similar to the Migratory Game Bird treaty, which determines the outside limits within which the various Governments may establish their own game laws. Fish in the Great Lakes are in somewhat the same status as migratory game. The waters border different States and Provinces. Uniformity of fishing regulation, at least within general limits, would surely be to the benefit of all concerned.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Defended Himself and the City.

If ever a man deserved a statue to perpetuate his memory it is AARON RODACK, who kept a little jewelry store in upper Broadway, and died on Thursday, a true hero.

Seemingly his death was merely in defense of his own property; really it had a much larger object and served a much larger purpose. Easily one can say that AARON RODACK would have been wiser had he submitted, as so many other citizens of New York have done, when confronted by armed robbers, thrown up his hands, and allowed them to take what they would. He did not have that sort of wisdom; instead he had a courage that pistols could not daunt and a determination to defend to the end, not so much his petty belongings as his rights as a dweller in a city supposed to be civilized.

And it was not this week that the man first showed this courage. Twice before he had been attacked in the same way, and his reaction was the same. The least aggressive of men, according to his neighbors, he could and would fight when fighting was necessary. He twice drove away the villainous assailants, and once he killed one of them. The third time also the cowards fled when they found that they had encountered a real man, but, not content with that, AARON RODACK did what every good General does—he pursued and tried to destroy the hostile army as it retreated.

Then it was that a chance shot from one of the briganda laid him low—a lamentable result of his display of civic virtue at its highest. For a death so honorable the tribute should be something more than mere mourning.

They're Not Looking for Battles.

AARON RODACK laid down for himself the rule that only after he had been killed would he be robbed. It is not a rule for all, and it is condemned by the police. Just the same, if it were accepted and followed, not by everybody—that would be impossible—but by even a large minority of male citizens, soon little would be heard of the new brigandage which the automobile has done so much to facilitate.

If the bandits knew that every attack they made on honest citizens was more than likely to bring on a pitched battle for life and death, with not all the chances on one side, what now looks to them like "easy money" would lose attraction. They are not fighters, these fellows, except as cornered rats are fighters; they are murderers and assassins, ready enough to kill, but far from ready to be killed. Their one idea is surprise attack and then an instant flight with such booty as they hastily can snatch up.

If it be true that against this sort of banditry the police are nearly helpless, so far as prevention goes, then the honest citizen must rely upon himself for defense or go without it. In serving himself AARON RODACK served the whole city and set an example which all must praise and those of as high spirit as his will emulate.

It Should Be Borne With Patience.

Too much importance should not be attached to the fact that American tourists in Paris are likely, just now, to have unpleasant experiences when they make their nationality too obvious. The irritation they excite as they go about spending their big dollars changed for so many little francs is understandable enough.

Those who are doing the hooting and whistling at the sight-seers probably are not typical Frenchmen, but representatives of the class which in every city is always glad to utilize an opportunity to be disorderly, and it is to be noted that the conduct of the police and other responsible authorities has been perfect from our point of view.

On this page there was printed yesterday an admirable letter from an American father to his daughter in Paris. He had been disquieted by some of the things she had written to him about her new neighbors, and he gave her the very best of advice—advice which our travelers in France or any other foreign country would do well to heed and follow.

He told her to remember that she was a guest and should have the manners of a guest, refraining from criticism of things different from what she was accustomed to at home. He reminded her that Paris for centuries had been most hospitable to strangers, and that if now it had changed there was a reason for it.

Americans are not hooted in the streets of London, but some of them report having found there more evidences of a deep-lying hostility than in the French capital. The highest praise the Britishers, or some of them, can give an American whom personally they like is to say, "Why, you are just like an Englishman," and the surprise that goes with this admission is hard to bear. But the Australians and the Canadians suffer in the same way.

It Is Simply a Case of Starvation.

A professional "tree surgeon" who has been examining and experimenting with the trees in Central Park declares that there is nothing desperate about the situation there. It can be remedied, he says, in a very simple way—by giving the trees the available plant food they need and now lack.

That is considerably easier to say than to do, but it can be done, and then the trees will grow as they do up in Westchester, say, where the land lies much as it does in the park and the soil almost everywhere is but a thin covering for rock.

Trees, as a matter of fact, are well able to take care of themselves almost anywhere if only they are allowed to follow their ancient devices. If their leaves could lie where they fall they would die of neither hunger nor thirst. That hardly can be done in a park, however, and where so much constantly is taken away much must be returned as a continuous policy. In a park nature cannot take its course, and trouble follows except where the conditions are particularly favorable.

Cheese, Royalty and Americanisms.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Being a regular reader (and an Englishman), I cannot refrain from referring to an item on page 17 of your issue of today, headed "King Likes Animals in Cheese." There are two expressions contained in what is presumably supposed to be a verbatim report of a conversation which immediately show that this is not verbatim. The King is reputed to have said that he likes cheese "good and ripe," and the bacteriologist is said to have addressed one of the Queen's Ladies in Waiting as "ma'am." Both these expressions are entirely American and are probably never used in modern English as spoken in England. It is almost safe to assume that these expressions were never used.

Locks for Fire Hydrants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The "awful" waste of water from the fire hydrants that are being turned on all over the city ought to be stopped. The simple way would be to equip the hydrants with locks, so that only the Fire Department could open them. JULIUS KRAMER.

AMERICA'S OPPORTUNITY.

R. Fulton Cutting Visions a National Nobility in Freeing Debtors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The reply of Mr. Mellon to a letter from Mr. Peabody of Massachusetts upon the subject of cancellation of war debts seems to me a painful attempt to justify a forecast of the Republican platform of 1928. It recalls the Spartan tenet calling "that which is just, equal" rather than "that" which is equal, just."

Shall we really collect that last penny of our foreign war indebtedness? Never! Long before the 62 years of economic bondage we are imposing upon our quondam allies shall have elapsed we shall cancel whatever remains of their obligations. The coming American will condemn the effort to squeeze out of these impoverished peoples for more than half a century the hard-earned surplus of their productive toil.

Our protective policy prohibits their competing in our markets. Our immigration laws limit the number whom we admit to the blessings of this favored land. But we exhibit our generosity by reducing the rate of interest on our loans and extending the time of ultimate payment for 62 years. To a good many of us the protection of our industries and the limitation of immigration are justifiable measures of self-defense, but when the iron-bound gates of our Chinese wall only swing open to receive the treasure of tribute States, we cannot but feel a sense of incongruity.

Did the inspirting altruism of the liberation of Cuba exhaust the idealism of the American people? Was the restoration to China of the Boxer indemnity a regrettable mistake? We aspire to the moral leadership of the world, but who will best merit that distinction—the peoples bending low under the crushing burdens imposed by the late war and triumphing over the Giant Despair, or ourselves, measurably spectators only in this drama of resurgent civilization?

Let us find some method of practical cancellation for all indebtedness incurred in actual combat and liberate our debtors from the desperate task of meeting those obligations to us. The Athenian orator Isocrates once declared that "the greatest glory of the Helenes" existed in the fact "that their name stood not so much for nationality as for a degree of culture, that it represented an intellectual rather than a physical agreement."

We have today an opportunity to make America a synonym of national nobility, to express a quality of popular sovereignty that it sadly needs to exhibit.

$100 Offer to Aid France

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If Frederick W. Peabody of Ashburnham, Mass., is correct in his statement of the French debt settlement, I believe an injustice has been done France. Therefore I will forward to any properly designated depository a $100 Liberty bond to apply on France's debt to us, believing in the end I will be better off than if our bickering Congress or Treasury tries to make the proper adjustment.

Willing to Contribute

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am an American and a friend of France and the French people. We helped them win the war—why don't we help them to win in peace times too?

If I were wealthy I would endeavor to start a fund to relieve the sufferings of those who feel the fall of the franc, and if such a fund is started I want to contribute. But above all, why can't the American people be told the real state of affairs and stand by a stanch and true ally in times of peace as well as in times of war? If Americans are being insulted in France by French people, as one who has observed and knows how some of them act over there, let me say it is their own fault. They overact, overeat and overdrink, in the majority of cases, and provoke the wrath of even Americans who think and act differently.

British Women Bitter Toward Us.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It was with great interest I read of the petition by Frederick Peabody asking for the cancellation of the war debts. It was a pleasure to know that there existed an American with a sense of honor and with high ideals. We in Europe often hear talk of American "ideals"—so far we have seen nothing of them and come to the conclusion that it is all just "blethers."

Mr. Peabody talks of the "grand hatred" toward America which is growing in Europe. Yes, there is a powerful hatred—not only the hatred and contempt of men, but of the millions of women who have lost all they hold most dear in life and now have to struggle on, crushed by heavy taxation, to provide homes and living for the children of the men who died, not only to save Europe but the people of the United States.

For all the gold you wring out of an impoverished and stricken Europe, what does it profit you? How will your country stand in history? You have lost national honor.

For me, I hate the sight of a German, but I hate quite as much the sight of an American. But to be rich counts for much with you—rich with the blood-money paid to your country from all the countries who did the fighting and the saving of Europe. A curse goes with that money, and the curse is growing. Still, it is good to know that there is one fine and true American gentleman who realizes his country's dishonor.

WHAT EUROPE WANTS OF US.

Chiefly an Open Purse for Her Wars, View of American Living Abroad.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am often rather distressed in reading American newspapers to find how little understanding there appears to be of the feeling existing in European countries, particularly in England and France, with regard to America. This has not merely to do with the debt settlements, for it existed (though not quite so intensely as now) before the question of settling the war debts came up.

At bottom this feeling is attributable to the great prosperity of the United States and the fear that the industrial and financial centre of the world has shifted from Europe to America. How bitter this feeling is no one can possibly realize without having mingled with the people and heard the comments of all classes and without having read foreign newspapers day after day for years. Accustomed to analyzing public thought as a newspaper and magazine writer of long experience, I have gone to great pains during the six years I have been abroad to get at the bottom of public emotion in England and France. In Germany I have found no outward evidence of anti-American feeling. In that country one finds a hostile spirit toward the French, but the Germans and the English are very loving now.

In England the American in his social contacts is very frequently embarrassed by the hostility displayed toward Americans. This is often ill-balanced and most unreasonable. The constant contemptuous references to American participation in the war and her failure to enter the conflict sooner seem to become increasingly bitter. This is odd, in view of the frequent admissions of Britain's hesitating to throw her forces into the conflict.

Now, there is a strange and hardly accountable tendency here in England to look upon the United States as a nation that must serve the British Empire and whose Treasury must be opened to British purposes. This statement may seem unreal to Americans, but it is nevertheless true and becoming more so. If any change is made in the war debt settlement policy and the debts canceled, Heaven only knows what will follow. It is certain that then every war that comes along will be at the expense of America, and certainly that is the attitude now. America is rich and must serve these Old World feuds, whether her interests justify such service or not.

It must not be forgotten for a minute that the spirit of Europe is more warlike than ever since the great war. There is not one of the leading nations on this side that is not itching for war, and in England it is a common expression to hear a wish for "another jolly old war." This, too, in the face of great grief, misery, economic strife and general industrial dislocation, with much poverty and unemployment.

The English and French hate each other; the French and Germans hate each other. There is much trouble in Russia and the Balkans, and Italy is in a very aggressive mood. There are coalitions and such intrigues as made disasters in the medieval ages. But, as before stated, the English and the Germans have forgotten their hostilities and are united in affection.

The European nations are bringing every influence to bear to obtain a cancellation of war debts, but even if such took place, don't think it would wipe out the ill-feeling against America. It would merely mean that the European nations considered themselves permanently in a position to demand the opening of the American Treasury to them.

Allies Called Unappreciative.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The main point at issue is: We certainly did help to win the war; are any of the Allies showing any appreciation? Far from it, they bluntly ask us to pay the indemnity, notwithstanding the assistance we rendered; and had this country not joined the Allies when they were near collapse, then a far different story would be in evidence today.

Who says they "fought our war" before we went in? Are any of the Allies saying that to any of the countries that did not go in?

We certainly were not concerned in any of the animosities that involved Europe, and still do, for that matter. When the war was over they would not listen to reason, and insisted on having their way. They even wanted us to bind ourselves to go to their assistance, if another war came on, and it would have been the height of folly to entertain such an idea. Even if we wiped the whole debt off, they would not show any appreciation.

Friendship With England.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I express my admiration for the stand taken by Mrs. Charles Scarborough, Chairman of the New York Port Society, who recently tried to have words of the third verse of our national anthem excluded from the program on account of its "expression of hate" against England? Seldom is this verse sung these days. The poor taste of these lines being sung, when we recognize Great Britain's friendship for the United States, is growing into our national consciousness today.

Let us recall the ingenuity of Lord Cromer, at the time of our war with Spain, in restricting the Spanish fleet on its way to Manila, through the Suez Canal, with just enough coal to enable it to reach Barcelona. England intercepted Spain's plans. Again, when Dewey was in occupation of Manila Bay, and the Kaiser showed his hand by sending over Admiral von Diedrich, England again stepped in. Such acts as these have proved England's friendship for us in the hour of need.

Henry Wickham Steed, in his review "Through Thirty Years" of events that preceded the World War, gives some interesting facts not generally known. He reveals that there was a movement in 1908 on the part of certain European powers "to bring the whole of Europe solidly in line against the United States." What could we have done with our inadequately equipped army and navy against such overpowering forces? It would have meant overwhelming defeat for us had not Great Britain intercepted and frustrated their plans—there might not have been any "Star-Spangled Banner" waving proudly over our land today!

SLEEPING AT THE STADIUM.

Enthusiast Complains That Some Programs Induce Somnolence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am not from Missouri. I come from the hilly countryside where Edison performs his wizardries. But if I were a native of the much-maligned State whose citizens are said to be so incredulous that they always "want to be shown," I have certainly had sufficient proof that the New York Philharmonic Orchestra is a remarkably fine institution.

Often, toward the close of a sultry day, when I wearily close my desk and say, "that's that," I have great difficulty in choosing between the tranquillity of my Jersey farm and the musical joys provided at the Stadium concerts. And the Stadium often wins—so often, indeed, that my devoted collie always sharply rebukes me for these frequent wanderings from home.

Thus, you will understand, music makes a strong appeal to me—the kind of music I have the privilege of hearing at these Stadium concerts, and played, as a rule, as only a really great orchestra can present the old and the modern masters. It is with the greatest reluctance, therefore, that I acknowledge the presence of a fly in my musical ointment, an insect which, it seems to me, the proper authorities can remove with the utmost ease.

Briefly, the Stadium concerts are sometimes too long, and often the programs betray an astounding lack of judgment. I can appreciate the difficulty of providing fifty-six interesting programs for a season of Summer-night concerts, but I am also convinced that great improvement is possible. And that I am not alone in the disappointments I experience at the Stadium I have had ample evidence during the present season.

Recently, for example, a woman seated directly in front of me, who had been extremely enthusiastic the early part of the evening, slumbered peacefully before the funeral march of the "Eroica" symphony was begun; and a professional musician, seated next to me, who had been loudly discoursing on the beauties and dissonances of Stravinsky's "Fire-Bird," snored gently throughout the greater part of the Beethoven symphony. He must have been a good musician, for, even in his somnolent state, his nasal performance was so faithfully pitched to the utterances of the first French horn that I marveled at his skill, and decided not to interrupt his participation in the symphony.

The program on the evening referred to was so long, in fact, and so poorly constructed that I resisted, with only the greatest difficulty, a strong inclination to follow my neighbor's example.

These Summer-night concerts are a blessing in more ways than one. Above all things, they acquaint many thousands of people, young and old, with the best music of the past and present, and they cannot fail, moreover, to create a love for music among the countless men and women who, in days gone by, have labored under the misapprehension that everything resembling jazz is music, and that a symphony by Mozart or Beethoven is something to be feared.

Surely something can be done to remedy the transparent blunderings of the individual, or individuals, responsible for sleep-conducing programs. It is surely within the province of some one associated with Stadium concerts, Incorporated, to smite that vexatious fly so mightily that music-lovers will never be led to inquire, "Are the Stadium concerts just a temporary relief or an actual cure for insomnia?"

COL. LAWRENCE'S HOLIDAY.

Desire for Mental Rest Misinterpreted by a Literal-Minded Colonel.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With reference to the article in today's issue regarding Colonel Lawrence, it has been a matter of public knowledge for some considerable time that Lawrence was a mechanic in the Royal Air Force, which he joined under the name of Shaw and not Ross. His identity was discovered by some busybody and the story given to the cheap press with such headlines as "Prince of Mecca on Rifle Parade," &c. This unwished-for publicity caused his resignation and subsequent re-enlistment in the Tank Corps, where he still is, now as Private Marks.

To quote Raymond Savage, "Now he is free from interference, for his whereabouts are known only to his comrades in arms, to the authorities, and to his own friends, and his secret is safe in their keeping. Further, the press has taken the sporting view that he should be left alone in peace to enjoy his retirement."

The story goes that on enlisting in the R. A. F. he had been told to write an essay like other rookies as to why he joined. He wrote six words: "To insure a complete mental holiday."

Whereupon the O. C. had him on the mat to explain and accused him of laziness, asking why he had not been ambitious and won a scholarship at a university. Lawrence replied truthfully that he had.

"I suppose some wretched Welsh place," said the officer.

"No," said Lawrence, "Oxford."

"If you were as clever as all that," said the baffled officer, "you ought to have worked and secured a fellowship at All Souls'."

"I did," said Lawrence; "that's why I want a holiday."

As far as the writer is aware, Lawrence's own book has been actually published in Great Britain at 30 guineas (roughly $150) under the title of "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom," the edition being privately printed and limited to 100 copies. It will be brought out in slightly shortened form all over the world about the first of next year, the price in this country to be about $5, and will be serialized both here and in Great Britain in the Fall. This cheaper edition has been made possible by the efforts of Raymond Savage, quoted above, author of "Ailenby of Armageddon."

It has been said that George Bernard Shaw was one of the first to get a copy of the 30 guinea edition in return for the gift to Lawrence of a copy of "St. Joan," anscribed "From Public Shaw to Private Shaw."

For some of the information above I am indebted to "Mr. London" of The London Daily Graphic.

BUDLONG OBTAINS LEGAL SEPARATION

Wife, Unhappy Over Newport Decision, Plans to Take Case to Highest Court.

CHILDREN IN HIS CUSTODY

Lawyers Disagree on $750 Allmony —Husband's Counsel Holds It Ceases With the Verdict.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 23.—The end of the celebrated Budlong suit, in which Milton J. Budlong of Newport and New York sought legal separation from his wife, Jessie S. Margaret Budlong, on grounds of extreme cruelty, came today in the Superior Court when Judge Edward W. Blodgett allowed Mr. Budlong's petition and gave him custody of the three minor children.

Mrs. Budlong's $750 allowance, pending settlement of the separation suit, which started three years ago, was not officially settled. Abbott Philips, counsel for Mr. Budlong, said that in his opinion the payments end with the court's decision. Other lawyers declare, however, that this has nothing to do with the money payments.

Mr. Budlong, when asked if he would comment on the Court's decision, said: "Oh, no. I don't want to say anything. You know I don't like to talk about it."

Wife Unhappy Over Verdict.

"I shall take exceptions, of course, and carry the matter to the Supreme Court in the Fall," declared Mrs. Budlong. "I am very unhappy over the verdict, but there is always a chance that the courts may reconsider. I do not wish to make any statement while the Court is considering the case."

When reminded that this case had been settled, she replied:

"I realize that, but so many statements have been made by the newspapers and attributed to me incorrectly that I don't like to say anything. I really think that the kindest thing for the newspapers to say is to say that I have nothing to say."

An incident at the Plaza Hotel in New York in the Summer of 1923 in which Mrs. Budlong made a demand upon her husband for $100,000, "and upon his refusal to purchase her affection she knelt down and prayed God to curse him," is among the acts of cruelty upon which Judge Blodgett allowed Mr. Budlong's petition.

Finds Budlong Was Humiliated.

"The testimony shows," says the decision, "that the conduct of Mrs. Budlong has caused so much notoriety that upon Mr. Budlong's appearance in public he has been the subject of such comment and ridicule as to cause him great humiliation, and that his health has been so affected that he has been unable to carry on business."

Characterizing charges of Mrs. Budlong that her husband had been cruel to her as "apparent figments of her imaginations," Judge Blodgett, in his rescript, continued:

"Many of these allegations are serious charges spread upon the records of this court, holding up the husband to public infamy, and yet no serious effort was made to sustain the same and, in the opinion of the Court, the making of these charges constitutes extreme cruelty."

Quoting from a rescript of Judge A. A. Capotosto in an earlier separate support petition brought by Mrs. Budlong against her husband, Judge Blodgett says that the testimony in that case showed that Mrs. Budlong failed to prove her husband guilty of cruel and abusive treatment.

Budlongs Wed 28 Years Ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Budlong were married in 1898, and three children, one daughter and two sons, were born of the union.

On Oct. 24, 1923, Mrs. Budlong filed a petition for a divorce. On Feb. 15, 1924, she filed a second petition, and on April 14, 1924, the first action was discontinued.

Mr. Budlong then filed the present petition in Newport, and after the trial had progressed several days Mrs. Budlong summarily dismissed her lawyer, Cornelius Moore of Newport, and announced to the court that she would conduct her own trial.

DEMOCRATIC FIGHT IN SINNOTT'S DISTRICT

Two Insurgent Organizations After the Scalp of Hylan's Friend May Unite.

A fight is brewing among the Democrats in the Twenty-second Assembly District in Brooklyn, where the South Side Democratic Club and the James J. Walker Democratic Club, both insurgent organizations, have taken the warpath against James P. Sinnott, whom John F. Hylan made a member of the Board of Water Supply and whose son married the former Mayor's daughter.

The head of the South Side Democratic Club is Clarence McAneny, whose brother, Frank, is Chief Examiner in the office of Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee. The James J. Walker Democratic Club is a relic of the Walker-Hylan primary fight last year, when James P. Sinnott sided with Mr. Hylan. At first the outlook was for a three-cornered fight for control of the district organization, but negotiations now are pending between the two insurgent groups which may result in their making common cause against a common enemy.

After Hylan had suffered defeat Mr. Sinnott remained "regular." He was largely instrumental in dissuading the former Mayor from an independent fight for the Mayoralty. He has managed to hold on to his $15,000 job so far, which would indicate that he is at peace with the Administration.

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Kings, has not taken sides in the fight in Sinnott's district thus far, at least not openly, even though the elder Sinnott as recently as last year was credited with ambitions to wrest the Democratic leadership of the borough from him.

RHINELANDER'S BRIDE GOES ON TRIP ABROAD

Pestered by Camera Fiends, Her Cabin Is Changed Twice—Slips Ashore at Cherbourg.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHERBOURG, July 23.—Although the Majestic today brought one of the most distinguished passenger lists of the year, the most sought after person aboard ship was a second-class passenger—Mrs. Alice Rhinelander, central figure in the sensational Rhinelander annulment case.

Accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Rhinelander sailed from New York after a small army of photographers and movie men had pursued her all over the ship.

Her troubles had only begun, however, for as soon as the vessel put her nose out of the North River another battery of cameras began seeking Mrs. Rhinelander—the cameras of curious passengers.

When she arose in the morning she found a dozen people lying in wait to take pictures, and officers of the Majestic received repeated requests from first-class passengers that they induce the young woman to walk along the deck at a certain time so they could see her and snap a picture.

The purser was forced to change Mrs. Rhinelander's cabin twice on the voyage in order to give the harassed young woman some freedom from annoyance, but even this did not prove very successful.

Finally she was forced to remain secluded in her cabin, where she took most of her meals.

She was booked to leave the ship at Southampton, but by an arrangement with the officers she slipped unseen into a corner of the tender here and hurried away to Paris after refusing to make any statement to newspapermen.

TIPS ON SPEED TRAPS NO CRIME IN ENGLAND

Auto Association Scout, Arrested for Warning Fellow-Members, Is Freed in Court.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—It is no offense to warn a person who is about to break the law, a London Magistrate recently held in dismissing an Automobile Association scout who was charged with warning motorists of the existence of a speed trap.

The "bobbie" who made the arrest complained that soon after he established the trap in the outskirts of London the A. A. scout came through on a bicycle and turned around to warn oncoming motorists. As a result, he said, all the motorists came through the speed trap at about five miles an hour, jeering at him and ironically tipping their hats.

The Automobile Association maintains hundreds of scouts on bicycles and in automobiles on the suburban roads. If a member carrying the "A. A." on his automobile radiator passes one of these scouts and the scout does not salute, it means "thumbs down." On the other hand, a snappy salute means that everything is favorable to the motorist.

SURRENDERS AS A SLAYER.

Japanese Chef Held Without Bail for Strangling White Girl.

Accused of strangling a white girl, Adelaide Bunjes, 22 years old, whom she had hoped to make his bride and with whom he had quarreled over money matters, Kogurro Mogi, 35, a Japanese chef, of 140 West Sixty-fifth Street, was held yesterday without bail for examination July 30 by Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud in Homicide Court on a charge of suspicion of homicide.

Mogi, on his arraignment, showed no emotion. He had entered the West Sixty-eighth Street station earlier in the day and coolly informed the police that he wanted to be locked up as a murderer.

The police say he told how he had twisted a handkerchief around the girl's neck, tied it and left the room, going to Central Park, near by, and walking several hours before giving himself up.

Mogi said at first he intended to commit suicide by hari-kiri, but lost his courage.

The scene of the murder was in a section frequented by Japanese. The basement floor of the West Sixty-fifth Street address is occupied by a Japanese store. Near by is a Japanese restaurant and club.

JOHN W. DIXON DIES; YALE CLUB PRESIDENT

Lawyer's Death Follows a Paralytic Stroke Attributed to the Heat.

STRICKEN IN HIS OFFICE

He Was Long on Legal Staffs of Railroads—His Funeral in St. Thomas's Church on Monday.

John Watson Dixon, President of the Yale Club and a member of the law firm of Mayer, Warfield & Watson, died suddenly at his residence, at 305 West End Avenue, Thursday evening, following a collapse he suffered because of the heat earlier in the day. He was 53 years old.

Mr. Dixon was born in Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 5, 1873. For a number of years he lived in Nebraska, where he attended the University of Nebraska at the same time that General Pershing was a student at that institution. He received the bachelor's degree from Yale in 1895 and was admitted to the bar the same year. He was attached to the legal departments of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, and afterward the Erie Railroad. He came to New York in 1913 and became a member of the firm of Hornblower, Potter & Miller. Then for ten years he was a member of the firm of O'Brien, Boardman, Parker & Fox, severing that connection to affiliate with Mayer, Warfield & Watson.

He was a member of the Metropolitan and University Clubs and of the Sleepy Hollow and Garden City Country Clubs. He was married in 1917 to Mrs. Frances Whitlock Sprague, a daughter of Mrs. Lewis W. Whitlock. Besides his widow and a stepdaughter, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. S. L. Watson of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Dixon's death was a shock to his family and friends, as he appeared to be in good health. He lunched at the Yale Club with Charles G. Pauding of the New York Central Railroad and nephew of Chauncey M. Depew. He returned to his office, on the fourteenth floor of the building at 247 Park Avenue. About 4 o'clock he was seized with a paralytic stroke and was taken to his home, where he died two hours later.

Members of the Council of the Yale Club, of which he was President, will attend the funeral services, to be held in St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, at 11 o'clock Monday. The pallbearers will be George T. Adee, William A. Taylor, Frederick P. Warfield, Charles A. Paulding, Livingston Pratt, John D. Thomson, William H. Lyford, Herbert Witherspoon, Seaton Post and Mortimer N. Buckner.

Following the services in the chapel of the church burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.

C. RATHFELDER DIES; A REPUBLICAN LEADER

Body Lies in State in Bronx Republican Club—Two Services to Be Held.

Charles Rathfelder of 440 East 156th Street, Republican leader of the Tenth Executive District of the Bronx, died on Wednesday in the Post-Graduate Hospital, Manhattan, at the age of 51, after an illness of two months.

Mr. Rathfelder was born in this city and had been active in Republican politics for twenty-five years. He had served on the State Committee.

In 1921 he was dismissed as an examiner in the office of the President of the Board of Aldermen by the then President of the Board, F. H. LaGuardia. At the time it was charged that he was ousted because he had not favored the candidacy of Major LaGuardia for Mayor. Later he was appointed chief of the Division of the Internal Revenue Department in the Fourteenth District, with headquarters in the Bronx. He resigned this position because of ill health.

Calles Issues Decree Banning Religious Teachers—Schools Plan to Move Here.

WOMEN THRONG CATHEDRAL

Bring Children for Baptism and Confirmation—Government Forcibly Vaccinates All.

MEXICO CITY, July 23.—President Calles today issued a decree regulating teaching in private schools. The decree states that instruction in all schools must be given by lay teachers. The interior of schools, including boarding schools, which are considered as private homes, must have no altars, chapels or religious decorations. All schools are to be under direct State vigilance in matters or hygiene and educational programs. The directors of schools, according to the order, will get time to rearrange their schools to conform to the decree.

The regulations forbid schools to profess dependence on any religious organization. All must report the number of students they have and other information in connection with their administration.

Streams of people, mostly of the poorer classes, thronged the park facing the cathedral in Mexico City all day waiting to have their children baptized or confirmed in case the churches close on Aug. 1.

Among the women was a large sprinkling of Indians, some of whom, judged by the dust which covered them, must have come to Mexico City from long distances, traveling on foot and carrying their children.

Although in the comparative coolness of the inside of the cathedral, the priests were prespiring in their efforts to attend to the thousands who thronged the church from the moment it opened.

The Sanitary Department, under Dr. Gastelum, placed agents at the doors with instructions to prevent any one from leaving the church before being vaccinated. In spite of the protests of the women, who said that their children were ill, that they would rather have their own doctors or that they had been recently vaccinated, the agents of the Health Department insisted on vaccinating the entire crowd.

One of the worst features of the wholesale vaccination was the continual use of the same needle for vaccination. Whether diseases were transmitted by this needle is not known. No consideration was shown to the women.

Ban on Press Is Defended.

Secretary of the Interior Albert Tejada today explained the recent decree forbidding press comment on the new religious regulations. He said that he regarded editorials published in the past few days on the changes in the penal code, principally in publications of a religious character, as violations of the law.

In denouncing Article 13 of this law as unconstitutional, Senator Tejada said, the papers had violated a clause in the Constitution prohibiting publications of a professedly religious character or papers manifesting religious tendencies from commenting on national political affairs or informing their readers of acts of the authorities.

The arrest of Señora Elina Lascurian de Silva, a leading Catholic woman, on charges of sedition fell today like a bombshell on Mexico City society, in which Señora Lascurian de Silva is well known.

Her arrest is said to be due to the fact that the Catholic women are backing the circular issued by the Young Men's Catholic Association which caused the arrest and imprisonment of fifteen prominent leaders of that body, while the police are still searching for other members. The circular called for an economic boycott in protest against the religious regulations.

The police searched the offices of the society and removed all documents, finding the list of the names of all members of the association and copies of the circular which caused the arrests.

Continuance of Arrests Planned.

Government officials say that arrests of members of the association will continue as they consider two circulars issued by them as seditious.

The first circular requests all Catholics to boycott the newspapers which oppose the Catholics or show no desire to help their cause and calls upon merchants to refrain from advertising in these papers. It also urges Catholics to limit their purchases to necessities, and, in general, to create such an economic crisis as will force the Government to modify its restrictive regulations.

The second circular states that the religious situation which the Church is now facing has been created by the Federal Government, which has violated Catholic liberty of conscience.

Members of the Confederation of Labor, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, have sent a message to the Government expressing adherence to its policy in religious matters. They say they are standing behind President Calles, as the boycott planned by the Catholics would hurt labor interests.

They have decided to organize a street parade of all labor unions as a protest against the Catholics. The date of the parade is not known, but it is expected to provoke clashes between the laborites and Catholics.

Reports that all Federal troops had been ordered to be ready for action when the new religious regulations go into effect were denied today by several Generals commanding Federal garrisons.

Twenty-five Are Arrested.

MEXICO CITY, July 23 (AP).—A week remains before the formal putting into effect of the new religious regulations and the situation is daily becoming more tense.

The closing of the Mexico City headquarters of the National League for Defense of Religious Liberty and the arrest of the leaders of the organization has caused much feeling in Catholic circles.

The city was filled with rumors today that Archbishop Mora del Rio of Mexico City and Bishop Diaz of Tabasco might be arrested for alleged support of the manifesto issued by the league, but up to tonight no official steps, so far as could be learned, were under way to place them under arrest.

About twenty-five persons found in the offices of the league were arrested. All were released later except three of the leaders, Rafael Ceniceros Villareal, Rene Capistran Garza and Luis Busto, who are alleged to have signed a recent appeal for "an economic boycott" in opposition to the new religious regulations. They are charged with activity subversive to public order.

Dispatches are published here saying that Archbishop Orozco y Jiminez of Guadalajara has sent a letter throughout his jurisdiction, together with thousands of catechisms, advising every Catholic home to become a Catholic school to give the children religious instruction.

Another Catholic school, that of Sister Maria Ensenadora, has decided to close. Twenty sisters have departed for the border, where they plan to open an institution at Eagle Pass.

The present program of most of the Catholic schools, which have already decided to close or which, it is expected, will be closed by the Government, is to reopen at various border points in the United States, thus enabling Mexican families to send their children with little trouble for a Catholic education.

Special dispatches from Monterey say that Catholic churches there intend to remain open after July 31, when the religious regulations are to go into effect, but will suspend all ceremonies.

TAKES UP MEXICAN CRISIS.

Cardinal Hayes Orders Prayers for Church in That Country.

There will be read tomorrow in every church in the Archdiocese of New York a pastoral letter from Cardinal Hayes calling upon Catholics to pray for Catholics and the Church in Mexico. The letter directs that Aug. 1, the feast of St. Peter-in-Chains, be observed in all churches throughout the diocese as a day of prayer and devotion for the Church in Mexico in the present crisis.

In all the churches and chapels of religious communities it is ordered that special prayers be said during mass, that the Litany of the Saints be chanted or recited after the principal mass; that there be an exposition of the Blessed Sacrament during certain hours, and that the rosary and Prayer to St. Joseph be recited.

MUNDELEIN CHARGES PLOT.

Cardinal Declares Mexico Seeks to Banish Religion and Urges Prayers.

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP).—Cardinal Mundelein, in a letter to be read next Sunday in all Catholic churches of the Chicago Archdiocese, criticizes the Mexican Government for what he terms a "conspiracy" in "attempting to stamp out religion in general and the inherited Catholic faith of its people in particular."

The letter, made public today, bids the parishioners to use the "spiritual weapon of world-wide prayer" in obeying the designation by Pope Pius XI of Aug. 1 as a "day of universal prayer for the stricken Church of Mexico."

"And down in Mexico," said the Cardinal's letter, "there is nothing very original in the methods that are being pursued; the procedure is quite crude, and bungled, and because of the very stupidity displayed by those conducting the conspiracy, it has been difficult to rouse the American people to honest indignation or to irritate us into decided action, for our people seem convinced that all such attempts will naturally fail again, even as they have in the past."

The officers in attendance represent a majority of the States of the Union and a dozen foreign countries. More than 100 from New York and vicinity. The conference will continue until Aug. 20. Among the speakers will be Dean Thomas W. Graham of Oberlin College, George Irving, Arthur L. Swift of Union Theological Seminary, Arthur N. Cotton, H. Earle Sweet, Robert Seneca Smith of Yale Divinity School and N. W. Edson, American Social Hygiene Association.

He spoke on Newman and Chesterton. "Dante" was the general subject discussed by the Right Rev. Mgr. John T. Slattery of St. Joseph's Church, Troy.

Bible Society Quits Sesquicentennial.

The American Bible Society announced here yesterday that it has canceled its contract for an exhibit at the Sesquicentennial Exposition in Philadelphia as a protest against keeping the exposition open on Sundays. CITY ORDERED TO PAY $6,391,680 FOR SITE

Court Rules Astor and Others Own Bronx Land on Which Hylan Market Is Built.

268-YEAR-OLD TITLE UPHELD

Justice McCook Traces Grants at 150th Street to the Earliest Settlers.

CITY WILL APPEAL THE CASE

Claims Ownership of Property Once Under Water Through Gifts From the State.

Supreme Court Justice McCook, who heard the condemnation proceedings to determine the value of the property acquired by the city for the Municipal Market in the Bronx, fronting on the Harlem River, rejected yesterday the contention of the city that the bulk of the property belongs to the city as land once under water and that the claimants have no right to demand payment.

The property consisted of the tract between East 150th Street and the approach to McComb's Dam, and a triangular parcel bounded by 149th and 150th Streets, the Harlem River and Cromwell Avenue.

Former Mayor Hylan regarded the Bronx Municipal Market as one of the leading achievements of his Administration. He laid the cornerstone on Oct. 25, 1924, and was assisted by the then Commissioner of Markets, Edwin J. O'Malley, and Henry Bruckner, Borough President of the Bronx.

The market, the cost of which was then estimated at $7,500,000, has been planned to contain a fish market, poultry market, retail market, &c., and large receiving, classification and distributing yards. The market has a direct connection with the New York Central and New York, New Haven & Hartford railroads.

Astors Among the Owners.

If Justice McCook's decision is upheld on appeal the city must pay about $6,391,680 for the property taken for the Bronx Municipal Market. Vincent Astor, the William Waldorf Astor estate and the Norris estate are among the property owners.

The claimants contended that their titles to the property dated from 1658, but the city held that the property was included in Morrisania and Fordham, which acquired this land through grants by the State of New York. Corporation Counsel Nicholson contended that when these towns were incorporated and subsequently became a part of the City of New York the city succeeded in ownership.

Justice McCook's decision rules that the claimants have held unbroken title since the days of the Dutch and English Colonial Governors. A large part of the property was involved in the holdings acquired by Colonel Lewis Morris, a British army officer, who came here from the Barbadoes and bought patents for land given by Governor Nichols to one Bisall and one Turner. The patent given to Jonas Bronck, for whom the Bronx was named, also figured in the history of the land. This property was also acquired by Colonel Morris. The Court held that the title of the present claimants was further confirmed by original Indian deeds.

Trial Lasted Four Months.

The proceeding was tried before Justice McCook for four months, in which time, according to a statement yesterday from the office of Vincent Astor, "every question ever presented in a court with respect to water-front titles in the United States was brought into the case." Edward W. Murphy, with Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, appeared for Mr. Astor and other claimants. The water-front questions were involved because the greater part of the condemned property comprised land at one time outshore of the high-water mark, and some of it was filled-in property. The claimants laid great stress on the fact that the city made no claim to the property until after the condemnation proceedings began.

Corporation Counsel Nicholson had contended that the city acquired the property for "governmental uses only." Justice McCook held that "if the property was held in trust for governmental uses, as here contended, then the City of New York is without power to put the property to a proprietary use such as is contemplated in this proceeding."

The case will be taken to the Appellate Division for a ruling on the law and the facts.

FEDERATION IS READY TO SETTLE MILL STRIKE

Will Also Organize the Textile Workers if They Wish—Borah May Act as Mediator.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., July 23.—Following a conference among American Federation of Labor officials and members of the Executive Committee of the Associated Societies and Parishes, it was announced today that the federation was ready to organize the textile workers in this vicinity and to mediate the strike.

The announcement was made by William Vaneck of the committee, who said that a mass meeting of the strikers was planned for next week to enable the strikers to decide if they wanted the A. F. of L. to organize them and attempt to settle the strike.

The suggestion of intervention by the A. F. of L. was made by Henry Hilfers, State Secretary of the federation. He made it plain, however, that a request for such action must come from the strikers.

Mr. Hilfers and Mrs. Anna Neary of Baltimore, the only woman organizer of the federation, were the officials of that organization in the conference. Mr. Hilfers left it to Mr. Vaneck to announce the result.

"Mr. Hilfers explained that he could not talk officially, as he was not delegated to do so," said Mr. Vaneck. He added, however, that what he said was the sentiment of the federation. It was the feeling, he said, that the federation officials should step into the Passaic situation, but that first they should be asked by the strikers to do so. Otherwise they would be denounced as strike-breakers.

Word from Washington that Senator Borah might act as mediator and that Albert Weisbord, strike leader, might step aside to allow him to do so, coupled with today's developments, revived hope in the strike zone that the end of the long dispute was in sight.

Justice in a Bathing Suit Holds Court on the Beach

ROSLYN, L. I., July 23.—Justice of the Peace Andrew Westervelt was bathing at Bar Beach this afternoon when called upon to dispose of the case of a man arrested for violating a village ordinance against disrobing in an automobile preparatory to bathing. The Justice held court on the beach, attired in his bathing suit, with the large crowd of bathers as audience.

The man before the Court was John Williams, a printer, of 184 Van Buren Street, Brooklyn. He admitted he had used his automobile as a bathhouse. He was fined $10.

ORDNANCE EXPERTS HELD ARSENAL SAFE

None Believed an Explosion Was Possible at Lake Denmark, High Officers Testify.

INSPECTION WAS FREQUENT

Rear Admirals Bloch and McVay and Captain Earle Discounted Menace of Lightning.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., July 23.—Ordnance experts of the Navy Department had been confident there never could be such an explosion as that in the Lake Denmark ammunition depot here two weeks ago when twenty-two persons lost their lives and $84,000,000 worth of Government property was destroyed, according to testimony today by the chief of the Bureau of Ordnance of the Navy and his two predecessors before the Naval Court of Inquiry investigating the disaster.

Rear Admiral Claude C. Bloch, the present chief, Rear Admiral Charles B. McVay Jr., Budget, Officer of the Navy and Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance from June, 1920, to September, 1923, and Captain Ralph Earle, now President of Worcester Polytechnic Institute who was wartime chief of the bureau, all testified that they never believed it possible that such an explosion could take place.

Reports Always Favorable.

Time and again since the war, after millions of pounds of high explosives and thousands of loaded shells had been shipped to the Lake Denmark depot, the arsenal had been inspected by officers of the bureau, they testified, and each time the report was that conditions were satisfactory. Only a few minor improvements were recommended, representing an outlay of only a few thousand dollars.

A proposal to build subsurface magazines for the storage of black powder had been considered but abandoned because the cost of constructing the magazines would have been about $1,000,000.

Early in the war when the depot here was comparatively small, Captain Earle asked the Government to acquire an additional 64 acres so that more storehouses could be built and the explosives separated. The 64 acres were acquired and today in his testimony Captain Earle said that the danger that any building would catch fire seemed very remote.

"The distance separating the storehouses at Lake Denmark was not as great as we would have liked," he said, "but many conditions were involved and it was believed the spacing was sufficient to prevent the spread of fire from one to another. It was known that if TNT buildings were to catch fire it would be from fifteen to seventeen minutes before the TNT exploded. That fire of such proportions would occur in a TNT building seemed impossible.

"Never in my wildest dreams or imagination could I picture such a disaster as happened here and all my associates in the handling of explosives considered the methods used the very best possible ones for taking care of explosives."

Admiral Bloch Testifies.

Admiral Bloch testified that when the armistice came the navy had a tremendous stock of explosives on hand and all ammunition depots and arsenals were greatly congested.

The wartime production was—Guns, 2,830; shells, six inches or more, 11,000,000; smokeless powder, 55,500,000 pounds; torpedoes, 1,982; depth charges, 56,000; mines, 102,009; black powder, 1,276,000 pounds; explosive "D" 4,000,000 pounds and TNT 38,000,000 pounds.

Admiral Bloch said that it was expected that only about 10,000,000 pounds of TNT would be left over from the war but instead a greater amount remained. For this reason the navy constructed subsurface magazines at Yorktown, Va. to store TNT and mines and depth charges, but the storage capacity there was insufficient and the rest had to be stored at other depots. This, he said, accounted for the storage of high explosives at Lake Denmark.

The Admiral said that Commander Charles H. Blakely, who preceded Captain Dowling in command of the Lake Denmark depot, had asked for funds to employ workmen to expedite restoring the explosives, but that after an inspector of the bureau visited the depot the request was not granted.

He said that the lightning protection on the buildings had been frequently inspected and all buildings were protected in approved form.

Admiral McVay said that when he became chief of the bureau in 1920, the magazines in general had been completed.

"As a result of inspections, five of them being carried out between the Fall of 1920 and the same date two years later," he said, "there was a change in policy and high ranking officers were placed in the command of all the important depots. After all inspections, reports were made by the inspecting officer, he said, and no reference was made in any report to any danger from lightning.

"I believed that the reservation was large enough and the buildings adequate enough to store safely the ammunition there. In fact, I know of only one ordnance reservation any better."

Golf Star Clear in Auto Death.

DARIEN, Conn., July 23 (AP).—Aquila C. Giles, formerly State golf champion, of Stamford, whose car hit and fatally injured Karl F. Kolb, 24, of Port Chester, N. The men were repairing a tire when Giles drove by, side-swiping them. The Coroner found that the rear light on Langford's machine was of insufficient power and Giles was not able to see it as he approached from the rear.

INQUIRIES ORDERED IN LEVIATHAN LIQUOR

POSSIBILITY IS ADMITTED

But Chairman O'Connor Expresses Confidence in Capt. Hartley and Doubts Law Violations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Two investigations into the charges that liquor has been sold on the Leviathan, and possibly on other ships owned by the Government, were ordered today.

One will be conducted by the prohibition unit cooperating with the Department of Justice. The other will be directed by agents of the Emergency Fleet Corporation in accordance with orders issued by the Shipping Board.

Frank Dow, acting head of the prohibition unit in the absence of General Andrews in Europe, said today that doubtless considerable quantities of liquor had been brought in by American as well as foreign ships, but it had been impossible, so far, to obtain evidence warranting proceedings looking to the confiscation of such vessels. He said the prohibition unit, with officials of the Customs Service and Department of Justice, would make an inquiry to ascertain the facts behind the charge of Captain W. H. Stayton, head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, that liquor had been flowing on the Leviathan.

Gen. Dalton to Make Inquiry.

At the same time announcement was made by Chairman O'Connor of the Shipping Board that General C. A. Dalton, President of the Fleet Corporation, had been instructed to investigate Stayton's charges.

Board officials today recalled an order issued by it Oct. 9, 1922, in which masters of Government ships were instructed to dispossess their vessels and crews of liquor on pain of dismissal from the service. This order also gave notice that any agent or charter of a Government ship who failed to observe the Prohibition law would at once lose his contract with the Government. This order is still in effect.

Chairman O'Connor today sent a letter to Captain Stayton asking him to submit any facts he might have relative to reported violation of the prohibition laws on the Leviathan. His letter reads:

Washington, July 23, 1926.

Captain W. H. Stayton, Chairman,
Association Against Prohibition Amendment,
Baltimore, Md.

Dear Captain Stayton:

My attention has been called to your statement published in the morning paper quoting a letter you had received which has been used in such a way as to leave the implication that liquor was being openly sold on the steamship Leviathan, operated on behalf of the Shipping Board.

I was rather surprised that you had given this out without at the same time attaching a statement of what you knew to be the fact that the Shipping Board regulations have since the passage of the Volstead Act, and no now, specifically prohibit the sale of liquor on any of the Government vessels. I say that you know this because you were yourself an operator of Shipping Board vessels.

O'Connor Cities Hartley's Record.

Captain Herbert Hartley, master of the Leviathan, has the reputation of being one of the strictest disciplinarians on the ocean and I believe would not permit violations of the Shipping Board regulations prohibiting the sale of liquor where he could prevent it.

We are referring a copy of this letter to the President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation for investigation and in that connection I am writing to ask if you will not send him a copy of the letter received from your correspondent as well as the name of such correspondent in order that more specific facts might be obtained in connection with the incident.

In such a large community as on the Leviathan necessarily violations of law or regulations occur in spite of all that can be done to prevent it. Your correspondent might with just as much reason take the position that he will no longer continue to live in the United States as that he will never travel on another American vessel because there occurred a violation of law or regulation on a particular ship. We would prefer not to have our American ships used as a convenience for promoting discussion of the prohibition question.

Very truly yours,
T. V. O'CONNOR,
Chairman.

Shipping Board officials professed to be skeptical as to the truth of the charges contained in Captain Stayton's statement, members expressing confidence in Captain Hartley of the Leviathan, and a belief that on this ship as well as others owned by the Government the laws prohibiting liquor were being obeyed.

Hartley Denies Liquor Was Sold.

BOSTON, July 23 (AP).—Captain Hartley of the United States liner Leviathan today flatly denied that any liquor had been sold on board the steamship, as charged in a statement last night by Captain W. H. Stayton, Chairman of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

"I have had passengers come to me when they boarded the vessel and ask if it was true that liquor could be obtained while crossing the ocean," said Captain Hartley. "I have always requested that if they succeeded in purchasing liquor it should be reported to me. Never has one of them told me of buying liquor."

Captain H. A. Moore, navigator, said that it was the custom to search the crew's quarters every day. The search took the form of inspection, he explained, and required no search warrant, but the inspection was based on the English system and was very thorough. Every man was required to stand by with his locker key in his hand and was not allowed to leave the stateroom during the inspection.

Rossbottom Doubts Smuggling.

Major Chester P. Mills, Prohibition Administrator here, refused yesterday to comment on the report that liquor had been sold on the Leviathan. Federal Attorney E. R. Buckner said he was not making any such investigation.

Thomas H. Rossbottom, General Manager of the United States Lines, said he had heard nothing of an investigation to be conducted here. He said Captain Herbert L. Hartley was a "bug" against liquor being sold on his ship.

Mr. Rossbottom said that the crew could not smuggle liquor aboard, as the men were searched by officers on the other side of the Atlantic.

Children See Civil War Gun Kill Mother; Friend Tries Six Years to Fire It, and Does

As Mrs. Caroline Sokol, 32 years old, walked into the kitchen of her home at 12 Sixteenth Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, she was struck in the head with a charge of lead slugs from a muzzle loading rifle believed to have been used in the Civil War, and was so seriously wounded that she died a short time later.

While her death was believed to have been accidental, Martin Monsen of 38 Fifteenth Street, a friend, was arrested, charged with homicide. He admitted, according to the police, that he was experimenting with the weapon when Mrs. Sokol was shot.

Monsen said that he had bought the rifle from a friend six years ago, and although he attempted many times, he had never succeeded in firing it. Taking the weapon to the Sokol home, he said, to exhibit it, he primed the firing mechanism and without loading it, pulled the trigger. Mrs. Sokol's two children, Michael, 11 years old, and John, 9, and Michael Kunter, another friend there on a visit, looked on with interest. The gun did not fire.

Just as Mrs. Sokol appeared in the kitchen doorway, said Monsen, he pulled the trigegr again. This time the piece went off and the charge hit Mrs. Sokol. The Rev. James McGrath of the Church of the Visitation, attracted as he passed the house by the excitement that followed the shooting, went inside and administered the last rites of the church to the woman a few minutes before she died.

On the rusty rifle, policemen said they were able to discern "U. S. Army, Harper's Ferry."

TRIAL NEXT MONTH FOR COAST GUARDS

General Court-Martial at New York Navy Yard Expected Early in August.

ALL DETAILS IN WASHINGTON

Investigation of Liquor Running Continued—Rumor of Murder Starts New Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 23.—Full details of how the crew of one Coast Guard station on this coast engaged in rum-running as a side line while the commanding officer of another station agreed to accept a "tax" from rum-runners for each case of liquor landed unmolested after he had put the question of participation to a vote of his entire crew are said to be contained in a report which Superintendent M. W. Rasmussen of the Fifth Coast Guard District has forwarded to headquarters at Washington.

This was ascertained today from a reliable source. Mr. Rasmussen said he was prohibited by regulations from discussing the evidence brought out in the recent investigation of rum-running and bribery among Coast Guards in his district. The investigation was conducted by Commander William J. Wheeler of Washington.

"It isn't that the Coast Guard is trying to hide anything," Mr. Rasmussen explained. "We don't want to whitewash this affair. At the proper time the whole thing will come out."

Mr. Rasmussen said he believed a general court-martial would be convened to try the eleven men now under arrest on charges of rum-running or accepting bribes. He said the court probably would convene at the New York Navy Yard about the first week in August.

Although only eleven arrests have been made to date, officers of the Coast Guard admit that they expect many more. Six men were questioned today by Mr. Rasmussen and he will question others tomorrow. He expects to investigate all stations from Sandy Hook to Cape May.

Three stations are involved thus far. They are Ship Bottom, five miles south of Barnegat Inlet, and Bonds and Little Egg, which are south of Ship Bottom. Seven of the crew of nine men at Ship Bottom have been arrested.

The names of the alleged bribers are known. The money is said to have been supplied by a ring operating into Philadelphia via Atlantic City and Camden. The civil authorities say they expect to prosecute the leaders for bribery.

The investigation began quietly five months ago. Game Warden Hamilton Evernham of Waretown had information that a club on Barnegat Bay was killing wild ducks and geese out of season. He went there several times but could find nothing, but he noticed that at each visit a flag rose near a Coast Guard station a half mile distant. Suspecting that he was being watched, he induced a friend, Mrs. Mary Arnolds of Point Pleasant, to order an elaborate duck dinner for a party at the club. The ruse worked and Evernham arrested men in charge of the club.

While the Warden was arraigning the men in West Creek, Thomas Beers Jr., son of the commanding officer of the Love Lady Coast Guard station, entered the courtroom with a bottle of liquor which he said he had found in the Warden's car. Evernham sent for the Sheriff and gave him information about rum-running and bribery in the Coast Guard. The Sheriff placed the matter before Mr. Rasmussen.

FALLS 1,000 FEET OFF PEAK.

Denver Boy Plunges to Death Climbing Colorado Mountain.

ESTESPARK, Col., July 23 (AP).—Forest Ketring, 19, of Denver, was killed today when he fell 1,000 feet down the east face of Long's Peak, which he was scaling in company with James E. Reuel, 21, also of Denver.

Ketring was in the lead when he slipped and fell over the face of the cliff. He plunged downward 1,000 feet, hit a snowbank and slid 300 feet more before his body crashed onto rocks.

The body will be returned to Denver tomorrow.

The eastern side of the famous peak has claimed the lives of six daring climbers during the last forty-two years.

ONCE SOCIETY GIRL, NOW ADMITS THEFTS

Miss Claire Cornell Is Put on Probation for Year—Will Be Sent to Sanitarium.

TOOK VASES IN OVINGTON'S

Trapped After Stealing $800 Worth of Silver and Selling It—Family Reverses Told in Court.

Miss Claire Cornell, formerly a figure in the social life of New York, pleaded guilty a week ago to stealing silver vases from Ovington's, in Fifth Avenue, it was revealed yesterday, when she was placed on probation under a bond of $1,000. She had come up for sentence in Part I of Special Sessions. The court directed that she be placed under restraint for medical treatment. It is understood she will go to a sanitarium.

Leniency was granted by a majority vote of the court, composed of Judges Kelly, Nolan and Direnzo, after Miss Cornell's attorney, Assemblyman John A. Byrnes, had told the court he believed Miss Cornell's mind had been affected by the financial reverses through which her family had passed recently. Judge Direnzo favored sending the young woman to prison for three months, but was overruled.

Under Neurologist's Care.

Testimony unholding the contention of Mr. Brynes was submitted by Mrs. Theresa St. Clair, a probation officer. Mrs. St. Clair said Miss Cornell had been for some months under the care of Dr. Angus Frantz, a neurologist, and that he had told her Miss Cornell was hysterical and did not remember having stolen the silver.

Miss Cornell is 26 years old and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cornell of 912 Fifth Avenue. She has participated in the social life of Newport, Palm Beach and Rye, where the family has maintained a Summer home. A year ago she was reported to be engaged to the Marquis de Avales, a second cousin of the King of Spain, but later she announced that this had been broken off by mutual consent. She astonished her friends last Winter by suddenly marrying Robert Ten Eyck Stevenson, a struggling young artist and costume designer, member of a prominent Chicago family, but this romance was short-lived. She obtained an annulment in Poughkeepsie on June 26, alleging fraud. The decree was granted by Supreme Court Justice A. H. Seeger.

Miss Cornell sat among the spectators with her attorney in the court room yesterday while a stream of girls and women, accused of shoplifting, went before the Judges and received their penalties, some of them sentences to prison. She wore bone-rimmed spectacles and inconspicuous clothing. She paid little apparent attention as Mrs. St. Clair told the Court her life story.

Family Met Reverses.

Miss Cornell had been reared in a wealthy home and had had every social and educational advantage, Mrs. St. Clair said. She had never been employed and had no vocation. The family formerly had occupied an apartment renting for $18,000 a year, but financial misfortunes had led them to give this up and take a smaller home, costing $8,000 a year, at 912 Fifth Avenue.

Edward F. O'Kane of the Stores Mutual Protective Association told how Miss Cornell had come to be suspected and finally trapped. Miss Cornell and her mother formerly had had accounts at Ovington's. Several weeks before she was finally caught clerks became suspicious of her. She would be seen at a counter and after she had left goods would be missed. Wanamaker's were having similar trouble. Several times clerks at Ovington's grew sufficiently suspicious to ask her who she was, and her ready and truthful reply always disarmed them. They became convinced, however, that she was taking goods and set a trap.

Miss Cornell entered the store on June 29, went to the second floor and began examining silver objects on a counter. A woman detective, Miss Sophia Duggan, followed her and watched her. She slipped two silver vases, one worth $30 and the other worth $19, under her cape and started away.

Arrested Entering Taxi.

She was arrested on the sidewalk as she was entering a taxicab which had been waiting for her. She had no money whatever. She spent the night in jail and was released next day on $1,000 bail furnished by Philip F. Donohue, Treasurer of Tammany Hall.

Detectives of the Stores Mutual Protective Association learned that Miss Cornell had stolen $800 worth of silverware altogether, and sold it for $204 to two reputable dealers in gold and silver who because of her address had not suspected that the silver had been stolen. Ovington's later recovered the goods from these dealers, paying them the $204 they had paid Miss Cornell. Yesterday Mr. Byrnes reimbursed Ovington's to this amount.

Miss Cornell and, to a lesser extent, her mother have been in frequent litigation in the last year with merchants and others.

Cleared in Rockaway Murder.

County Judge Adel in Long Island City yesterday dismissed an indictment charging first degree murder against Emmet Cannon, whose home is in East Forty-seventh Street, Manhattan. Cannon was alleged to have been an accessory after the fact in the murder of Joseph Splaine, who was shot and killed at 166 Beach Eighty-sixth Street, Rockaway Beach, on June 21, 1925. Anthony Raffe of 52 Edson Street, Corona, Queens, who did the shooting, was sentenced to life imprisonment last May.

RUM TRIAL WITNESS HELD FOR PERJURY

C. A. Smith, Chief Government Aid in Dwyer Case, Accused of Lying About Navy Record.

DEFENSE HITS DRY METHODS

'Bribed Witnesses,' 'Fanaticism' and 'Invisible Government' Assailed —Bielaski Principal Target.

While counsel for the defense in the liquor conspiracy trial of William V. Dwyer and others were bitterly attacking yesterday what they called "the invisible government" of A. Bruce Bielaski, "bribed witnesses" and "prohibition enforcement fanaticism," Charles A. Smith, the Government's chief witness, was held by United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill in $10,000 bail on a charge of perjury. The charge was made by Assistant United States Attorney Ralph P. Koenig, acting under instructions from United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner.

The perjury charge was based on Smith's testimony in the trial that he had enlisted in the United States Navy only once, whereas his enlistment papers, brought here from Washington, D. C., showed he had enlisted twice, had twice deserted and had been sentenced to three years in Portsmouth Prison and dishonorably discharged. Smith, who testified that he had made $40,000 as a rum-runner and had recently been receiving $50 a week from the Government through Bielaski, chief "under cover" man in prohibition enforcement in this district, unable to obtain bail, was locked up in the Tombs for a hearing Aug. 4. Meanwhile the Federal Grand Jury is expected to indict him.

Smith Consulted Attorney.

Smith left Federal Judge Julian W. Mack's courtroom Thursday at the luncheon recess, went to Bielaski's office, at 120 Broadway, and then walked off unnoticed. He went to the office of Lucian V. Axtell, an attorney, at 11 Moore Street, and asked his legal advice, it was learned yesterday. Smith thought, it was said, that Mr. Buckner's request to have him fingerprinted meant that the Government had turned against him. Mr. Axtell said he was not prepared to say he would take Smith's case, but had advised him to return and tell the whole truth. From other sources it was learned that Smith had gone to his hotel, the Somerset, where he was arrested by a Deputy United States Marshal.

Herbert C. Smyth, attorney for Arch M. Eversole, was first to sum up yesterday. Stressing the fact that the charge was conspiracy, he said that bringing in a single cargo of liquor by one, or even all the defendants, did not constitute conspiracy. Judge Mack interrupted to say he would charge that if any two defendants had agreed upon a violation of law it would represent a conspiracy. Mr. Smyth declared that if Smith's evidence was discredited by the jury there would be no credible evidence of conspiracy. He continued:

He Attacks Bielaski.

"When Bielaski gets his contract with prohibition enforcement and gets a bigger salary than that of his chief, bigger than Mr. Bruckner's salary, he, a lawyer, seems to forget what is due in performing his duty. If any attorney in private practice should do as Bielaski has done he would be haled before the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association, for it amounts to nothing less than bribery. Yet the Volstead act fanaticism has so seized upon him that he is oblivious to all else.

"Bielaski is an attorney, yet he offered a witness in this case bigger pay than the man had been getting, and this was done under the guise of giving the witness employment. Take the case of Smith—the Government, through Bielaski, paid him $50 a week. For what? He was supposed to do some work on a Government boat. But what does an attorney have to do with ships? That pay to Smith was merely a bribe in order to make out a story that would spell conspiracy. In the same way Rigg was paid for doing practically nothing and Weisbaar was taken to a quiet hotel in Brooklyn and kept there all day to tell his story."

Emanuel Tacker, attorney for E. C. Cohron, Jack Wolff, attorney for "Scotty" Clyde, and Michael Matteo, representing William J. Maloney, next summed up briefly.

Louis Halle, attorney for Edward Gallagher, defended himself against testimony by Mrs. Paul Crim that he had concurred in Dwyer's advice to her husband to leave the country. He accused Mrs. Crim of having "lied to save her man."

George Z. Medalie, counsel for Walter Wieder, referred to Smith as a "moral monstrosity" and said he had never known "a perjurer of such proportions to take the stand."

Says Smith Sold Gold Brick.

Samuel Berger summed up briefly for John J. McCambridge. Mr. Spellman, last to address the jury for the defense, asked the jurors not to convict on the "evidence of perjurers and bribed witnesses." He continued:

"Smith is the Government's prize package in this case. He is the one who sold the gold brick to Bielaski. His testimony is an index to that of the other scoundrels who took the stand for the Government. The invisible government of Bielaski meanwhile has been paying them, under the guise of remunerating them for real work, and your money and the people's money was being used for that purpose.

"It seems the United States is willing to buy testimony and bribe witnesses. But there is something in this case that nobody but Bielaski knows. Either Smith has sold the Government a gold brick, or he was covering up some one else."

Referring to Smith's disappearance from Bielaski's office, Mr. Spellman said:

"But the cloak of charity has been thrown around this man Bielaski, who conducts the invisible government from his law office at 120 Broadway. Does any one believe that Bielaski told Smith to 'beat it'? Oh, no! Because Bielaski is a mighty man. No one must speak ill of Brutus."

Mr. Bruckner in his summation explained that the Government had a legal right to compensate witnesses for the time they lost from other work.

"I try to get the men higher up," said Mr. Bruckner, "and I have no apology to make when I can get the subordinates to testify against their employers."

Mr. Bruckner told the jury that if they threw out all Smith's testimony they still should convict on the testimony of the remaining witnesses.

Taxi Driver Fails to Waken $16.30 Fare; Police Succeed

Although besieged for two hours by a taxicab chauffeur, who demanded to be paid $16.30 in fare, James Ryan, 37 years old, slept soundly in his room at 525 East 149th Street, the Bronx, last night, until police arrived to aid the driver's cause.

According to Harry Finkelstein of 315 East 187th Street, the chauffeur, Ryan hired the cab at 149th Street and Third Avenue at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and rode up and down Riverside Drive until 3:30 in the afternoon. A young woman was his companion part of the time.

On returning home and learning that the bill was $16.30, Ryan, according to Finkelstein, yawned, and declared he would "have to sleep on that." He entered the house and refused to respond to the doorbell or shouts. Finkelstein called the police. At the Morrisania Station Ryan was held on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Arraigned in Night Court, Ryan received a suspended sentence from Magistrate Richard McKiniry after his brother offered to pay the taxi bill.

DYOTT SAILS TODAY FOR RIVER OF DOUBT

Commander and Party Plan to Traverse Roosevelt Trail in Brazil in 1914.

EXPEDITION HAS A RADIO

Will Keep in Constant Touch With Outside World From Vast Unknown Area.

Commander George M. Dyott will sail for Rio this morning on the Vandyck of the Lamport & Holt Line to travel down the River of Doubt and traverse the route followed by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt on his expedition to Brazil early in 1914.

For more than two months Commander Dyott and his companions will work their way down the dangerous, inaccessible stream which the Brazilian Government named "Rio Teodoro" in Colonel Roosevelt's honor. The Commander hopes to bring back photographs, motion pictures and scientific data establishing the authenticity of the late President's discoveries, and throwing new light on the vast unknown area in Central Brazil between the Amazon and the head waters of the Paraguay River. Most of the Roosevelt films and photographs were lost when the expedition's boats capsized in the swirling rapids of the river.

Unlike the Roosevelt party, Commander Dyott's expedition will be in almost constant touch with the outside world by wireless. A permanent station will be set up at the Papagaio River, in the hinterland back of Rio, and the expedition will keep in touch with it by means of a small twenty-five-watt portable wireless set. Dispatches reporting the progress, discoveries and experiences of the expedition will be sent back by Commander Dyott for publication in THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Fifty thousand feet of motion picture film will be carried in the baggage of the expedition. Powerful electric torches also will be taken, as the most effective defense against Amazon Indians. These lights, according to Commander Dyott, inspire more terror among savage tribes than rifles or shotguns.

Last night the Commander and his comrades were guests of honor at a farewell dinner given by the Roosevelt Memorial Association aboard the Vandyck. Members of the original Roosevelt expedition, as well as other explorers and scientists, were present to wish the Commander good luck and godspeed on his travels.

Commander Dyott was modest and almost reticent in talking about his venture. He disclosed for the first time that he was a near neighbor of Roosevelt, having been born of English parents at Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street.

Another speaker was Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late President, who said that the sailing of the Vandyck with Commander Dyott was a reminder of the day when his father sailed for the Brazilian wilds.

Celler Wires McCarl That Agent's Salary Might Be Stopped.

Representative Emanuel Celler announced last night at Far Rockaway that he had sent the following telegram to Controller General McCarl in Washington:

Far Rockaway, N. Y.,
July 23, 1926.

Controller General McCarl,
Washington, D. C.

Please examine into activities of A. Bruce Bielaski, under cover prohibition agent, salary $13,200 yearly. He allowed himself to be appointed receiver in bankruptcy for J. M. Byrne, bankrupt, by Federal Court, Southern New York District. He will receive as such Federal officer over $39,000. I believe he cannot legally collect double compensation. He has probably forfeited either office. You may have the right to refuse to audit his salary check. As prohibition agent his fanatical attempt to enforce prohibition has embraced all sins in the decalogue.

EMANUEL CELLER,
Congressman.

KEHOE JURYMAN'S QUESTIONER CAUGHT

Provision Salesman, Arrested, Denies Knowing It Wrong to Approach Klewin.

SENT BY DEALER, HE SAYS

Latter to Be Interrogated When Found—His Prompters and Motive to Be Sought.

OTHER JURORS DENY BIAS

Attorneys Willing to Proceed With Case—Judge to Decide on Mistrial Monday.

Simon Miller of 158 Macomb's Road, the Bronx, a provision salesman, was arrested yesterday by Detective William A. Sullivan of the District Attorney's office on a charge of embracery—the statutory term for tampering with a juryman. He admitted having approached Charles Klowin, juror No. 5, at the latter's meat market at 1,031 Third Avenue, on last Tuesday, or since the trial of William H. Kehoe, accused of conspiracy in the milk scandal, was begun before Judge Max S. Levine and a jury in General Sessions.

Before being locked up at Police Headquarters Miller, who is employed by George Heinrichs of 2,292 Eleventh Avenue, asked that word be sent to M. M. Edelstein, Kehoe's counsel, that he would like him to defend him. Miller was told that such a step might be highly prejudicial to Kehoe's defense and he at once withdrew his request.

Miller was arrainged before Magistrate Richard F. McKiniry in the Night Court and pleaded not guilty to a charge of embracery made by Detective William A. Sullivan of the District Attorney's office. He was released in $1,000 bail for arraignment in the Yorkville Court on July 30.

"Probably Edelstein would be too high priced for me anyway, and charge me $1,000,000," Miller said.

Miller told reporters that he was asked to visit Klewin by James Francis Smith, a provision dealer at 373 West 125th Street. He said Smith told him he had friends who were interested in Kehoe and he would like Miller to ask Klewin what he thought Kehoe's chances were in the trial. Miller explained that he had become acquainted with Klewin two years ago when he was a salesman for Philip Brock at West Washington Market and sold goods to Klewin.

Makes Plea of Ignorance.

"I didn't know I was doing anything wrong, or I wouldn't have gone," said Miller. "Smith went to Klewin's market with me, but he didn't go inside because he didn't know Klewin. A" Smith asked was that I find out what Klewin thought Kehoe's chances were. Klewin asked me if I didn't know it was illegal for me to talk to him about the case, and I said I didn't and that I wouldn't talk about it any more. As I was leaving, Klewin said he thought Kehoe had a bad chance, the way things were going. He volunteered that without my asking."

Immediately after learning from Miller the identity of the person who he said had induced him to see the juryman, Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora sought to locate Smith. He was told by a man who said he was Smith's son that Smith had gone fishing but was expected back on Monday.

Smith is to be questioned by Mr. Pecora concerning his motive in asking Miller to question Klewin and the identity of the person who suggested that he make the request of Miller. Whether other arrests will be made will depend largely upon the interview with Smith, Mr. Pecora said.

Judge Levine, after a three-hour session, adjourned Kehoe's trial yesterday until 10 A. M. on Monday. It is expected that he will announce then whether Klewin's alleged statement that Kehoe had a "bad chance" is sufficient ground for ordering a mistrial.

Statement from Court.

Judge Levine made a statement from the bench regarding the situation as it stood before Miller had talked to reporters. Addressing himself to Mr. Pecora and Mr. Edelstein, he said:

"As both you gentlemen know, one of the trial jurors in this case, namely, Mr. Klewin, juror No. 5, upon the conclusion of the session Wednesday, July 21, informed the Court in the presence of both of you gentlemen that about 6:30 P. M. on Tuesday, July 20, he was approached at his place of business by a person whom he does not know by name, but whom he knew about two years ago to be a salesman for a wholesale provision dealer from whom the juror purchased supplies.

"That this person, in substance, asked Mr. Klewin if he was serving on the jury in this case, and Mr. Klewin in turn asked, 'Why do you want to know?' The other person then said to Mr. Klewin, 'Well, a personal matter, friends of mine know Mr. Kehoe and asked me to come down to see you.' Thereupon Mr. Klewin asked him, 'What do you want to see me about?' The unnamed man replied, 'Well, I don't want Franc Rallies Moderately on Appointment of New Cabinet—Stocks Violently Confused.

A further recovery in the franc, which seems gradually to be regaining its equilibrium, a Government estimate of the cotton crop which was considerably out of line with expectations, and an erratic stock market, in which prices moved violently one way and then the other under the lashing of rather hectic professional activities, were the outstanding features of yesterday's market. The advance of the franc, which touched 2.40 cents yesterday, was the day's most encouraging incident. It represented not alone short covering but the most confident buying which has taken place on any day this week. This, quite naturally, may be regarded as the optimistic view held by the markets of the world on the possibility of success of the new Cabinet in bringing order out of chaos in France. The fact that Raymond Poincaré, three times Premier of France, has been able to draw together a Cabinet composed exclusively of political veterans who understand fully the gravity of the present situation, was considered in our financial district as a definite forward step. The franc, of course, has several definite barriers to surmount before it can hope to recover the confidence of the world. The success or failure of the new Cabinet will hinge very largely on the attitude of the French people themselves in meeting the taxation which must now be levied to put the national financial system on its feet.

The Department of Agriculture yesterday forecast an outturn of 15,368,000 bales of cotton, based on conditions as of July 16. Last year's total crop was 16,103,679 bales. One of the peculiarities of the forecast was the leeway of more than 3,000,000 bales which the Department of Agriculture estimates as between the maximum and minimum of the final harvest. This seemed to confuse the trade considerably, but it served to emphasize the department's frank admission that the weather between now and the time the crop is harvested will "make or break the crop." Should developments in the remainder of the season be as unfavorable as in 1921, 1922 and 1923, about 13,476,000 bales might be expected, but if developments are as favorable as in 1924 and 1925, about 16,628,000 bales will be produced. In other words, a favorable turn to the weather and a cessation of insect activities might conceivably bring a crop some 500,000 bales above the big outturn of last year.

On the Stock Exchange the day was marked by extreme violence of the movements in leading shares. There were many gains and many losses throughout the list, with most of the leading stocks showing a spread of 3 or 4 points between the highs and the lows. In one case it was more than 10 points. Although trading was on a heavy scale, it is quite evident that the exchange of stocks these days does not mean very much and that the market, having no definite trend, is saying nothing about the future. The usual spectacle of sharp advances in a half-dozen or so leading issues was once more repeated, this strength giving place to weakness at mid-day and with alternating declines and advances for the balance of the day. Despite the fact that the fluctuations are violent and that sweeping advances as well as declines are established, such trading as is now evident on the Stock Exchange can represent little more than the speculative pull and haul. Such a condition gives the investor or speculator no idea of where he stands; it is small wonder that the general public takes small interest in such a market.

LOREE MERGER PLAN TO BE FILED TODAY

I. C. C.'s Approval Sought on Grouping Katy, Cotton Belt and Kansas City Southern.

A 7,000-MILE SYSTEM

Unified Control Rather Than a Complete Consolidation Is Said to Be the Aim.

Officials of the three railroads involved in the Southwestern merger with which L. F. Loree has been identified have agreed on a plan of unifying their systems, it was learned yesterday. Concurrent applications for approval of the merger will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

The three roads are the Kansas City Southern Railway, Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad (Katy) and St. Louis Southwestern Railway (Cotton Belt). Although officials of the roads would not discuss the plan for merger, it was expected that, in accordance with views previously expressed by Mr. Loree, they would ask permission to create a unified or group system rather than to establish a complete consolidation.

Directors of the Kansas City Southern approved yesterday the form of application to be filed. Directors of the other roads involved took separate and similar action recently. The plan will be submitted to the Commission by Judge Samuel W. Moore, counsel for the Kansas City Southern.

The plan marks the culmination of negotiations started early in 1925. Since May of that year Mr. Loree has become Chairman of the Katy board and a director of the Cotton Belt. Inclusion of the Cotton Belt in the plan was furthered by the Kansas City Southern's purchase of the Rock Island's holdings in that road.

A 7,000-mile system will be created in the Southwest if the Interstate Commerce Commission approves the plan. The greater Missouri Pacific has a mileage of 10,000 miles in this region. Others are the Atchison, Southern Pacific and Burlington. The Rock Island and St. Louis-San Francisco are in process of merger.

The applications to be made public today will be filed concurrently by the Kansas City Southern and by the Katy road.

Assets of the railroads included in Mr. Loree's plan approximate $600,000,000. His plans for the merger differ somewhat from the tentative plan devised by the commission, which would link the St. Louis Southwestern with the St. Louis-San Francisco, the Katy and Chicago & Alton, and the Kansas City Southern with the Missouri Pacific, Kansas City, Mexico & Orient, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Texas Pacific and International Great Northern.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Completion of plans for the Loree Railroad merger in the Southwest, coincident with efforts to draft a revised Nickel Plate merger plan, probably will mean that the Interstate Commerce Commission will have two major consolidation proposals pending before it concurrently.

Commission officials would not indicate today what time might be needed to pass on the Loree application, once it is filed, but they pointed to the lapse of nearly a year between the filing of the original Nickel Plate application and its rejection.

Indications that plans for the Southwestern merger were nearing completion were given only yesterday, when the commission made public a decision granting the Kansas City Southern an extension of time within which to install automatic train control devices on part of its lines. The road's officials pleaded that the necessary expenditures at this time would impair funds set aside to consummate the proposed unification with the Katy and cotton belt.

ERIE DELAYS ACTION ON NICKEL PLATE DEAL

Only Minor Details Remain to Be Settled, Says Kane—Won't Act Till September.

Final action by the Erie Railroad on the terms offered by the Van Sweringens for the road's inclusion in the Nickel Plate system will not be taken until September, it was said yesterday by Grenville Kane, Chairman of the road's Finance Committee. Mr. Kane made his announcement following a meeting of the Erie Executive Committee, including besides Mr. Kane, G. F. Brownell, Henry S. Sturgis and L. F. Loree.

It had been expected that the agreement of the Père Marquette directors and the Van Sweringens had paved the way for final action by the Erie executives yesterday. Although the Van Sweringen terms were discussed at the Erie meeting, it was found that there were still several details to be cleared up. Mr. Kane said, however, that these details were of a minor nature, and that failure of the Erie officials to act did not indicate a serious difference of opinion with the Van Sweringens.

He declared that consideration of the terms had been postponed until September because it was impossible to get a quorum of Erie directors until then. Since the Erie management has agreed on the main features of the terms, it is thought possible that the Van Sweringens will push ahead for a speedy filing of the revised merger plan with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

TO INVESTIGATE C. & O. DEAL

Purchase of Greenbrier Line Unauthorized, I. C. C. Asserts.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—The Interstate Commerce Commission instituted today, on its own motion, an investigation of the purchase by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway of the outstanding capital stock of the Greenbrier & Eastern Railroad, a West Virginia line.

It was asserted that acquisition of the stock by the Union Trust Company of Cleveland on behalf of the Chesapeake & Ohio had not been authorized by the commission. Dates for hearings will be fixed later.

The commission denied the petition of the Texas & Pacific Railway for specific findings as to whether the Midland & Northwestern Railway, owned by it, was an abandoned property when taken over. The commission twice has ruled it was without jurisdiction to pass on the proposed abandonment of the Midland and the matter is now before the State courts.

Poincare Cabinet Aids the Franc —Belgian and Italian Strong— Spanish and Greek Off.

The French franc recovered yesterday, moving up ⅛ cent to 2.38 cents, although on later arbitraging by operators here and in London the rate dipped to 2.34½ cents at the close. The turnover was fairly heavy, dealers said, but slightly less than the big volume attained in some of the recent spectacular sessions.

Bankers attributed the strength of the franc to the formation of the Poincaré Cabinet, which carries on its roster men of a character qualified to win a confidence vote if an appeal were made to the Chamber. It was really this turn in the situation which checked the decline, they said, and improvement is looked for from now on.

The Belgian franc and Italian lire were shared in the rise, the former going up 10 points to 2.42 cents and the latter 3 points to 3.27½ cents. Weakness in Spanish pesetas has baffled dealers, exchange on Madrid yielding 10 points to 15.51 cents. Since midweek cables have reported the transfer of more than £40,000 gold from London to Madrid. Greek drachma dropped to a new low at 1.14 cents. Sterling was firm at $4.86, while the Swiss, Holland and the Scandinavians were dull. Japanese yen was up, but other Easterns and Latin currencies were irregular.

PLAN GOLD BASIS IN BELGIUM JAN. 1

WOULD RETIRE OLD FRANCS

Rail Securities Must Be Floated, External Issue Met, and Public Debt Sinking Fund Created.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, July 23.—Before the end of the year Belgium will probably have restored the gold standard. King Albert and his Government chiefs, meeting as a sort of financial board, are holding many meetings, at which every angle of the financial and economical situation is thoroughly discussed.

Several secondary decrees already have been published, especially in connection with the spreading of false rumors and the use of wheat in bread or pastry.

Night clubs and the like must close at midnight, and hotels will levy a special tax on guests.

But the fundamental plans require greater elaboration and consideration.

Before the end of July it is expected that the decree will be ready permitting business to be transacted in gold francs in private and public deeds and allowing balances and inventories to be figured on a gold basis.

Next in the order of reforms will come the floating of securities of the National Railroad Company. This measure awaits only an inventory of the transmission powers from the State to the company and the appointment of directors.

By Aug. 15 it is probable that the first series of preferred shares will be offered to the holders of the treasury and five-year bonds.

This will clarify the floating debt problem and is expected to eliminate any trouble likely to hamper the monetary reform due to the widespread demands for repayment which might occur.

The complete success of this sort of conversion is looked for, because the interest in gold is guaranteed for the railroad securities, and because of the intrinsic value of the railroad equipment.

There is a difficult problem in the nature of the external floating debt created by M. Janssen of about $50,000,000. It is expected that creditors will show a sufficient understanding of Belgium's situation and will not strike a hard bargain in this matter.

Although Mr. Francqui has not so far been able to convert this debt into a long-term one, it is thought that he will obtain renewals until the situation improves.

Two ways of settling the external floating debt are under consideration. The first is the offer of creditors' railroad shares in exchange. The second is the offer of a premium to Belgians with capital holdings abroad if they will subscribe to railroad shares in foreign currencies.

This debt now consists of $15,000,000 exchange credits and $32,500,000 in Treasury notes with dollar or pound face value.

As soon as these measures and the creation of a sinking fund for the public debt are effected the Government will plan—possibly as early as Oct. 1—the issue of a new gold currency to replace the paper francs as legal tender.

The latter would be allowed to remain in circulation provisionally and would be used to settle all public and private obligations, debts and other payments, excepting those made in gold with the authorization of governmental decree.

If this sequence is carried out as planed all paper francs will have disappeared by Dec. 31, after which gold francs alone would be used.

Belgium is expected to ask the new French Government to resume the discussions initiated by M. Caillaux with the view of attempting to settle their respective financial problems hand in hand, and, if possible, according to the same methods of reform.

The Belgian Government will base its plea on the exceptionally close solidarity between the two countries in all fields of endeavor, and on the danger to both which would result if the reforms should fail to run abreast.

ENDS COAL RATE HEARING.

But I. C. C. May Call Other Witnesses in About Sixty Days.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 23.—Taking of further testimony by the Interstate Commerce Commission on a petition of the Pennsylvania and Ohio Soft Coal Producers for lowering freight rates was concluded today. The commission announced that other witnesses might be heard in about sixty days, here or in Washington.

Dr. Charles Reitell, head of the Department of Accounting and Industry, in the University of Pittsburgh School of Business Administration, representing the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, which is supporting the petition, was a witness today. He admitted that high union wages paid to miners in the Pittsburgh District, as well as alleged unfair freight rates, were responsible for loss of business and shutting down of mines.

Deposits in Banks Here Increase.

Twenty-six national banks having their headquarters either in Manhattan or the Bronx report an increase of $353,354,788 in deposits as of June 30 last, when the total figure was $4,039,114,795, according to a statement released yesterday by the American Banker. Capital of these banks amounted to $196,100,000 on June 30, and surplus and undivided profits, $344,323,159. Six national banks in Brooklyn reported deposits on June 30, of $48,259,404, against $46,911,111 last year; capital of $2,800,000, and surplus and undivided profits of $4,353,091.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

The stock market was nervous and irregular yesterday. Some confidence was shown in the early trading, a number of issues moving forward so determinedly as to encourage the belief in speculative circles that the advance was about to be resumed. The traction shares, rallying on the announcement of the termination of the Interborough strike, contributed to the early firmness. The gains that were made in the first hour of trading, however, were almost wholly wiped out by noon under a wave of selling that was attributed to professional operators. The leading industrial issues were under particularly heavy pressure. These included General Motors, United States Steel, Mack Trucks, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Foundation and a few others which had been features of the earlier upturn. The market showed a renewal of firmness around 2 o'clock, General Motors, American Can, Mack Trucks and Steel recovering moderately. The close was irregular, with most of the trading favorites showing good resistance to such selling as appeared.

Money Rates Affect Bonds.

The moderate recession in the general level of bond prices which took place this week was said by investment dealers yesterday to represent merely the expectation that firm money rates would continue until well into the Autumn, together with the usual midsummer dullness. It is possible also that the increased activity in the stock market diverted some purchasing from stocks to bonds. The general tone in the bond market continues healthy, however, as evidenced by the fact that new offerings this week are almost twice as large as the total for last week, and all new issues were readily absorbed by the investing public.

Fear Dumping of French Goods.

Commercial interests in this country believe that one of the effects of the recent breaks in the franc will be an increase in the dumping of French products which has already disturbed some of the world markets, particularly in Europe. Economists have pointed out that, apart from the political upheavals, French industries have been operating actively, with trade on a large scale and much of it international. The declining franc has enabled France to undercut competitors in foreign sales and has resulted in placing French products in many markets at extremely low prices. It is believed that this tendency has increased in the last week. In some quarters the opinion has been expressed that many French interests, for this reason, welcomed the decline in the franc, but the general view here is that the disadvantages of an unsettled currency have far outweighed possible trade benefits and that some sort of stabilization will be forced through.

U. S. Steel Meeting Tuesday.

The quarterly meeting of the directors of the United States Steel Corporation, scheduled for Tuesday, is awaited with more than ordinary interest. For one thing, Wall Street will learn whether the predictions of a stock dividend were based on anything more substantial than gossip. Lately there has been less talk of a special distribution at this time and the prophets have been extending their predictions to the meeting three months later. The best-informed opinion is that these latter predictions are worthy of more consideration than the earlier ones. Another reason for the interest in Tuesday's meeting is that the statement of earnings for the quarter will be released. It seems to be rather generally agreed that the corporation will show profits substantially larger than those of the corresponding period a year ago. The guesses as to the size of the net average around $45,000,000.

Steel Merger Rumors.

Announcement from Cleveland of the merger of the Central Steel Company and the United Alloy Steel Corporation has revived reports of further consolidation of mid-Western steel producers. The merger of these two companies has frequently been mentioned as the possible nucleus of a much larger amalgamation in that territory and the possibility of some such project being worked out was emphasized in financial and steel circles yesterday. The interests in control of the new Central Alloy Steel Corporation, the product of this merger, are represented here as being ambitious to expand their holdings.

Developing Canadian Power.

The flotation this week of $25,000,000 of bonds for a power development in Canada, together with announcement of an additional offering of $12,500,000 next week, following by only a few months a $40,000,000 issue in furtherance of a similar project, has directed attention to the important place Quebec has assumed in the electrical power field. American interests have been largely responsible for these developments, which include some of the most extensive power construction programs on this continent. The expenditure of these large sums does not present the whole picture, as there have been many smaller projects which make up a large aggregate. Among the important incidental effects of this work has been pronounced strength in Canadian exchange during most of this year, as large sums of American money were transferred to the Dominion.

Southern Pacific.

The earnings report by Southern Pacific yesterday was in keeping with the generally satisfactory series of such statements that have been issued lately. Southern Pacific reported a record gross for June together with a reduction in operating expenses, and it was pointed out that the latter feature was not one peculiar to this road. Other systems have demonstrated an increased efficiency that in some quarters is ascribed to improvement programs undertaken some time ago. Interest now turns to the forthcoming reports of the larger Eastern lines, which in the opinion of some observers will reflect favorable operating results.

***

The Erie Meeting.

Although the Erie executive meeting was officially said to be of a routine character, those present fulfilled expectations to a slight degree by giving some attention to the proposed terms for the road's inclusion in the Nickel Plate merger. While no official action will be taken until September, this does not indicate that there is any great divergence in the views of the parties to the transaction and the Van Sweringens' moves at Washington may therefore be expected to proceed on schedule. What details in the Erie terms remain for further consideration are said on good authority to be not of sufficient importance to seriously effect the outcome of the negotiations.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1926.

As ample funds continued on hand, and there was virtually little inquiry either from calling banks or fresh demand, Stock Exchange again prevailed at 4 per cent., with Street trades done at 3¾ per cent. A little money was offered for four months at 4⅝ per cent. and loaned that way, but 90 days was traded in at 4½ per cent. This figure remained the borrowers' quotation, and except where a special transaction is arranged, for a small amount, business was light. Commercial paper and acceptances were unchanged.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $112,775,700

MARKET SLIGHTLY LOWER

Prediction of Firm Money Until Autumn and the French Crisis Are Factors.

Owing chiefly to broad activity in the public utility and railroad divisions, new bond offerings increased sharply this week. They amounted to $112,775,700, compared with $65,002,000 last week, and $98,858,000 in the corresponding week a year ago. The offerings, by groups, of this and last week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Public utility	$53,125,000	$13,865,000
Railroad	28,800,000	1,660,000
State and municipal	13,530,700	16,186,000
Industrial	11,300,000	12,000,000
Farm loan	3,500,000	1,500,000
Miscellaneous	2,000,000	.....
Foreign	520,000	20,000,000
Insular possessions	.....	591,000
Total	$112,775,700	$65,002,000

The largest issue of the week consisted of $25,000,000 bonds of the Gatineau Power Company, a subsidiary of the International Paper Company, which is constructing power works on the Gatineau River, Quebec. An additional issue of $12,500,000 of debentures will be sold next week for the same work. The West Penn Power Company sold a bond issue of $18,500,000.

The Wabash and the Seaboard led the railroad group with issues aggregating $23,500,000. The feature of the week in the State and municipal field was the sale of $8,766,000 of 4¼ per cent. bonds by the City of Pittsburgh. This issue was awarded after unusually keen competition, in which there was a difference of only 6 cents per $1,000 between the first and second bids. There was general activity in the industrial and farm loan groups, but only one foreign flotation.

Prices in the bond market ranged slightly lower during the week, mainly because of the general predictions of firm money rates until well into the Autumn. In addition, early in the week the prices of foreign bonds were unsettled by the French crisis. Foreign bonds recovered later in the week, however, and the tone was generally improved. All new issues were readily absorbed by the investing public.

SAYS RUSSIA IS READY TO SAFEGUARD TRADE

Dr. Willis Declares Moscow Will Accept Terms and Conditions of Other Countries.

The United States must eventually be the source from which capital is drawn for the economic regeneration of Russia, Dr. H. Parker Willis, editor of The New York Journal of Commerce, who has returned from a trip to Moscow, told the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce yesterday at the first luncheon given since the revival of that organization. The luncheon was held in the Bankers' Club.

Dr. Willis stressed the need for more information as the first consideration of American business in its relations with Russia and applauded the announcement of Reeve Schley, President of the American-Russian Chamber, that the chamber intended to establish an office in Moscow.

"I think there can be no doubt," said Dr. Willis, "that those who are now in power in Russia want to improve the economic status of the country. I think they are convinced that their object in bringing about a development of trade can be accomplished only by conducting that trade under the terms and conditions which are established in the nations with which they must do business.

"I believe therefore that they are reasonably disposed to accept the trade terms and conditions of other countries and to give all reasonable protection within their power to the business processes which are necessary in such trade."

FEARS PUBLIC LOSS ON PROPOSED BONDS

Dr. Winkler Warns Investors Against Three Projected South American Issues.

BORROWERS ARE NEW HERE

Argentine Provinces of Mendoza and Corrientes and Parana, Brazil, Seek Loans.

Warning against the purchase of bonds of three projected South American issues was issued yesterday by Dr. Max Winkler, vice president of Moody's Investor's Service. The loans involved are one of $3,000,000 for the Argentine Province of Mendoza, another of 5,000,000 gold pesos, or its equivalent in dollars, for the Argentine Province of Corrientes; and a third of $7,200,000 for the Brazilian State of Parana.

"Owing to the present apparent popularity of South American issues," Dr. Winkler said, "it is not unlikely that these loans will be concluded and that our investing public will be called upon to take up the bonds.

"In view of the decidedly unsatisfactory financial record of the prospective borrowers, who are newcomers in the American market, I trust that for the benefit of our investors, the bankers will refrain from offering in this market bonds of the Province of Corrientes, which for more than seven years has been in complete default on its external debt, or of Mendoza, which, while paying current interest on its foreign debt, is in default with respect to several years of interest and sinking fund. Moreover the wine tax of Mendoza appears to have already been hypothecated as security for the 5 per cent. gold loan of 1909, outstanding to the amount of about $4,500,000.

"Panama appears at present to be meeting the service on its debt promptly, but in the past the State has so frequently disregarded rights and privileges of its creditors, that I feel bankers ought to think twice before offering Parana obligations to the still inexperienced American investor, who may be looking for bargains in the foreign field."

Midland Steel Products' Profits.

For the quarter ended on June 30, the Midland Steel Products Company reports a profit of $696,592, after interest and depreciation, but before Federal taxes, as compared with a net profit, after Federal taxes, of $762,013 in the same quarter of last year. For the first six months of 1926 the profit was $1,464,686, before Federal taxes, compared with net profit of $1,418,373, after Federal taxes, in 1925.

American Thread Reports Loss.

The American Thread Company, Inc., reporting for the twelve months ended March 31, 1926, shows a net trading loss of $552,729, after interest, depreciation, taxes and inventory adjustment, as compared with a net profit of $1,017,325, which, after preferred dividends, was equal to 64 cents a share, par $10, earned on 1,200,000 shares of common stock in the preceding year.

STEADINESS MARKS UNLISTED STOCKS

Activity Fair as Institutional Shares Are Dominant in Over-the-Counter Market.

BROOKLYN BANKS STRONG

Giant Portland Cement Is Leader Among Industrials—Most Utilities Quiet or Sag Slightly.

Steadiness, punctuated by slight irregularity here and there, characterized the over-the-counter market yesterday, and some strength was apparent in several issues. Activity was fair, especially in view of the approaching week-end. The institutional shares continue the dominating feature of this market, and considerable buying developed in the Brooklyn bank stocks.

Adding somewhat to recent gains, Giant Portland Cement was the outstanding performer in the industrials group, rising about 9 points during the last few sessions. Syracuse Washing Machine likewise maintained a strong tone, advancing 5 points over the last three days. Bucyrus came in for a better tone, rising 9 points early in the day and later dropping off slightly. Other best gains were scored by Columbia Phonograph, Johns-Manville, Rolls-Royce preferred, Remington Arms, and Graton and Knight common.

Aside from the interest in the Brooklyn banks, Butchers and Drovers was the most active issue in the banks group. This stock fluctuated erratically throughout the day, scoring 7 points additional to its gain of 20 on Thursday, and then later sinking to about 8 points below Thursday's close. County Trust of New York was lifted about 20 points on the bid to a new high for this movement.

Of the public utility shares Consolidated Traction and Augusta-Aiken Railroad and Electric preferred showed improvement, whereas other issues in this section remained quiet or sagged off fractionally. Considerable activity developed at one juncture in Security Insurance of New Haven, which moved up from 2 to 3 points on out-of-town buying.

DOLLAR TRADE VOLUME UP.

Department of Commerce Report Shows Gain Over Year Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The dollar volume of trade continues to show gains over a year ago, as seen from check payments covering the third week of July, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. The volume of new building contracts awarded during this same period was larger than in either the previous week this year or the same week of 1925.

The production of crude petroleum was larger than in the previous week, but smaller than a year ago, while the output of bituminous coal and lumber during the second week of the month was smaller than in either the previous week or the corresponding week of last year.

Wholesale prices averaged lower than in either the previous week or a year ago, while interest rates on time money continued to average higher.

Loans and discounts of Federal Reserve member banks, the department pointed out, declined from the previous week, but were still well above a year ago. Prices of stocks continued to average higher, both as compared with the previous week and the corresponding week of last year, while coal loan rates, although higher than a year ago, were lower than in the previous week.

The Federal Reserve ratio at the end of the third week was higher than at the end of the previous week, but lower than a year ago.

Business failures, although larger in number than in the previous week of this year, were lower than in the corresponding week of 1925.

FOX FILM'S FOREIGN TRADE.

Approximately 40 Per Cent. of Its Gross Business Done Abroad.

Approximately 40 per cent. of the Fox Film Company's estimated gross business, for the current year, which is $25,000,000, will be contributed by the foreign organization of the company, it was reported yesterday. Fox Film maintains sixty-eight branch offices in thirty foreign countries, three of which are in North America, three in South America, sixteen in Europe, five in Asia, and in addition Australia, Tasmania and New Zealand.

The foreign organization has been built up in ten years by the expenditure of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, all from earnings. This amount is equivalent to from $10 to $12 a share on the present outstanding capitalization of 400,000 shares of Class A stock and 100,000 shares of Class B stock, executives of the company said.

In the similar period of last year the profits were $3,446,064, or $1.01 per common share.

MARCONI WIRELESS WILL PASS DIVIDEND

BIG DROP IN SHARE PRICE

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 23.—An official statement issued tonight by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company contained the unwelcome news that the dividend on the ordinary share capital will not be paid. Owing to continued depreciation of certain of the company's interests in associated and other companies, it is stated that a further revision of values becomes necessary. Pending the completion of an investigation into those undertakings, now being carried out by two firms of auditors, the annual meeting has been postponed. It is stated that the company's operations for 1925 showed a profit.

Stockholders have been prepared for the announcement of the dividend omission by the ominous fall in the last week of the shares of the company, which now stands at something less than half of their quotation of last year. It was explained today that in 1923 the company was hard hit by the depreciation of foreign currencies, and more than £2,000,000 was written off out of reserves. It was said at that time that the company's interest in foreign companies had been reduced to real values. The 1924 report showed, however, that this was not the case, and £677,985 more was taken from reserves for write-down of sundry assets.

As the company is unable to pay dividends this year, presumably the new depreciation which is to be met exceeds the amount left in reserve last year—£1,043,120.

In February last year the company issued 500,000 ordinary shares at a premium of seven shillings sixpence—an operation which financial circles now declare to be remarkable in view of the fact that the company has been suffering heavy losses in depreciation for several years past and that if depreciation had been provided for out of profits there would have been no dividends.

AMERICANS WILL BUILD POLISH GRAIN HOUSES

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, July 23.—A contract for $3,000,000 for the erection of four great grain elevators at the most important importing points has been signed with the American Ulen Company as the beginning of the Polish program for the relief of agriculture, which constitutes two-thirds of the national wealth. The agreement with the company, which is already conducting extensive drainage operations, is one of the most important farm relief steps in the campaign which the Government believes will prove the salvation of the new republic.

Minister of Agriculture Raczynski told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the Government's efforts to build adequate grain depots were only meagre in comparison with what is needed. He urged American investors to enter the field for the establishment of local elevators throughout the country.

At present, he said, the peasants were discouraged by the falling prices at the grain harvest time with Poland in the midst of one of the best crop seasons it ever had. It is not producing the maximum, he said, because of this handicap. Only 25 per cent. of the land is tilled by the big farmers with storage facilities and the remainder are obliged to buy sacks and market their grain immediately through the Government commission, which in turn has not proper storage room to hold up the crop until an advantageous moment.

The new elevators are capable of holding only a fraction of the crop. They will be ready for the 1927 harvest it is hoped, and immediate relief to the farmers is practically impossible. The Government commission, however, is returning profits from the sales of grain to banks financed by the Government for farm loans so that the condition is not quite as bad as though the entire production were in the hands of speculators.

The American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation and subsidiaries report for the first five months of this year a net income of $798,442 after all charges including depreciation and bond interest. The corporation reports new business as greater than that of a year ago. Among the new orders are contracts for a 251,000-horsepower steam turbine for the New York Edison-United System and for the electric equipment on seven locomotives for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

MERCHANTS ON TRIAL FOR LOCKOUT IN ITALY

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, July 23.—The new Fascist law regulating relations between capital and labor had its first application against employer in Pistoia today, when 114 merchants and shopkeepers were haled before the judicial authorities for declaring a lockout.

The lockout was promptly called off, but the legal proceedings against the accused will continue.

The trouble arose over new taxation imposed by the municipal administration, which the shopkeepers and merchants considered excessive. All efforts toward conciliation having failed, an attempt was made to force the municipal administration's hand by declaring the lockout.

Instead, the Government, although entirely outside of the squabble, intervened energetically, seeing in the shopkeepers' action a violation of the law which declares both strikes and lockouts illegal.

It will be remembered that recently the law was applied against certain workers, to suppress an attempted strike in a small industrial plant near Milan, the dispute having arisen over the dismissal of two employes. Some of the workmen went on strike in protest.

In that case also the ringleaders were taken before the judicial authorities for violating the law. The next day every workman was on the job again.

LONDON WOOL PRICES FIRM, MARKET FAIR

Home Trade and Germany Are Principal Buyers—Sales in Boston Moderate.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—The offerings at the wool sales today amounted to 10,445 bales. Good conditioned, greasy and scoured merinos met with a ready sale at firm prices. The home trade and Germany were the principal buyers. Inferior grades continued to move irregularly.

BOSTON, July 23 (AP).—The Commercial bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow:

"Manufacturers have been buying moderately in the wool market this week and have not taken wool in any large volume. Mostly interest has centred on the finer wools. Prices throughout the list are firm. In the West the outstanding feature of the week's trading has been the clean-up of the Roswell (N. M.) wools, including nearly a half million pounds of old wools, with $1.05 firmly established as the basis, clean at seaboard, of the best fine clips out of this sale. Elsewhere through the West trading has been scattered and slower, but growers are standing firm on their asking prices.

"London holds up surprisingly well in view of the continuance of the British coal strike, which has well nigh paralyzed the Yorkshire market. Merinos are firm, despite the practical withdrawal of French and Belgian buyers, while crossbreds average only 5 per cent. lower than June prices. The East India wools showed an advance of about 7 per cent. on the best wools and 5 per cent. on the poorer wools over previous series closing rates. River Plate markets are steady.

"Further openings of staple lines by the leading independent manufacturers have been made at prices 10 per cent. lower than a year ago, which meets the prices named earlier by the American Woolen Company."

MEN IN STATE EARN DOUBLE PAY OF WOMEN

State Labor Department Study Shows Latter Are at Disadvantage in Range of Work.

ALBANY, July 23 (AP).—Male employes of New York State industries are earning about twice as much as the women, who are also at a disadvantage in the smaller range of occupations open to them, according to a study of industrial conditions made public tonight by the State Department of Labor.

Although the women work in radically different occupations than the men, an average taken from all places open to men and all open to women in the various industries of the State showed that about 56 per cent. of the earnings were received by men. In practically no industry do the men form less than 20 per cent. of the working force, the department's report disclosed, but in many factories women comprise less than 1 per cent. of the employes.

Irregular employment, due in many cases to their occupation in seasonal trades, also works heavily to the disadvantage of the women.

"One of the most impressive facts brought out in the whole study," said a statement by the department, "is the large reserve of labor necessary to maintain the working force that appears on the payrolls of each industry. A few industries are always expanding operations when business is dull, either for their busy season or because they follow late in the course of the business cycle. Their demands help to offset reductions in the volume of employment, but only by providing work for the people previously unemployed."

DRY GOODS HOLDS ITS LEAD

Week's Sales, Current and on Road, Still Lead Year Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was ahead of the corresponding week a year ago.

"Road sales also were somewhat in excess of the total recorded during the same period last year.

"There were more customers in market than during the corresponding period in 1925.

"Collections were about the same as for the same week last year."

McCrory Stores Earns $759,195.

The McCrory Stores Corporation reports for the six months ended June 30 last a net income of $795,195 after expenses, taxes, &c., equal after 7 per cent. preferred dividends to $1.52 a share on 455,496 shares of no par class B and common stock. In the first six months of 1925 profit was $695,655, or $1.43 a share. For the June quarter the profit reached $457,093, or 89 cents a common share.

HEAT WAVE RUFFLES TRADE CONDITIONS

Increases Sales in Last Few Days of Light Apparel, but Hurts Corn and Wheat.

OUTLOOK STILL PROMISING

Steel Making Best Reports Among Industries, Says Bradstreet's—Dun's Finds Prices Firmer.

The condition of trade and business is reported as continuing fair, with third-quarter prospects distinctly optimistic. The intense heat wave, which has traversed almost the entire country, has offered considerable irregularity to business, but on the whole there is promise in the situation, according to leading observers.

Light apparel sales have increased extensively in the last few days and the heat is said to have hurt some corn and Spring wheat and to have dulled buying in the Northwest. Industry is encouragingly active for the midsummer season and the steel trade is well ahead of last year at this time, while the automobile business marked a lower rate in June than a year ago. The stock market has been more or less unsettled, due to varying reports of second quarter and first half operations, and wholesale price advances have exceeded declines.

Bradstreet's considers the situation as follows:

"Large retailers report relatively the best business. In wholesale lines a more than cheerful tone seems to pervade the cotton goods trade, which has seen larger sales of these fabrics, accompanied by firmness in most makes and definite advances in some varieties of sheeting.

"In the industries iron and steel lines make the best reports, with advices of small reductions in operating capacity still leaving the percentage of activity slightly above a year ago. Steel scrap prices furnish most of the advances reported in this line. Production in wide areas of soft coal regions is ahead of last year for the week and season."

Dun's Weekly Review of Trade says:

"The unusual condition of midsummer expansion in some important branches of business still attracts attention. Recent gains have been extended in several instances; there is more firmness in commodity prices, and prospects for the third quarter of the year seem to be more promising than had been commonly anticipated. Financial reports for the first six months, moreover, have exceeded all expectations in a number of cases, the position of various corporations has been appreciably strengthened, favorable dividend action has been taken and more new high records in the stock market have been established.

"Irregularity in commercial trends, with some unsatisfactory features, continues to be noted, but the situation as a whole reflects a gratifying stability, and in diferrent directions there is more activity than appears normally at this season. It is surprising even to leaders in the steel industry that demand in that line holds up so well during what is traditionally a quiet period; improvement in the leather and footwear trades has become more distinct, with a noticeable change for the better in sentiment, and reports from some divisions of the textile field are more encouraging."

CURB MARKET FIRMER, WITH FEW FEATURES

Price Fluctuations Generally Confined to Fractions—Reactions in U. G. I.

The Curb market was rather featureless yesterday. Stocks drifted over an uncertain price course, but the general undertone was firmer than on Thursday. Most of the changes were confined to fractions, but a few high-value shares registered good gains.

United Gas Improvement reacted quite sharply on early profit-taking, following the announcement late Thursday that the company would pay a 25 per cent. stock dividend. Standard Oil securities held quite well, with Prarie Pipe and Vacuum Oil recording best advances.

Small fractional movements were the rule among domestic bonds, with most interest in Public Service of New Jersey 5½s, Swift & Co. 5s and Fisk Rubber 5½s, the latter bonds selling off after registering an early gain. Foreign obligations were irregular. Kingdom of Denmark 5½s sold lower, but Brazilian issues pointed higher on an increased business.

American Republic's Earnings.

Second quarterly earnings of the American Republic Corporation and its subsidiaries reached $670,108 after interest, charges and Federal taxes, equal after 7 per cent. preferred dividends to $2.47 a common share. This compares with $423,663, or $1.24 a share in the preceding quarter and with $801,221, or $3.13 a share in the second quarter of last year. For the first six months of this year earnings aggregated $1,093,771, or $3.71 a share as against $1,452,679, or $5.51 a share last year.

EXPLAINS OIL PLANS IN IRAQ CONCESSION

Sir Adam Ritchie Says Ten Test Wells Will Be Drilled by Experienced Workmen.

WORK TO BEGIN IN FEBRUARY

Five American Companies Have an Interest In Enterprise—May Build Pipe Lines to Sea.

Sir Adam Ritchie, Chairman of the Turkish Petroleum Company, Ltd., who has been spending some months in Iraq, has recently given an outline of the development program to be undertaken during the next twelve months in connection with the oil concession which has been obtained from the Kingdom of Iraq.

Five American oil companies, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard of New York, the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, the Atlantic Refining Company and the Gulf Refining Company, have a 25 per cent. interest in the Turkish Petroleum Company and will participate to that extent in the exploitation of the Mosul oil fields.

Sir Adam is preparing to start on another tour of Iraq to gain further first hand knowledge of the country, with a view to making preliminary plans for the drilling projects which the company expects to begin next February. The impression has been created in Iraq that the progress made under the concession signed in 1925 has not been as rapid as it should have been, it is understood. The natives, unfamiliar with present methods of oil production of large size, are understood to have expected the oil to jet from the earth almost at a signal. It was pointed out, nowever, that the vast work of preparation has been conducted as expeditiously as possible by expert geologists and that the time for the application of their theories was approaching.

A drilling plant adequate for ten test wells has been forwarded to Iraq, and a superintendent has been engaged from the United States to direct the technical features of the work. In the meantime a former official of the Iraq Public Works Department will take charge of the other engineering activities in the new field. The latter's work will include the construction of bridges, roads and buildings as well as the preparations for water supplies for the various wells. The company also will utilize the services of European engineers.

The plan is to sink ten test wells at selected spots throughout Northern Iraq. The drilling will be continued to a depth of 5,000 feet in each case, unless oil is found at a shorter distance. It is anticipated that within the next year the company will be paying out at least $500,000 in salaries since it is intended to use the services of highly-qualified American drillers.

If the company finds oil in commercial quantities, as it expects to do, it will be necessary to build a pipe line to transmit the oil to the Mediterranean.

Preparatory work incident to the transportation of supplies and materials will be begun shortly. The company now has in mind the use of six-wheel trucks for this important feature of the operations.

Bread Prices Go Up in Paris.

PARIS, July 23 (AP).—The price of bread in the Paris region will be increased to 2 francs 80 centimes (about 7 cents) per kilogram (2 1-5 pounds), beginning Thursday.

STOCKHOLDERS FAVOR SALE OF STEAMSHIPS

Hamburg-American Gets Reliance, Resolute and Cleveland From United American Lines.

Stockholders of the American Ship and Commerce Corporation, holding company for the United American Lines, ratified at a meeting in Wilmington, Del., yesterday the sale of the three steamships Reliance, Resolute and Cleveland to the Hamburg-American Line. The consideration, while not disclosed, is understood to be between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000.

This transaction marks the virtual withdrawal of the United American Lines from the direct operation of passenger vessels. The Hamburg-American Line, which was destroyed during the war, by the present deal increases the tonnage of its fleet to about 500,000 tons, which is approximately 40 per cent. of its pre-war tonnage. The United American Lines now hold only six cargo ships.

The announcement of the sale, made last week, explained that the deal had been arranged on a basis whereby the American Ship and Commerce Corporation, instead of operating with the Hamburg-American Line a joint service as in the past, was to sell the three ships in exchange for a financial interest in the Hamburg-American Line.

It has been understood that the United American gets its financial interest in the German company through the acquisition of 10,000,000 reichsmarks, par value, of Hamburg-American capital stock. This stock, $1,582,500 in cash and $4,000,000 of notes, secured by mortgage on the three ships, are said to have constituted the purchase price.

WHEAT DECLINES ANOTHER CENT

Dry Weather and Liverpool Give the Market an Early Boom That Fails to Hold.

GRAIN COMING IN BIG LOADS

Kansas City Gets 1,080 Cars—Corn Advances and Drops—Oat Prices Go Up.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The wheat market was unsettled within a range of 1¾ cents, advancing early on short covering and scattered buying in sympathy with an upturn of ½@1d in Liverpool and on dry weather talk from the Canadian Northwest, but the market ran into free selling, and with relatively limited support the finish was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of ¼@1 cent.

Weakness at Minneapolis had some effect, prices there being 2@2¾ cents lower for the day, while premiums on Spring wheat were 2 cents lower, with mills buying slowly. Rains were reported in parts of the Dakotas, with prospects for more. Some points in South Dakota had as much as two inches. The moisture came too late to have much effect on wheat, but will be highly beneficial for corn. Cash wheat premiums were unchanged to 1 cent lower here and ½ cent lower at St. Louis and Kansas City.

The movement of Winter wheat is very heavy, and it is expected that the total arrivals at terminals for the week will be about the largest known. This, with a falling off in the milling demand, is likely to result in a liberal increase in the visible supply, with the trade looking for well over 2,000,000 bushels in Monday's statement.

Much wheat on track at Kansas City has not been unloaded. Omaha had nearly four hundred cars, the bulk of which was taken by Minneapolis Mills. A local operator who was aggressive on the selling side yesterday was at it again today and is said to have out a liberal sized short line now.

Premiums on hard Winter at the Gulf were easier at 4½ cents over Chicago September asked for August loading, while the foreign demand continues very disappointing, with sales of 200,000 to 300,000 bushels in all positions.

Primary arrivals today of 3,651,000 attracted much attention as Kansas City had 1,080 cars, the largest on record for one day and the week's total promises to aggregate around 21,000,000 bushels, about the largest ever known. A week ago receipts were 2,340,000 bushels and last year 1,890,000 bushels. Shipments were 1,239,000 bushels; week ago, 877,000; last year, 922,000.

Coarse grains showed independent strength with corn advancing around 1½ cents early, but the late weakness in wheat led to selling and the greater part of the upturn was lost with the finish ¼ cent lower to ¾ higher, July showing the decline. Oats gained 1½@1¾ cent.

Numerous reports of it being too dry for corn were received from parts of Illinois, Nebraska and Iowa. Cash corn basis was 1 cent higher to 4 cents lower, the latter on the poor kinds which were in slow demand.

Primary arrivals of corn were 476,000 bushels; week ago, 561,000; last year, 470,000, and shipments, 416,000 bushels; week ago, 630,000; last year, 358,000.

Strength in oats was due to reports of disappointing threshing returns from Illinois and on the recent damage in the West. New oats are moving in Iowa and Illinois and the first arrivals from the new crop are expected here next week.

Rye lost 2¼@2½ cents in sympathy with wheat, but trade was not large.

COTTON FORECAST SHOWS A DECLINE

Probable Yield Put at 15,368,000 Bales, a Cut of 267,000, in Government Estimate.

WEEVIL DAMAGE FEARED

Plants Growing Rapidly After a Late Start—Slight Decline on New Orleans Exchange.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—A decline of 267,000 bales in the prospective cotton crop between June 25 and July 16 was shown today in the Department of Agriculture's forecast of 15,368,000 equivalent 500-pound bales based on July 16 conditions. Last year's crop was 16,103,000 bales. This year's crop, with favorable conditions, might reach 16,628,000 bales, the department said, but with unfavorable conditions it might run as low as 13,476,000 bales.

Recent weather conditions have been favorable for plant growth in nearly all cotton States, the department said, but as a result of a late start, cool nights and the loss of the early bloom through the widespread ravages of the cotton hopper, much less fruit than usual had set up to July 16. This would leave the crop more exposed than usual to late weevil damage, it was said, and this might prove a serious menace in several States should weather conditions be favorable for the propagation of those insects. There is an ample supply of moisture through a large part of the Cotton Belt, the department added, the plants are making rapid growth, and a rapid improvement in prospects may result from weather more favorable for fruiting or for insect control.

The condition of the cotton crop on July 16 by States, compared with that of July 1 and that of July 16, 1925, is as follows, the percentages being of a normal:

	July 16, 1926.	July 1, 1926.	July 16, 1925.
Virginia	71	62	76
North Carolina	68	63	77
South Carolina	63	55	71
Georgia	61	70	74
Florida	80	73	82
Missouri	79	80	80
Tennessee	71	72	79
Alabama	71	78	78
Mississippi	70	78	83
Louisiana	71	77	76
Texas	73	80	66
Oklahoma	78	78	76
Arkansas	72	79	85
New Mexico	84	80	82
Arizona	89	91	94
California	99	99	92
All other States	73	74	79

Following is the forecast of yield as given by the Department of Agriculture in each of its reports this year, compared with the corresponding reports of preceding years, and with the final reports of 1925, 1924 and 1923. Figures are in thousands of bales:

	1926.	1925.	1924.	1923.
Final	16,103	13,627	10,139

NEW ORLEANS, July 23 (AP).—The Government cotton estimate, caused only a small decline on the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, as the condition figure was lower than expected and the indicated yield only a little above trade expectations. The market dropped 27 points on October and 20 points on December, but at once began to rally and was soon only 15 to 17 points below the prices ruling before the report came out.

CANADIAN CROP CONDITIONS.

Prospects Reported Good, Though Heat and Hail Have Done Harm.

A generally satisfactory yield marks Canadian crops, despite the fact that the entire land has been put to a severe test by the heat wave from the West, advices from the Bank of Montreal said yesterday. Extreme heat and lack of moisture probably have injured prospects for an average yield in some sections, and recent hail storms have done some damage, but this is generally offset by rains in many parts of the country.

Good average crops are reported in prospect in Manitoba, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and Quebec will have a fair yield, with good grain, root, and early fruit crops. Recent rainfalls have benefited Ontario. British Columbia, having conquered a recent grasshopper plague, expects a heavy grain harvest.

LIVE STOCKS AT CHICAGO.

Smaller Receipts Lift Hog Market —Lambs in Good Demand—Cattle Slow.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Smaller receipts of hogs with a better shipping demand resulted in a firmer market with prices strong to 10 cents higher. The finish was easy. The top for the day was $13.85, while the day's average was $12, the latter showing 10 cents above Thursday.

The bulk of the 160@210 pound averages sold at $13.30@13.70 with 230@280 pound butchers at $12.40@13.15 and 290@320 pound kinds at $12@12.25. Packing sows sold mainly at $10.50@$10.85.

Packers bought 15,000 and shippers 7,000, with 7,000 left over. The purchases by shippers today were the largest for a Friday since last April. Receipts were 17,000 with 4,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Fat lambs were in good and the market was steady to 25 cents higher with a top of $15 on Western, while natives sold up to $14.75 with the bulk of the business at $13.75@$14.25. Sheep were steady with the bulk of the sales at $5@$8.50. Receipts were 7,000.

Demand for cattle was slow with prices little changed. Yearlings sold up to $10.25 with the bulk of beef steers about $8.25@$9. Receipts were 3,000.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Advances and Declines Mixed in Cash Trading — Cotton and Lard Up—Grains Mixed.

Cash articles were milled about in an irregular price movement yesterday. Gains and losses were mixed in all groups. Wheat, rye and flour reacted, while corn improved. Lead advanced, but tin sagged. Bullish interpretation of the Government's cotton report lifted middling uplands and also acted for a rise in lard. Dairy products and groceries were firm.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities in the New York market, unless otherwise noted, were:

COTTON RECOVERS AFTER EARLY DIP

Effect of Selling on Government Crop Estimate Offset by Later Rally.

Recent Showery Conditions of More Import to Market Than Report.

While yesterday's Government cotton report in showing a larger indicated yield than had been anticipated caused selling and a decline of a quarter of a cent, the market turned and recovered all the ground lost, closing at a net advance of 11 to 15 points. Recent showery conditions, attended by moderate temperatures in the great producing territory of the Southwest, evidently carried more weight than the optimistic view of the crop reporting board. With general rains in Texas, Louisiana and Georgia and over parts of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Alabama reported again yesterday, demand for cotton increased on the decline and carried the list back to high records of the day in the last hour.

When trading was resumed fifteen minutes after receipt of the Washington figures, a very light volume of business developed on the call. Instead of the frequently violent price changes following an unexpected official showing, prices moved moderately lower under weight of offerings until October sold around 17¼ cents. This level attracted outside business, and absence of selling pressure later in the session developed a covering movement at advancing quotations, October selling above 17½ cents before the close.

The supplementary description of the crop accompanying the report attracted general attention. Reports stated that nearly all states reflected recent weather conditions as favorable for plant growth, but as a result of a late start, cool nights and the loss of the early blooms through widespread ravages of the cotton hopper, much less fruit than usual had set up to July 16. This leaves the crop more exposed than usual to late weevil damage, which may prove a serious menace in a number of States should weather conditions be favorable for the propagation of these insects. The uncertainty of the situation caused a sharp decline in the reported condition of the crop in the Gulf States. The report added, however, that there is at present an ample supply of moisture through a large portion of the belt and plants are making rapid growth. A rapid improvement in prospects might result from weather more favorable for fruitage or for insect control.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

SCIENCE PRODUCES A NON-STOP FIREFLY

Adrenalin Injection Makes It Burn Steadily by Crippling Its Flash Mechanism.

GLOWS 24 HOURS, THEN DIES

But It Recovers From Lighter Dose —No Commercial Use for the Discovery Is Yet Found.

A method of making a firefly burn with a steady light, instead of flashing and then going out, has been found in experiments conducted by Dr. Frank E. Lutz, Curator of Entomology at the American Museum of Natural History, and William S. Creighton of Princeton, it was announced yesterday.

The firefly's illuminating system is stepped up, it was discovered, by a tiny hypodermic injection of adrenalin. This is a powerful drug which is used to increase the blood pressure and sometimes to restore heart action.

The drug is administered by a hypodermic solution which is inserted between the segments of the insect's body. A heavy "shot" of adrenalin will make a firefly glow steadily for twenty-four hours.

No Commercial Use for It.

The experimenters have so far discovered no commercial use for this discovery. There is no demand at present for non-stop fireflies. The experiment was undertaken for the purpose of discovering why and how fireflies turn on and off their lamps.

Some authorities say that the insect's white lights are nothing but an illuminated matrimonial advertisement. Others say it is to scare off the enemies of the firefly or to suppress competition by driving other bugs out of the local food supply. Others say that the fireflies acquired their flash mechanism by accident and that it is of no practical use to the insect.

The experiments were carried on in the Harriman State Park near Tuxedo, N. Y., where a field laboratory was fitted up by the Commissioners of the Palisades Interstate Park and W. Averell Harriman.

When the fireflies got enough of the drug to keep them alight for as much as twenty-four hours, they expended so much vital energy, apparently, that they died at the end of that time. Where the dose was lighter, enough to keep them shining steadily for only three or four hours, they recovered and seemed to be normal thereafter.

Th effect of adrenalin upon living tissue usually is to cause intense contraction of the involuntary muscles. The lighting apparatus of the firefly includes groups of light cells, which product substances known as luciferin and luciferase, which are luminous even when isolated from the bodies of the insects in the form of a minutely grained powder. These cells are stimulated by oxygen from the air, received through a system of tubes, something like those of the human lungs.

Keeps Muscles Rigid.

The small tubes, running from the main inlet to the cell groups are provided with an elastic band, the size of which is regulated by contracting and expanding muscle. This appears to release and suppress the light at the quick intervals of normal action. The adrenalin contracts these muscles and keeps them rigid, for as many hours as the dose is effective, so that the emission of light is constant.

Adrenalin has also been found to increase the amount of light emitted by some of the smaller species of fireflies, which ordinarily show but a faint degree of illumination, compared with the larger form which is the brilliant lamplighter on summer evenings. It also increases the illumination by the female of the larger species, which has only two narrow bands of light, while the male has almost a third of its body lighted.

FORT MANSFIELD IS SOLD.

Government Land in Rhode Island Brings $260,000 at Auction.

WESTERLY, R. I., July 23 (AP).—Fort Mansfield, a Government reservation at Napatree Point, Watch Hill, was sold at auction today for $260,500 on deferred payment terms.

Spirited bidding on the part of a syndicate of Watch Hill Summer residents to prevent outsiders from gaining control of the reservation was the feature of the sale.

The land which comprises about 110 acres has a half mile beach and was recently appraised by town officials at $92,000.

The leaders of the purchasing syndicate were Thomas D. Thacher, Frank Hibbard, Richard B. Mellon, Elton Parks and John M. Goetchius of New York. A. A. Brand of Boston and Charles Barend of New York, representing other syndicates, were the only outside bidders.

DROWNED AT TRAINING CAMP

Yonkers Youth Seized by Cramps While Swimming in Lake.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 23.—James E. McRickard, 16 years old, of Yonkers, a member of the Military Training Camp at Plattsburg Barracks, was drowned this afternoon in Lake Champlain while bathing.

McRickard, who was a member of Company C, and his brother, George M., went bathing in the lake opposite the training camp with several companions. James swam out a considerable distance and suddenly disappeared, apparently having been taken with cramps.

The body was recovered within a half hour and shipped tonight to the young man's home in Yonkers.

"RED" GRANGE A RANCHMAN

Football Player Gets Half Interest in 5,000-Acre California Tract.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., July 23 (AP).—Harold ("Red") Grange is to become a ranch owner of California. Ira F. Pyle, brother of C. C. Pyle, manager of Grange in his professional football enterprises, announced here today that Grange had obtained a half interest in the 5,000-acre Pyle ranch at the northern end of Sonoma County.

Mr. Pyle understands that Grange is to use part of the ranch as a hunting and outing preserve and will run sheep on a much smaller part.

The ranch is situated in the Cloverdale hills, along the Redwood Highway.

VISITING DOG GOES MAD; FIVE ESCAPE ATTACK

Mother Saves Children and Boy Gets a Policeman, Who Kills Animal.

Special to The New York Times.

KEARNY, N. J., July 23.—A police dog owned by William McCallum of 35 Grove Street, this city, has long been a favorite pet of the children in that neighborhood. This afternoon Harry Evans, 11 years old, who lives at 37 Grove Street, with his younger brother and sister, took Sport for his regular afternoon stroll.

When they returned Harry remembered that he had saved some bones for Sport and called the dog into the living room of the Evans home, where Mrs. Evans was sitting with her baby in her arms. A few minutes later she saw the dog was frothing at the mouth and, calling her children, fled to a bedroom just in time to escape an attack.

The dog ran madly from one room to another and hurled his body against the bedroom door which Mrs. Evans barricaded with a chair. Harry dropped from a window on the second floor, landed unharmed in the yard and ran to the police station.

Patrolman Hutchinson and Flack went to the house with him and found that Sport had wrecked the furnishings, bitten holes in the rugs and had broken all the china in the china closet. As the patrolman approached the dog sprang at Flack, who shot him through the head and killed him instantly. Since the animal had not bitten any one the head will not be examined for rabies.

BAYONNE, N. J., July 23.—Six dogs, which are thought to include the three that bit two Jersey City boys yesterday while they were walking along the Newark Bay shore here, and four cats were seized today by the Board of Health inspectors in the shack of Barney McPhail, an aged recluse, who lives in West Fifty-fourth Street, near the shore. A seventh dog escaped.

The inspectors also condemned the shack. A brother said he would look after Barney. Terence O'Connell, 10 years old, of 194 Neptune Avenue, Jersey City, who was bitten twenty times by the dogs, is recovering at the Bayonne Hospital.

POLICEMAN PRAISED FOR RIVER RESCUE

Had to Swim Half Mile Before Reaching Drowning Man—Todd and Party Aided Him.

When details of the rescue in the East River on Thursday of a swimmer who had been seized with cramps were revealed yesterday, it was learned that a patrolman had made a swim of nearly one-half a mile to save the man, and that Transit Commissioner John F. Gilchrist, William Walsh of the Bureau of Standards and Appeals and William H. Todd, shipbuilder, had participated in the rescue.

The swimmer, Edward Baldwin, of 331 East Sixty-second Street, shouted for help as he was seized with cramps off Seventy-fourth Street. The shouts were heard by Patrolman Louis Erickson of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station and by Commissioner Gilchrist, Mr. Walsh and Mr. Todd, who were heading up the river in Mr. Todd's yacht, the Saelmo, and Captain John Kane of the tugboat Geral M. Syrell.

The patrolman threw a life preserver into the river in the hope that the tide would carry it to the drowning man, but the tide, instead, carried Baldwin far downstream. Erickson jumped into a passing police automobile and as it sped south on Exterior Street he disrobed.

At Seventy-first Street the automobile came abreast of Baldwin, and Erickson dived into the river. Meanwhile, Mr. Todd and his party had left the Saelmo in the yacht's motorboat and had started toward the drowning man, and Captain Kane had headed his tug in the same direction.

The tide carried Baldwin down almost to Fifty-ninth Street, and by the time Patrolman Erickson reached him the man was exhausted. Erickson kept Baldwin above water until the tug and the motorboat arrived, and with help he got the man aboard the tug and climbed in himself.

Baldwin was revived in a short time. Mr. Todd and his party went back to the yacht and resumed the journey to Mr. Todd's home at Greenwich, Conn. Patrolman Erickson was commended for his action by Captain Walter Abrams of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station.

OLD SEVENTH HAS REUNION

General O'Ryan Among War-Time Veterans at Camp Smith Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 23.—Today was veterans' day of the 107th Infantry and many war-time members arrived at Camp Smith this afternoon to take part in the reunion which is the big day of the old Seventh Regiment's stay in camp.

Among the guests of Colonel Hayes were General John F. O'Ryan, war-time commander of the Twenty-seventh Division and a veteran of the Seventh Regiment for whom the thirteen-gun salute was fired; Colonel J. M. Wainwright, war-time division inspector; Colonel R. A. Eagan, Lieut. Col. Nicholas Engel, Major Thomas J. Brady, Major H. L. Stratton and Colonel W. C. Fiske. All witnessed the "mock review" of the day.

The Fifty-fourth Brigade, General Edgar S. Jennings commanding, will leave camp Sunday morning to make way for the Eighty-seventh Brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer. The brigade of 2,300 guardsmen is made up of the 165th Infantry of New York, commanded by Colonel John J. Phalen, who has been nominated for brigadier general to command the new Ninety-third Brigade, and the 174th Infantry, Colonel William R. Pooley commanding.

Thief in Mt. Vernon City Hall.

A sneak thief operated in the City Hall at Mount Vernon yesterday. Miss Grace Craft, Secretary to Purchasing Agent O'Brien, was out of the office for a few minutes and $10 was stolen from her pocketbook on the desk. Mrs. Katherine D. Ingle also reported that her bag containing money and other valuables was missing. She thought it had been taken from the wash room.

McCarl Halts Airplane Claims.

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Controller General McCarl today refused to allow $57,798 in claims against the Government made by the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Company. The claims involved royalty charges in connection with the manufacture of airplanes for the Government.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4 per cent. for the best names. Thursday—4 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

***

Buying of Infants' Wear.

While a good number of buyers of infants' wear have already visited the market, most of them have placed orders for immediate needs or have specified August shipments. Many buyers now order their requirements not over a month in advance. As the goods are very staple, manufacturers do not suffer very much by this tendency, for total sales at the end of the year usually equal those in years when buyers ordered an entire season's requirements in advance. Sales volume has been sustained, despite a trend toward less elaborate and costly infants' wear, upon which retailers can secure more rapid turnover.

Millinery Ribbons Very Active.

The millinery trade's demand for ribbons continues to be extremely large, with most attention being given to low-priced narrow grosgrains and satin bengalines for cheap trimmed hats. Some ribbon manufacturers report as much activity as in any season for several years, and the general volume is said to be at least one-third greater than that of last years' bookings at this time. A shortage is likely to develop in the desired merchandise within a month, as looms are already producing at capacity, but prices are not likely to be advanced, manufacturers say.

Rhinestone Jewelry Selling.

Buyers are responding well to lines of rhinestone jewelry, wholesalers say. Rhinestone chokers, earrings and bracelets are being bought, the largest orders being placed for the last-named in styles to retail from $1 to $10. Slave bracelets are expected to continue popular during the Fall. An innovation in these is the bracelet of filigree silver or gold plate. In the higher priced goods very wide enamel and imitation jade bracelets are being bought, to retail at prices above $10.

***

More Anxious About the Strike.

While some manufacturers of cloaks and suits say that retailers are not placing larger Fall orders because of the strike, others report a marked change in the attitude of buyers during the past week. Not only are terms specifying delivery three weeks after the settlement of the strike proving acceptable to a greater number of buyers but the size of the orders is said to be increasing. In such desirable merchandise as fur-trimmed travel coats for the early Fall, some buyers appear to be ordering more than their actual wants, apparently fearful that they will be allotted only a portion of their order. Some retailers are postponing their regular August sales to September, manufacturers say.

Gray Goods Prices Strong.

The gray goods market was very strong yesterday, although without any special feature. For 68-72 print cloths buyers had to pay 8⅝ cents, 64-60s brought 7⅞ cents, and 60-48s were quoted at 6¾ cents, all for July and August shipment. For 3.95 drills, 37-inch goods, the price was 8¼. In sheetings, 36-inch 5-yard goods brought 7¼ cents. In sateens, 37½-inch goods, 64-104s, sold at 11⅝.

***

More Neckband Shirts Wanted.

Owing to the backward Spring season and the resultant slow disposal of many shirt lines, converters are said to be offering fewer new styles this Fall. Lighter grounds prevail in the new offerings, with the semi-colored effects predominating. Neckband shirts are somewhat more in demand. Among several reasons advanced for the gradual waning of the collar-to-match styles, is the fact that the collar usually wears out before the shirt, owing to the fact that it must be laundered more frequently. Although some merchandise is being offered at slight reductions, not much goods of the distress type is in the market.

***

"Fruit of the Loom" Advances.

Announcement was made yesterday by Converse & Co. that, effective on Monday next, the price of 4-4 "Fruit of the Loom" bleached muslin would be advanced a quarter of a cent a yard. The last previous formal price on the goods was 17¼ cents. This was announced on May 1 to cover May, June and July deliveries.

***

Hard Coal in Better Shape.

Since the middle of the month a slight change for the better has been noted in the status of the authracite market, especially as regards the steam sizes, Seward's Journal will say today. Demand has picked up a little, and the fact that a number of the independent collieries are on part time is also tending to keep the situation within bounds. On the other hand, more coal is probably going into the company stocking plants than was the case in June, for, in order to give buyers all they want of certain sizes, it has been necessary for the large producers to mine a greater quantity of other sizes than their customers can find room for. Improvement is under way in all branches of the bituminous trade, but the shippers of high volatile coal are feeling it most.

Why They Desire Price Secrecy.

It is not with a desire to obtain more than their rightful profits, it was explained here yesterday, that jobbers of knit goods have been so anxious during the week just closing to have actual prices on 1927 underwear lines kept from the press by selling agents and manufacturers. The real reason, it was explained, is that it is sometimes very necessary, due to keen competition and other causes, to jockey prices sufficiently to make the average figures pay a fair and legitimate profit. In other words, it is sometimes necessary to sell some goods under the price that would afford an honest profit, and, in order to make up this loss, to boost other merchandise proportionately. With the mill prices in the hands of retailers, it is maintained, this cannot be done. Putting prices into retailers' hands was also said to make selling difficult, because it gives them a basis on which to make all kinds of attempts to get preferential treatment.

Warns of "Fake" Buyer.

A "fake buyer," operating under the name of Mr. Jacobs and claiming to represent L. Jacobson, Chicago, is now at work in this market, according to a prominent resident buying company. Many complaints have been received by this concern to the effect that the man places large "orders" and then proceeds to have a check cashed for him. The checks come back marked "no account." In some instances he asks the manufacturer to refer him to a good place to buy a diamond or a fur coat for his wife. The manufacturer, due to the "order" he has just received, sends him to a friend. The "buyer" then offers a check in payment, at which the friend calls up the manufacturer to find if everything is all right. The big "order" prompts the manufacturer into saying it is, and then the check comes back.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

More Advances Than Declines, but Most Were Unimportant.

The margin between the advances and declines in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices continued to shrink this week, although there was again an excess of the former over the latter. Thirty-five advances were shown in this week's sixty-four changes, while last week, in fifty-seven revisions, thirty-seven were upward. An easier tone to foodstuffs and marked firmness in hides featured the current list.

The following table gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week last year:

†Nominal.

Changes in the foodstuffs were few this week, but the declines, despite the upward trend of the general list, outnumbered the advances by seven to one. There were but two of the latter in the whole list. In the local market for provisions the only change in flour prices was a decline of 50 cents a barrel in the fancy family grade of Minnesota flour. Middle Western lard and hams were lower here, but bacon did not change. At Chicago the only changes were declines in live steers, live hogs and short ribs.

In the list for dairy products, extra creamery butter was fractionally higher, but cheese did not change. A rise of two cents a dozen in near-by fancy eggs was offset by a decline of 2½ cents a dozen in fresh-gathered firsts.

Neither the fresh nor the dried fruits showed change this week, and revisions in the vegetables were few. They consisted of declines of 50 cents a barrel and 75 cents a bag, respectively, in cabbage and onions.

Both of the basic Brazilian coffees are again lower this week, but no change was seen in the teas. For the first time in several weeks neither raw nor fine granulated sugars advanced or declined. The only change in the spice list was a decline in black Lampong pepper.

Revisions in the grains this week consisted of advances in corn, oats and malting barley and declines in wheat and rye. Straw advanced. The leather list showed higher prices for tannery run union backs and for No. 1 scoured oak backs. The hides moved upward solidly.

Changes in the drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils totaled higher than for some time. There were seventeen of them, but only six were advances. Features were lacking. Only advances in resin and turpentine were seen in the naval stores. There were no declines.

Very few changes were seen in the metals this week. Antimony was higher, but zinc declined. Foundry coke advanced. In the listed building materials the only change was a rise in common Hudson River brick. The paint list showed higher prices for American ochrage and American red lead. Declines in jute and Japanese raw silk, together with advances in Brazilian crude rubber and in wool, were included in the week's miscellaneous changes.

Not much of importance transpired in the textiles during the week, although in the cotton goods some well-known bleached muslin lines were slightly advanced. Higher prices for several unfinished cottons also were seen. Burlaps were quiet and lacking in feature.

DISMISSES CONTEMPT SUITS

Judge Forbids Action Against Middle States Oil, However.

Proceedings for contempt of court instituted last year by the late Julius M. Mayer as receiver of the Middle States Oil Corporation for alleged disobedience of a Federal injunction restraining the bringing of suits in Delaware were dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge Knox. The defendants were William G. Weisbrod, James D. Andrews and Waldo G. Morse of this city and the law firm of Marvel, Marvel, Layton & Hughes of Delaware. The defendants denied that anything had been done in violation of the injunction.

In dismissing the proceedings Judge Knox made a new order restraining the defendants from instituting or taking part in any action in connection with suits already begun against the Middle States Oil Corporation or any of its subsidiaries.

Judge Knox said the action for contempt against the residents of Delaware had not been pushed and that the facts before the court against the other defendants were not deemed sufficient.

POSSE HUNTS ELOPERS, 14.

Maine Boy and Girl Run Away Together Twice in a Week.

ELLSWORTH, Me., July 23 (AP).—Two elopers, each 14 years old, have successfully evaded a posse of officers and other searchers for two days, it was learned today. The boy, David Coughlin, was said to be armed, and his companion, Nellie Piper, has asserted that they would drown themselves before submitting to capture.

Their elopement Wednesday was the second within a week. The first time they were brought back by James Coughlin, David's brother, who found them in an abandoned farmhouse near Bangor.

It is believed by the searchers, led by David's brother, that the youthful elopers are in some abandoned logging camp near the Canadian border. On their previous elopement they sought to enter New Brunswick, but were halted by immigration guards.

DEDHAM, Mass., July 23 (AP).—A specific bequest of $3,000 and the undenominated residue after private bequests for the exclusive care of cats was contained in the will of Mary H. Russell of Brookline, filed here today. The largest private bequest was $2,000. The Massachussetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will administer the fund for the cats.

PLAN NEW DRIVE ON SMOKE

Queens Residents May Invoke Dead Court Order Against Long Island.

Following the disagreement of the jury on the charge that the Long Island Railroad is maintaining a smoke nuisance at its Morris Park yards in Queens, comes the possibility of an attempt by residents of the section surrounding the yards to invoke an order nearly a year old of a lower court which they contend has never been carried out. It was said that the action will be taken very soon.

About a year ago in the Queens Court of Special Sessions the railroad was found guilty of maintaining a nuisance on testimony similar to that in the recent trial. The court's decision provided that if the nuisance was not eliminated or at least noticeably abated by the railroad, the court could, after proof of negligence on the part of the road, order the sheriff to take over the yards, either to shut them down or to direct their management.

BARS UNLICENSED CARS.

Canada Requires American Tourists to Present State Registration Cards.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—A warning that some Canadian authorities are barring American motorists from entry to the Dominion because they do not have the State license registration cards with them, was issued today by the American Automobile Association. In Ontario alone, it was stated, an average of twenty-five cars a day have been refused admittance on that ground.

If the visit to Canada is not to exceed twenty-four hours, and return made through the same port, the Canadian customs officials will retain the card and return it, but if the stay is longer, or exit is through another port, a touring permit costing 50 cents must be obtained and handed over to the Canadian official when the tourist re-enters the United States. For a stay of more than thirty days it is necessary to be bonded.

The action is directed against the firm of Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co., certified public accountants of New York City, on the ground that in the audits of the accountants cash on hand of the Select Pictures Corporation, a Selznick company, was listed as $93,863.43 when overdrafts of that corporation actually amounted to $216,262.53.

BUILDING BOND ISSUE TO BE INVESTIGATED

VALUATION HELD EXCESSIVE

$575,000 Bonds Sold on Premises Worth Only $600,000, Deputy Attorney General Says.

An investigation of the issuance and sale of securities of the Sagamore Apartments, Inc., of Bronxville was ordered yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney granted the application of Attorney General Ottinger for a hearing on charges that both the issuance and sale of the securities were in violation of the Martin act.

In an affidavit Deputy Attorney General Keyes Winter, head of the Bureau for the Prevention of Fraud, alleged that the Sagamore Apartments, Inc., issued and marketed to the public $575,000 face amount of bonds secured by a mortgage on its premises in Bronxville, which bonds were sold upon the representation that value of the premises was $900,000; that the payment of the bonds and interest was secured by lien on the corporation's earnings; that the building was fireproof, and that the bond certificates were legal for investments by savings banks and trustees in New York.

Mr. Winter alleges that the value of the premises covered by the mortgage does not exceed $600,000 and that a large part of the building is unrented, and therefore earning no income. He contends that the building is not fireproof and that there is no provision in the mortgage securing the bonds by a direct lien on the corporation's earnings.

In his petition for the hearing Attorney General Ottinger says: "Unless the practices are regulated by this court the public of the State of New York will lose large sums of money and a critical situation will develop in the real estate market within this State and elsewhere on account of overinflation."

Among those summoned to appear at the hearing are Morris P. Altman, President of the Sagamore Apartments, Inc.; John W. Smith, Vice President; John J. McMahon, Secretary; Garfield L. Miller, President of G. L. Miller & Co., and William C. Wheeler.

The hearing will be conducted by Referee Maurice Block.

SETS A CLASS MINIMUM.

Committee Acts After Continuation School Extravagance Charge.

Extravagance in the conduct of the continuation schools of the public school system was charged at a meeting on Thursday of the Board of Education Budget Committee, it was learned yesterday. Associate Superintendent Arthur S. Somers charged Morris E. Siegel, director of continuation classes, with having maintained classes attended by so few pupils as to make the expense unjustified. On his recommendation the committee ruled that the minimum number for any class shall be 150 pupils, or thirty for any session, since pupils attend classes only once a week. It was also charged that an unnecessary number of teachers have been employed during the past year in continuation schools, and it was announced that relatively fewer will be employed in the coming year through consolidation of classes and without affecting the scope or efficiency of the work of the schools.

Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools, pointed out yesterday that he had made in the last few weeks a thorough investigation of the continuation schools and had found conditions generally good. He declared the State Commissioner was so satisfied with the schools that he made an annual appropriation of $200,000 toward their maintenance.

FAILS TO WIN SNAP DIVISION

Liberals' Move in Commons Causes Flurry, but Government Beats It.

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—Many Government supporters have been notoriously slack in attending the Friday sessions of the House of Commons, and there was an amusing flurry this morning when the Liberal minority, taking advantage of the slim attendance, tried to catch the Government napping by causing the first snap division of the present Parliament.

Captain Wedgwood Benn of Leith made the attempt, when the mining reorganization bill came up, by moving its recommittal.

Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Secretary of State for War, stepped into the breach for the Government and, amid much merriment, occupied nearly a quarter of an hour with various remarks until the Government whips collected the supporters close at hand.

Some one finally shouted, "You're safe!" to Sir Laming, and the division was taken, resulting in rejection of the Liberal motion by 155 to 81.

Britain Warns Tourists on Postage

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—A warning from the Postmaster General of Great Britain against the practice of hundreds of American tourists mailing postcards with a penny stamp instead of the required 1½d. was received today by Postmaster General New. Most of the postcards with insufficient postage are from American ships, the note stated, and to avoid annoyance to addressees the cards are being surcharged. PUT GUARD ON HOMES OF CANTON OFFICIALS

State Troopers Are Brought in Because of Threats, Following Killing of Mellett.

GOVERNOR SPEEDS INQUIRY

Sends Detective to Push Hunt for Slayers—More Suspects Are Questioned.

CANTON, Ohio, Saturday, July 24 (AP).—Armed National Guardsmen in plain clothes are guarding the homes of several prominent local officials and possible witnesses in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher.

The presence of the troops was revealed from official sources early this morning.

The officials said that the precautions were being taken because of continued threats against officials unless they gave up their activity in the investigation of the killers of Mellett.

One of the homes being guarded was that of C. B. McClintock, the Stark County Prosecutor.

Postal officials are on their way to Canton to investigate the threats made through the mails. These have come from points as far distant as Cairo, Ill., and New York.

Governor Takes Direct Part.

Special to The New York Times.

CANTON, Ohio, July 23.—Governor Donahey of Ohio, through a personal representative, J. D. Cleary, a detective, has stepped into the Canton Police Department to hasten action in the search for the slayer of Don R. Mellett, newspaper publisher, who was assassinated eight days ago, two days after the last of his many attacks against the local Police Department, which, he alleged, was accepting graft and protecting criminals. These attacks were a part of his crusade against vice and political conditions here.

Cleary has been in Canton for three days surveying the situation. Today he took a more direct part in the case, and as a result three men were subjected to a rigid questioning, although none was held. These men are Carl Studer, said by the investigators to be known in the underworld; Max Levin, a professional bondsman, and an associate of Studer believed to be Charles Major.

Studer had heard that he was wanted today. He drove up to Police Headquarters in a high-power automobile. Jauntily he walked upstairs to the Chief's office, passing the time of day, with joking remarks, to two police officers whom he met on the way.

The police then brought in Levin and Major. This was early in the afternoon, and questioning was continued for several hours. While it was in progress two of the five men who were arrested in connection with the murder on Thursday and released lounged nonchalantly about Headquarters, chatting with police officers.

Cleary's Activity Resented.

It is understood that Cleary's action today has caused considerable friction within the Police Department and that as a result Lengel has withdrawn as Chief so far as the Mellett murder investigation is concerned, leaving direction of the force to Cleary.

Police and detectives operating independently under Stark County Prosecutor C. B. McClintock agree in crediting the theory that the murder was done by assassins who had no strong personal grievances against the publisher, hired by the man or men who were willing to go to any extreme to end the series of attacks which were sending some to jail and eating into the profits of bootleggers and other criminals all along the line.

Before Studer had been located today Mr. Cleary said: "I firmly believe that this mystery can be solved and the murderer or murderers captured. To accomplish this there must be unified effort on the part of the police and all investigators. We are all here for the same purpose and will gain our end quicker with proper cooperation.

"I have been retained by Governor Donahey as his personal representative in this murder investigation, and have orders to report to the Governor on progress and conditions."

Trace License of Alleged Death Car.

PITTSBURGH, July 23 (AP).—An abandoned automobile found in Alliance, Ohio, July 16, the morning after Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, was shot and killed near his home, bore the Pennsylvania license number 721-59, the Pittsburgh police were informed tonight. They said the license plates had been issued to Karl Appel of Pittsburgh, known to the police as a bootlegger.

Finding of the abandoned car is said to fit in with a clue that a machine bearing a Pennsylvania license was seen near the Mellett home just before the slaying. A handful of .38 calibre revolver bullets was reported found in the car.

Police records here show Appel reported his automobile as stolen the day following the Mellett slaying.

Hyman Darling, convicted bootlegger, was arrected at his home here late today for questioning in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton (Ohio) publisher. The arrest was made at the request of Canton authorities. Pittsburgh police said they had no information as to what connection Darling might have with the publisher's slaying. They said they merely acted at the request of Canton police.

Stating that he had employed counsel, Darling said he would fight extradition to Ohio but only because "feeling was running high in Canton."

Questioned by the police, Darling said that he had been in Canton a week ago last night but had left a few hours before the publisher was assassinated. He said the first news he had of the murder was contained in news dispatches he read Friday morning. Darling said he could produce witnesses to prove he had left Canton before Mellett was killed.

DYNAMITE KILLS 5, HURTS 4.

Forgotten in a Virginia Quarry, It Is Set Off by Lightning.

STRASBURG JUNCTION, Va., July 23 (AP).—A bolt of lightning which struck a forgotten charge of dynamite today caused the death of five men and the critical injury of four others in the Powhatan stone quarry here.

The dynamite was deposited in a niche fifteen years ago an forgotten until a ligthning flash and a deafening explosion late yesterday sent tons of rock hurtling through the air.

The victims sought shelter in vain. One was found in a crushed pump house he had entered.

SAILS TO WELCOME SEA FLIERS IN PARIS

Robt. Jackson, Fonck's Backer, Sure He and American Aids Will Jump the Atlantic.

Robert Jackson of Concord, N. H., backer of the projected non-stop airplane flight from New York to Paris next month, sailed last midnight on the Homeric for Europe to welcome the three fliers when they arrive there. He departed declaring the chances were fifty to one that the plane would cross the Atlantic safely, and that the aviators were as confident as he.

Mr. Jackson took with him four trunks containing the belongings of Captain René Fonck, the French ace who will command the plane. That, he said, showed that Captain Fonck had no doubt as to the success of the adventure.

Earlier in the evening Mr. Jackson was guest of honor at a farewell dinner tendered him at the Hotel Roosevelt by the aviators, members of the Argonauts, a club which is sponsoring the flight, and others interested in the project. The aviators were, besides Captain Fonck, Captain Homer M. Berry and Lieutenant A. P. Snoddy. Igor Sikorsky, builder of the plane, and Colonel H. E. Hartney were among others present.

Mr. Jackson announced that the flight would begin on Aug. 10, or the first favorable day thereafter. The plane is now practically ready. It has cost more than $100,000, the costliest ever built. It has three motors with a total of 425 horsepower. It can run efficiently on two motors, and when the load of fuel is lightened toward the end of the flight it can run on one if necessary. The plane is built throughout of duralumin and has a wingspread of 101 feet. It will carry nearly 3,000 gallons of ethyl-treated gasoline and is designed to make a non-stop flight of 4,300 miles. The hop from New York to Paris is 3,600 miles, and the plane will keep an average speed of 100 miles an hour, according to present plans.

Mr. Jackson pointed out that the airplane had wide margins of safety, both in power and construction, and said he was confident it would be the first to cross the Atlantic in one leap.

Captain Fonck, who is a member of the French Chamber of Deputies, said he believed Franco-American cordiality would greatly increase when the plane, manned by two Americans and a Frenchman, landed in the flying field at Le Bourget, near Paris.

BALLOON RACER, HERE, TELLS OF EXCITING TRIP

Capt. H. C. Gray, Back on the Harding, Says He Faced Wind, Rain, Snow in Ascent.

Captain Hawthorne C. Gray of the United States Army, commander of the S-16,, the army entry which finished second in the recent international balloon race at Antwerp, returned yesterday on the United States liner President Harding. He was beaten only by the American balloon Goodyear III.

"This year's race was the roughest and most exciting of 104 ascents I have made," said Captain Gray. "The start was made in wind and rain. At 10,000 feet, to which the S-16 once rose, there was heavy snow. At another point we descended so low that a collision with a church steeple was narrowly averted. Near the place where we finally landed we just missed dropping into a lake."

Vincent Jezlewski, who gave his address as the Y. M. C. A. in Chicago, was a prisoner in the brig of the President Harding. He was charged with implication in the recent robbery of mail on the George Washington. He was arrested abroad and turned over to the Post Office authorities here.

Dr. Victor Neeson, surgeon of the President Harding, twice diagnosed and prescribed by radio for persons on other vessels. One was a woman passenger on the City of Freeport and the other was a seaman on the American freighter Fluorspar.

WHITE PLAINS SEEKS 5-CENT TROLLEY FARE

Third Avenue Company to Tell Service Plans at Meeting Next Wednesday.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 23.—Executives of the Third Avenue Railroad Company, which through the Union Railway Company, a subsidiary, purchased on Monday the franchises, equipment and rolling stock of the Westchester Street Railroad Company for $70,000, will confer next Wednesday with Mayor Frederick C. McLaughlin and the Common Council here and outline plans for the continuation of trolley service.

Eighteen trolley cars will be sent to White Plains next week to replace the present cars and the new schedule will provide for ten-minute service on the Tarrytown-White Plains line, which now runs on a twenty-minute headway.

If trolleys are to be continued in White Plains, city officials are unwilling to permit the company to charge more than a 5-cent fare, although the previous company, which had been in the hands of a receiver for eight years, had charged 10 cents. If the trolley executives are willing to abandon the trolley lines here, it is said, they will be allowed to substitute bus routes, although franchises for the operation of such routes have been granted to the County Transportation Company, which seeks to establish a county-wide bus system.

$4,325 PAYROLL IS STOLEN

Thieves Raid Laundry Office After Trailing an Armored Car From Bank—Two Victims Beaten.

With a pistol held within a few inches of her head, Miss May Rothman, an employe of the New York Linen Supply and Laundry Company at 332 East Thirty-second Street, was forced by robbers yesterday morning to answer the ringing of the telephone bell in the laundry office and so summon Jerome Andrews, the manager, and possessor of the combination of the office safe. Five minutes later five men departed from the laundry plant in an automobile, taking with them $4,325 payroll money. Four armed men were the active participants in the robbery and they apparently trailed an armored car that brought the money from the bank.

One robber stood outside the main door of the plant and his four companions entered the office. There were three girls at work there and about seventy other employes in the laundry proper. The girls were told they would not be hurt if they kept quiet. "Come on, open the safe," one robber ordered. The girls explained that they did not know the combination and said Mr. Andrews was the only one who could open the safe.

"The manager is upstairs," one of them volunteered. The robber asked how he could be summoned, and the girl said it was by two rings on the buzzer. The robber pushed the button.

While they waited, Albert Gresser, manager of another department, arrived. He was immediately covered by the weapons of the trio and commanded to open the safe. As he said he did not know the combination he was brought to his knees by a blow on the head. Just then the telephone rang. Miss Rothman explained that it was probably Mr. Andrews calling to find out why he was wanted in the office. She started for the telephone.

"Never mind that," came from a robber as he brought his pistol in a line with her head. There followed a dispute between the robbers as to whether the telephone should be answered. "Well, go ahead," the leader ordered, "but say nothing except that the manager must come down at once on a matter of business."

Miss Rothman picked up the receiver and told Mr. Andrews he was wanted in the office on business. "That's enough," said the leader softly, and Miss Rothman put the receiver back upon the hook.

A few minutes later Andrews walked into the office. He was ordered to open the safe. As he knelt before the safe one assailant slashed his scalp. "More speed," was the short command.

Andrews worked hurriedly. When the door was opened one robber grabbed the money. Then they backed out with a warning to raise no alarm. As soon as they had left the building Andrews notified the police.

ROB TOMBSTONE EMPLOYE.

Thieves, Posing as Buyers, Get $1,200 From Bookkeeper.

Benjamin Sklark was alone in the branch of the Morris Serman monument works, at 129 Suffolk Street, where he is employed as a bookkeeper, at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when there was a knock on the hall door. Sklark had just returned from the State Bank, at Grand and Suffolk Streets, less than 100 feet away, with a $1,200 payroll. He had locked the front and side doors.

Mindful of hold-up men, he slipped a chain in place as he opened the door a few inches. Two well-dressed men were outside. One mournfully said his father had died and he wanted to buy a headstone.

Sklark's suspicion was disarmed and he let them in. They viewed several sample tombstones, then turned on Sklark with pistols and ordered him to hand over the payroll. Sklark obeyed. The thieves bound him and left. Half an hour later the janitor found him.

COLLAPSES FROM HEAT IN QUEENS THIEF CHASE

Patrolman Fractures Wrist in Fall and Is Wounded by Fleeing Man.

Patrolman Harold Davidson of the Queens Traffic Squad collapsed from the heat and broke his wrist yesterday afternoon in a three-mile chase after two men, in which he was slightly wounded in one hand by pistol fire.

Davidson was directing traffic at the junction of Merrick Road and South Street, Jamaica, when two men in a small sedan made an improper turn and ran onto the sidewalk. As Davidson approached the men to question them the driver started down South Street at a high rate of speed, but not before the patrolman noticed that the rear registration plate did not correspond to that on the front of the automobile. Davidson jumped on a passing automobile and pursued the sedan. Shouting to the men to halt, the patrolman fired two shots into the air, but this only caused the men to increase the speed of their car. Turning into 105th Avenue the fleeing men drove as far as 177th Street, where they abandoned the machine.

As Davidson came up one of the men fired two shots at him, inflicting a slight flesh wound on his left hand. Emptying his pistol as he ran after them, the patrolman suddenly collapsed. The two men disappeared in Springfield woods, where a later search by detectives and patrolmen of the Jamaica precinct was unsuccessful. Davidson is believed to have wounded one of the fugitives and hospitals have been notified to be on the lookout for a man seeking to have a gunshot wound dressed.

According to the police the registration plates on the abandoned sedan had been removed from stolen cars. The sedan was stolen from in front of the home of its owner, Mrs. Mary Rudd of 2,260 Avenue L, Flatbush, last week.

ARREST IN HOSPITAL HOLDUP

Clerk, Suspected of Aiding $11,000 Theft at the Roosevelt, Jailed.

Bernard Frankel, who said he was a clerk and lived at 550 Tenth Avenue, was locked up in Police Headquarters yesterday on suspicion of "aiding" in the $11,000 payroll robbery in Roosevelt Hospital on July 1 last. The police said at the time that the hold-up had been perpetrated by John J. (Bum) Rodgers, fugitive convict, and five members of his band. The remainder of the payroll, $13,000, was saved when the cashier swept it on to the floor of the hospital office while the girl telephone operator was telephoning the police.

Detectives Daly, Cordes and Walsh of Inspector Coughlin's staff arrested Frankel at Eighth Avenue and Forty-first Street yesterday afternoon. He was taken before Acting Captain Lyons and denied any connection with the hold-up. After several hours' questioning, however, Lyons ordered him locked up. Neither the inspector nor the detectives would reveal how suspicion fell on Frankel. Detective Daly's only comment was: "The others are still at large—that's all."

MAN HELD IN FUR ROBBERY.

Suspect in Weiner Hold-Up Will Have Hearing Next Tuesday.

Morris Stratmore of 228 East 112th Street, owner of a garage in East 104th Street, was remanded without bail yesterday in Jefferson Market Court for a hearing next Tuesday on suspicion of connection with the theft of $75,000 in furs on June 18 last in the hold-up of the establishment of Joseph Weiner, furrier, at 213 West Twenty-eighth Street.

Detective Lowenthal of the West Thirtieth Street Station arrested Stratmore Thursday night in his garage when, the detective said, he came across a motor truck similar to that used in the fur robbery. Stratmore scoffed at the detective's suspicion that he was connected with the robbery and said he had become independently wealthy in his garage business and "wouldn't stoop to such a low thing as robbery."

Dixon Predicts Press Censorship.

HICKORY, N. C., July 23 (AP).—Federal Government censorship of the press will be established within ten years unless steps are taken to prevent it, in the opinion of Thomas Dixon, author and playwright. "There is a growing demand for censorship of the press, and unless the forces now in motion toward the accomplishment of this purpose are met and destroyed, they will win," he told the members of the North Carolina Press Association here last night. "Newspapers are the supreme expression of the orderly process of law against the voice of riot and personal violence," he added, "and a censored press is the first step in the establishment of tyranny."
